Hopkins Returns, Declaring Britain Can Win

But English Need Help Desperately, He Says; Reports To Roosevelt

Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's eyes, ears and voice in London for a month, returned to the White House last night and began revealing to the President the results of his secret mission.

"I don't think Hitler can lick these people," he had said of the British as he landed at New York from the Yankee Clipper a few hours previously. "They're as tough a crowd as there is. They've got the military stuff. With the help we can give them, they can win. And I don't think it's going to be a stalemated war, either."

And at Union Station here he told reporters:

"I don't think they need men. They say they don't, and I believe them."

Conceding that the British "need materials desperately, and now," he added at LaGuardia Field, New York:

"They have wonderful leadership. Churchill is a great man. The spirit of the men in the street and the soldiers is wonderful.

"They haven't any doubt about winning. They're depending on us to help them. They're confident of that."

The former Secretary of Commerce and former WPA chief arrived at the White House in an official limousine that had been sent to the station for him. He was in time for dinner with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau at a party marking Mrs. Morgenthau's birthday. After dinner the group watched a movie.

Later, the President and Hopkins, who has made his home at the White House for some months, settled down to a detailed discussion

Willkie Considers Visit to China Next

Wendell L. Willkie is considering a trip to survey embattled China, he indicated last night.

Questioned about a report that he would follow up his flying survey of conditions in the British Isles with a trip to the sections of China which are not occupied by the Japanese, Willkie replied:

"There is nothing definite yet. I expect to return to the practice of law in the near future."

Vast Nazi Plot Against U.S. Reported

By the Associated Press

Mexico City, Feb. 16.—A vast, Nazi-dominated party aimed at damaging the United States was reported here today as operating from the Canadian border to the tip of South America.

Anti-Nazi Germans and a group of self-styled patriotic young Mexicans were the sources of the report. The version of the Mexicans was that they became interested in the organization in the spirit of adventure, but decided to expose its activities when they saw in it dangers to their own country's peaceful relations with other nations of the continent.

For weeks there have been reports, and some evidences, of increasing Nazi activity in Mexico. Several new pro-Nazi publications have appeared.

According to the version of the young Mexicans, the party's history is this:

Four years ago a Mexican party of Nazi leanings was organized as a unit of a continental association. There are other units in the United States, and other countries of the continent.

Its chief purpose is to immobilize, or weaken, the United States by stirring up hatred for the Washington Government; creation of political, diplomatic and economic problems in the Latin countries, and to provoke discord, strikes and other labor troubles in key industries in the United States.

Such activities would include street demonstrations—such as that

Youth Seized In Woman's Holdup Slaying

Boy Questioned After Witness Says 'That's the Man'

Police last night questioned an 18-year-old colored youth arrested in connection with the fatal shooting during a holdup Saturday night of Mrs. Fannie Cohen, 56, proprietor of a dress shop at 1512 U Street Northwest.

The suspect, arrested by Lieut. Richard Cox on a "tip" was pointed out as the holdup man who fired point blank at Mrs. Cohen by a liquor truck delivery boy, believed to be the only witness in the case.

Confronting the suspect yesterday the witness, whose name police requested be withheld, is said to have remarked "That's the man . . . I could have picked him out of a hundred others."

Despite the fact that Inspector B. W. Thompson, chief of detectives, announced that the reward for information leading to the apprehension of the killer had been raised from $100 to $200, police said the case "looked good."

Meanwhile, Thompson said an earlier suspect held for investigation would be released in view of the fact that proved he was in Alexandria Saturday night.

Mrs. Cohen, who lived at 1419 R Street Northwest, was about to close the store when she was confronted by the bandit

The delivery boy who said he witnessed the shooting while passing by the window claimed to have followed the colored man to Fifteenth and R Streets Northwest.

Gas Station Chain Picketed By AFL Union

Strike Marks General Organizational Drive Here, Says Leader

A strike at more than 40 Lord Baltimore filling stations in Washington yesterday marked the opening of a city-wide organizational drive by the A. F. of L. Teamsters' Union among gas station attendants.

Company and union officials said yesterday that the strike grew out of the company's refusal to bargain with the Gas Station and Parking Lot Attendants Local No. 997 of the Teamsters Union.

James Holden, union business agent, said that 180 of 220 salaried employes of the company were on strike. Thomas B. Scott, divisional manager of the company, said that only 70 of 285 attendants and station managers had failed to report for work.

All the stations were open yesterday, despite picketing. Holden charged that strikebreakers had been brought in from Baltimore to operate the stations. Scott replied that "only a few company employes were brought in."

The union, which was established in January, "broke into a new and completely nonunion field, Holden said. Organization so far, he said, had been limited mainly to the Lord Baltimore stations, but he added, the strike will initiate a city-wide campaign.

Union demands, Holden stated, include recognition as bargaining agent, a $15 a month wage increase, and a week's vacation with pay.

Scott said that the company "will not negotiate with the union, since it does not represent a majority of the employes."

Plea to Roosevelt

Making the United States the larder as well as the arsenal of nations fighting Axis powers was proposed last night as the Senate made ready for today's start of lend-lease bill debate.

While the Nation awaited Senate presentation of the Administration's case for the bill to aid England by Chairman George of the Foreign Relations Committee, a group of 150 public figures petitioned President Roosevelt to rush food as well as munitions to the fighting foes of totalitarianism.

Expressing confidence that the lend-lease legislation to supply "ships, planes, tanks and guns" will be enacted "within a few days," thereby enabling America to become "an effective arsenal," the petition adds:

"But the gallant garrison of democracy may need more than arms, Mr. President. They may need food. Hitler boasts that the submarine sinkings to date are only a foretaste of what is to come.

"Men, no matter how brave, in order to fight victoriously on land and sea and in the air, must know that starvation cannot threaten the homes they are defending. It is within our power to see that such a threat does not materialize."

No mention was made of how the food might be delivered to the British, already facing an acute shortage of bottoms for transportation of fighting equipment.

England Mines Gates To Singapore Against Attack by Japanese

War of Shadows

New British Method Locates And Downs Bomber in Dark

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 16.—The air ministry news service gave a plain indication today that the British now have developed a method by which fighter pilots can both locate and follow invading planes by night.

Heretofore the biggest problem of night fighters was to find their adversaries and then keep them in sight. In a description of the shooting down of three German bombers over England last night, the air ministry news service said:

"A Heinkel 111 was spotted 15 miles from the English coast. The fighter pilot got onto the enemy's tail and began a process of 'stalking' which kept him going round in circles for nearly ten minutes."

British night fighters recently have been increasingly active as compared with last fall when the Luftwaffe began using blitz tactics in raids on Britain. British night fighters then were virtually unmentioned and the defense was restricted to anti-aircraft fire despite many brilliant moonlight nights.

The air ministry news service's comment today was the first in which the night raider was reported "spotted" and consistently, successfully followed by a fighter.

The Heinkel pilot, the news service said, apparently was unaware the British fighter was on his track.

"The flight lieutenant followed him as the enemy crossed the coast at nearly 14,000 feet," the service said. "Then he closed in and gave the Heinkel a long burst. The Heinkel dived and was lost to sight.

"A little later the pilot saw a batch of incendiary bombs apparently being jettisoned, and a minute or two afterwards there was a huge orange flame as the aircraft struck the ground and was burned out.

"'When he was spotted, the Heinkel pilot was just going into a gentle turn,' said the flight lieutenant. 'Round and round he went with me on his tail and he suspected nothing. I got into position and as the enemy pilot turned to cross I closed in and gave him a burst.'"

Surprise Blow Feared

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 16.—Apparently suspicious of a Japanese thrust in the Far East, Britain announced today she had mined the sea approaches to Singapore, her great Oriental naval bastion.

A brief government notice to mariners gave no explanation for the minefield at the tip of the Malayan Peninsula and officials also were silent.

But it came on top of a week of anxiety in Britain's dominions across the Pacific.

The British Empire has been on guard against the possibility of an actual Japanese campaign or a mere smokescreen to divert British attention from any European plans of the Axis.

Japan 'Cautioned'

Preceding the mine-sowing, Britain had stationed troops, naval and air forces at Malaya's frontier with Thailand and these coinciding developments also indicated the increasing strain on British-Japanese relations:

1. British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie was reported in Tokyo today to have cautioned Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka against any menacing maneuvers toward British possessions in the Far East.

At the same time, the Japanese press reported under Bangkok, Thailand, datelines rumors of an imminent clash between Britain and Japan. Thailand herself has declared officially that cordial relations with Britain prevail.

2. Foreign military observers in Shanghai declared Japan had set up the nucleus of a military air base at Saigon, French Indo-China, and called that potentially

Italians Driven From Last Sudan Position

South African Fliers Strafe Fascist Troop Concentrations

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Feb. 16.—The Italians lost their last foothold in Sudan yesterday when continued British harassing forced the garrison to evacuate Kurmuk, just west of the border in the Blue Nile region.

British forces reoccupied the town soon after the Italian withdrawal.

In Italian Somaliland the South African air force strafed the Italians who were retreating northward along the Juba River, near Jelib, 60 miles north of Kismayu. Italian trucks along the coastal Kismayu-Mogadiscio road were machine-gunned.

Meanwhile in Eritrea the British column advancing from the north was reported to be within 50 miles of its destination. It has now covered about two-thirds of the distance from the Sudan border.

Thus the Italians at Cheren are in great danger despite the strategic advantages of their positions. British forces now outside of the town are being reinforced with troops and equipment. They have already occupied several minor Italian nests and have successfully stormed two important heights, enabling them to bombard the town from above and possibly to launch flanking attacks in conjunction with the northern

Germans But Balkan Move Up to Britain

Attack by England Would Be Countered, Rumanians Are Told

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, Rumania, Feb. 18.—Dsipatches from Berlin predicted today that the winter military lull will end soon and the Nazis will attack England "like a bolt of lightning," but that this corner of Europe will not be involved unless Britain makes the first move.

Among many dispatches from the German capital, the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Universul reported Nazi military strength at a peak, production at a maximum and 30 submarines being launched a month.

Newspapers warned that with the departure of Britain's diplomatic mission from Rumania, "air attack can now come at any minute."

Berlin dispatches gave Rumanians to understand that if their country were bombed, Nazi might would be loosed in all directions in the Balkans.

Precautions against possible raids continued, however, with announcement that all electric power will be cut off three minutes after planes are reported approaching.

40% of Men, 21-36, Found Unfit for Army

Bad Teeth Main Cause for Rejection, Draft Doctors Say

More than 40 per cent of American men between the ages of 21 and 36 have been found unfit physically or mentally for military service, Selective Service headquarters disclosed yesterday.

Col. Leonard G. Rowntree, chief of the headquarters medical division, said that 32 per cent of the registrants called before local boards before January 31 had been rejected by board physicians. An additional 8 per cent had been rejected by Army induction boards for ailments unnoticed by local board physicians.

Rejections by local board physicians, he added, were in two categories: 12 per cent were fit for limited military service and 20 per cent were unfit for any form of military duty.

Defective teeth were the principal causes of rejection. About 17 per cent of those rejected by Selective Service physicians had bad teeth and 22 per cent of those rejected by Army physicians had the same condition.

Other causes for rejection were given as: Ailments of cardiovascular system, 20 per cent; musculoskeletal defects, 14 per cent; eyes, 22 per cent; genitalia, including venereal, 11 per cent; mental and nervous ailments, 16 per cent; ears, nose and throat, 15 per cent; hernia, 11 per cent; feet, 10 per cent, and lungs, 7 per cent.

Meanwhile, Clarence A. Dykstra, director of selective service, was urged to recommend deferment "for students in good standing in approved medical schools" until they have obtained their degrees.

A resolution to that effect was telegraphed to Dykstra after its adoption at a joint meeting of various committees representing the American Medical Association

"Since the five-year preparedness program of the Government will require about 3,500 medical graduates annually to enter the service of the Army, Navy and Public Health Service for a year's training, the education of physicians must be continued at the present level and without interruption," the resolution said, adding:

"In order to provide a continuing supply of qualified medical students for medical schools of this country, we urge also that students who have been accepted for admission to approved medical schools in a period not to exceed 12 months preceding enrollment be granted deferment of military training

Roosevelt Due To Get 'Extended' Congratulations

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Feb. 16 (AP).—Committee of the Puerto Rican House of Representatives prepared today to cable the House's congratulations to President Roosevelt for his reelection after a debate last week in Spanish on the niceties of the English language.

The debate raged about whether to cable the President "the House offers congratulations," or "the House extends congratulations."

The side holding out for the verb "extends" on the ground that "offers" was too common won out.

District Soldier Killed in Texas By Speeding Car

Special Dispatch to The Post

Fort Bliss, Tex., Feb. 16.—Hit by a speeding automobile and dragged more than 50 feet late Saturday night, Pvt. Jackie Gascoe, 22, of 1345 Euclid Street, Washington, D. C., a member of Battery C of the 260th Coast Artillery (AA), died in William Beaumont General Hospital here early today.

The accident occurred in front of the antiaircraft training center theater on the National Highway which passes a few hundred yards north of the Battery C encampment. Driver of the car was J. P. Drake, 47, of Sunrise Acres, Tex. Police have charged him with negligent homicide.

Gascoe lived in the Gadley residence on Euclid Street. He had come to Washington about two years ago from Chicago, where his father and two brothers live. Three of his aunts, Mrs. George Pearce, Mrs. C. P. Woodruff and Mrs. Marie Lanish, live at 1349 Euclid Street Northwest.

Gascoe was employed in the Zoo Restaurant.

"This is our thirteenth child. When we had our last one we named her Evelyn Enough Rollain. We decided that if we had another, we would call it 'Too Much.'"

2,350,000 Born In U. S. Last Year; Most in Decade

An estimate that 2,350,000 babies were born in the United States last year, the highest number since 1930, came yesterday from the Census Bureau.

This was approximately 100,000 greater than the 1939 total and lifted the national birth rate from 17.3 to 18 for every 1,000 of population. The rate was the lowest in 1933, when it stood at 16.5.

Nevertheless, the bureau said that the long-range birth rate trend still was downward. It attributed the 1940 rise largely to the fact that persons born of marriages during the immediate post-World War period—which saw a sharp upturn in weddings—had reached the reproductive ages.

Compulsion of Curiosity

English Boy Would Like to Fly Here and See Those Presents

If only 11-year-old Michael Hornby, of 56 Tenby Avenue, Kenton, Middlesex, England, "had wings," he'd fly to Arlington, Va., at once.

MICHAEL

It would be to see the presents relatives bought him and his sister, Patricia, when sometime ago it seemed sure they'd come to America to escape the war.

But the children couldn't come, and curiosity got the better of Michael. He felt bound to write and inquire—just for the sake of thinking about it—what those presents were.

Mrs. Mildred E. Allen, the children's cousin, 3826 North Fifth Street, Arlington, showed this letter from Michael:

". . . . You make me long for those nice presents, now that you have told me. Please send me a typed list of them so that I can show my friends. I made a lovely bonfire today, for Dad, because I am on the land now. We had a quiet Christmas. We had to live on wartime rations. It is very quiet now (I don't think). I cycle to school every day, as it is 2 miles away . . . If I only had wings I'd be with you."

The presents Michael wants to know about include a set of pretty dishes for Patricia who is 9 years old; many books for Michael, who is studious; a specially built bookcase for him to paint, and other things he'll be glad to have when, and if ever, he can come here.

Double Catastrophe

Hurricane Fans Fire in Spanish Port; 60 Die, 187 Hurt in Storms

By the Associated Press

Madrid, Feb. 17.—More than 200 homes in the Bay of Biscay port city of Santander were destroyed by fire swept by a high wind and the flames still were roaring early today despite a 24-hour effort by fire fighters to check them.

Radio reports from the hurricane and fire-striken town said the fire started in an explosion aboard an oil tanker in the harbor. The winds picked up the blaze and spread it through a greater part of the city as fire fighters rushed there from as far away as Madrid.

Communications were cut except for the radio calls from a ship in the harbor.

Another disaster attributed to the storms sweeping Spain occurred during the night between San Sebastian and Bilbao where three coaches of a passenger train plunged into a river with at least 26 persons killed and 37 injured.

25 Reported Drowned

Lisbon, Feb. 16 (AP).—Twenty-five persons were reported drowned at Alhandra, 10 miles up the Tagus River when a boat sank during the hurricane. Nine persons died in Lisbon and 150 were hurt, while property damage was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Winds which lashed the city and countryside reached a top speed of 125 miles an hour. At nearby Sintra airport hangars were demolished, eight planes destroyed and a Spanish Airways Douglas Transport badly damaged.

River Yields Body Of Boy Lost With 4 Others January 1

The body of 8-year-old Walter B. Shelton, jr., of Forestville, Md., who disappeared on the river with his father and three others January 1, was found on the Virginia bank of the Potomac, about a mile below Key Bridge yesterday afternoon.

WALTER

Identification was made last night at the District Morgue by the boy's uncle, William Shelton, of Chevy Chase, Md.

The body was found by two Boy Scouts on a hike, Edwin Bell, 14, of 1018 Twenty-sixth Street Northwest, and John Boyd, 15, of 1020 Twenty-sixth Street Northwest.

Raiders Lie Low as Gale Sweeps Dover

By James MacDonald.
Copyright by New York Times

London (Monday), Feb. 17.—With a southerly gale racing over the Straits of Dover, this island fortress enjoyed a complete absence of enemy aerial attacks anywhere for several hours late yesterday.

As the night wore on the lull was suddenly broken by the appearance of a single German plane over the East Anglian coast, where several high explosive bombs were dropped. The bombs burst on open land, and no casualty or damage was reported. Another enemy flier raided a northeast town.

Earlier yesterday German planes, flying singly, dropped bombs in the London area, killing or injuring a small number of civilians, demolishing houses and doing other damage. Sunday's activities cost the enemy one plane, which was shot down by Royal Air Force fighters as it headed back for France. After the raider had been hit by antiaircraft shells, it was overtaken by British fighters, who sent it into the sea. It was the fourth German plane to have been destroyed since Saturday morning. No British loss was reported yesterday.

'Big Berthas' Roar Again

Before dawn yesterday the Germans cut loose once again with their big guns mounted on the French coast. For two hours they shot shells at irregular intervals across the Straits of Dover. Unofficial reports were that nobody was hurt and that no property damage was done.

London had a brief daylight raid yesterday. A plane was heard above the metropolis a few minutes before the sirens were sounded and immediately it began dropping bombs. One explosive destroyed two houses, killing one man and seriously injuring three persons. Another bomb fell on a school building. Still others exploded in a public park. Some landed in fields.

In an east Anglian town a raider dropped a bomb that pierced a business building, killing one man and injuring his two companions, all of whom were sheltering in the cellar. Sunday service was going on at the time in a nearby church but the vicar cut it short. He exchanged his vestments for street clothes, donned his steel helmet and took up his duties as special air-raid constable.

Three Nazis Bagged in All

One German raider machine-gunned the cliffs and the esplanade of an east coast town, but the bullets hit no one. Elsewhere, two women were injured and several houses were slightly damaged when another Nazi sprayed machine-gun bullets over the town.

In addition to the German plane which was shot down off the Kent coast during the raids of yesterday morning, on Saturday night another was destroyed over the Newcastle area and still another over Southwest England.

The air ministry announced that objectives in the western areas of the Ruhr were the principal targets for Royal Air Force bombing attacks yesterday morning and Saturday night. British attacking planes also subjected the invasion bases at Rotterdam, Calais and Boulogne to intense bombardments. Fires were seen wherever the raiders dropped their loads.

All but two of the raiders returned safely, the British officials said, and three of the coastal command planes failed to return.

"Vest-Pocket" U-Boats Reported

London, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—The heavy R. A. F. bombing of Boulogne followed reports that Adolf Hitler has begun the mass production of "vest-pocket" submarines for an early spring campaign designed to starve Britain into submission.

It was speculated that many of these tiny submarines, of less than 100 tons displacement and requiring only two or three weeks to build, may have arrived already in Boulogne, known to be one of the German's chief U-boat bases.

British war planes continued to attack Italian troop concentrations, and other objectives in the Cheren region. The hangars and workshops of the Mai Adaga airdrome, near Asmara, were bombed.

Early yesterday for the seventh time in seven days Royal Air Force heavy bombers raided Rhodes blasting and setting buildings afire in Lindos Harbor.

Civilian casualties and property damage resulted from an Axis raid on Malta.

Two Royal Air Force warplanes are missing from the last two days of operations in the Middle East.

Italians Claim Success

Rome, Feb. 16 (AP).—British attacks at the tip of Eritrea in the Karora zone, near where the border of Italy's oldest colony meets the Red Sea, and in the Cheren area in central Eritrea have been "sharply repulsed" by Italian forces, the Italian high command reported today.

(Karora is in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan on the Eritrean border about 150 miles north of Cheren.)

(The British have announced the capture of Chisimaio and the overrunning of all of southwestern Italian Somaliland between Kenya Colony and the line of the Juba River.)

Casualties in the British naval attack on Genoa last Sunday were put at 144 killed and 272 wounded in an official announcement today.

Italian Stands Fail to Halt Greek Advance

By A. C. Sedgwick
Copyright by New York Times

Athens, Feb. 16.—Throughout the day the Greeks were continuing their general advance along the whole Albanian front.

Today was the fourth since the advance started. It now seems clear that Gen. Ugo Cavallero, the Italian commander, was determined that it should not succeed. Time and again he ordered his troops to resist. At many points the enemy did put up a resistance, but the Greeks, according to information available here, were able to crush it—and, in most cases, inflicted tremendous losses upon the enemy.

Presumably most of today's fiercest fighting took place in the central sector, roughly in the mountainous area between the Tepeleni-Klisura line and Berat to the north.

In commenting upon the Italian losses, some of the Athens papers today state that Italian units have in many cases lost three-fourths or even fourth-fifths of their effectives in recent combats. The official spokesman announced tonight that two Blackshirt battalions numbering 1,200 men were left with only 200 after their attacks upon the Greeks had been repelled.

The Italians were made to feel the ever-increasing might of the Royal Air Force in cooperation with the Greek land forces. Yesterday British planes swept down upon the fighting area around Buzi in the sector between Tepeleni and Berat and opened up their machine guns upon enemy units moving toward the front lines, with considerable effect. Also, according to a Royal Air Force communique, British aircraft obtained satisfactory results, attacking military camps, supply depots and gun emplacements.

As there was activity on the part of the British, so almost equally was there marked inactivity on the part of the Italian aviation. Italian planes are reported to have taken little part in the engagements over the fighting area for two days in succession. It may be that recent successes of the Royal Air Force, especially in the bombing of airdromes and flying fields, have had a decisive effect, at least for the time being.

British Ships Heavily Hit, Berlin Claims

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Feb. 16.—Sinking of 37,000 tons of British shipping in submarine, warship and plane attacks, and the damaging of three additional merchant vessels and a light cruiser were claimed today by the German high command.

The communique minimized the effect of R. A. F. attacks Saturday night on the Nazi-occupied continental coast and declared the British lost ten planes.

It noted that German dive bombers had attacked British bases in Cirenaica, Libya, and later, D. N. B., official German news agency, said three British planes were shot down over Malta today in a battle with Nazi pursuit planes.

The chief emphasis of the communique, however, was laid on British shipping losses.

Sub Sank 3 Ships

One submarine alone reported it had sunk three "enemy armed merchant ships" of a total tonnage of 19,000, while "a warship overseas" which previously had reported sinking 110,000 tons of merchant vessels "has sunk an additional 10,000 tons."

Two British merchant ships at the mouths of the Thames and the Humber were damaged by bombs from reconnaissance planes yesterday, the communique said, and two others totaling 8,000 tons were sunk at a west England port last night. Another was set on fire, the high command said, and a light cruiser hit at the same time.

"Extensive damage was caused to dock facilities on the Thames and in the harbor district of a town on the west coast," the communique said.

It declared that Nazi long range guns on Friday and Saturday "bombarded important military objectives of southeast England" while in Cirenaica, Libya, German dive bombers attacked British bases.

Bombers Said Repulsed

"Efforts of enemy fliers to enter occupied territory were repulsed at the coast," the communique said of Saturday's R. A. F. attacks. "Thereby the enemy lost five planes, two pursuit planes and three battle planes in air fights."

In the Saturday night R. A. F. attacks, the communique said, "a small number of explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped in western Germany with "some" casualties among the civil population.

D. N. B., German news agency, reported the Luftwaffe sank one merchantman of 6,000 tons along the British North Sea coast today and attacked docks, wharfs and a number of harbors on the east coast of England.

D. N. B. said ships at Great Yarmouth were subjected to heavy fire from the planes.

Yugoslav Premier Reports

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 16 (AP). The trip of Premier Cvetkovic to Germany for a conference with Adolf Hitler has "secured the future of Yugoslavia," the minister without portfolio, Kulovec, said tonight.

In the first official speech mentioning the trip Kulovec said "the Yugoslav government had done everything necessary to maintain peace and will continue to do so in order to secure peace for our country.

"We must bring sacrifices but these sacrifices all are made on the altar of peace which we are longing ardently for."

Premier Cvetkovic told his cabinet today, in a 30-minute session, of his talk with Adolf Hitler and of Germany's wishes in regard to Yugoslavia.

Authoritative political circles expressed a feeling of certainty that Germany would march into Bulgaria but felt that Yugoslavia would escape war "unless something unforeseen happens."

Nazi Offer Rumored

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 16.—British sources reported tonight they had received information that Yugoslavia had been offered a scheme for the redistribution of Balkan territories during the Hitler-Cvetkovich talks.

Under this unconfirmed scheme, this country would be offered portions of Greece and Albania and would have to give up at least a section of Macedonia in exchange, and simultaneously align itself in the new order of Europe, as conceived in Berlin.

Bucharest Warning

Bucharest, Feb. 16 (AP).—The Bucharest radio tonight warned Black Sea merchant shipping that Rumanian territorial waters for 15 miles north and south of Constanza had been mined and were dangerous for shipping.

one of Japan's most important recent acts in the Far East. Saigon, in southern Indo-China, is 630 miles north of Singapore, within easy bomber range.

Britons Again Warned

3. Col. Ryoji Koike, chief of staff of Japanese forces in Indo-China and reputedly a strong supporter of Japan's demands on that French colony, arrived at Saigon to take over the Japanese command in the south. British and United States officials there expressed concern over the situation.

4. British authorities in the Far East reminded their subjects today that advice given last October to Britons in Japanese-occupied China—that they consider leaving—still stands.

5. Central News, a Chinese government agency, said at Chungking, China, it had "authoritative information" that Japan has stationed six divisions in Canton, Hainan Island, French Indo-China and the Spratley Islands, and four divisions in Formosa.

The Spratly Islands lie in the China Sea about midway between orth Borneo and the French Indo-China naval base at Cam Ranh Bay. Observers have said the Japanese night use them as the base for a blockade to cut off the British Gibraltar of the East, Singapore, 600 miles away, or for a move on Cam Ranh, or Saigon, metropolis of southern Indo-China.

Invasion Plan Denied

Japan announced March 31, 1939, that she had assumed jurisdiction over the Spratly Islands, 247 acres of coral reefs in the South China Sea, which France had claimed in 1933. They are adaptable as bases for seaplanes, submarines and small naval craft.

Meanwhile, a Bangkok radio broadcast said Japan was not seeking military or naval bases for invasion of British Malaya or other parts of the Far East.

In Australia, whose acting prime minister, A. W. Fadden, last week called the situation one of "utmost gravity," tension apparently was subsiding. An Australian radio broadcast, heard in New York, said no immediate development was expected.

Because of its strength and strategic position at the crossroads of the Pacific, Singapore is known as Britain's Far Eastern "Gibraltar."

At the southern tip of the Malayan Peninsula, it is on the trade route between the Pacific and Indian Oceans and, with the Philippines and Netherlands East Indies, forms a boundary of the China Sea. It is 1,440 miles southwest of Britain's other great Far Eastern station at Hongkong.

Britain's announcement of the minefields said: Vessels wishing to pass through the area must apply to British naval authorities at Singapore for the route. It added:

"Any vessel disregarding these instructions will do so at its own risk and peril."

Perhaps significantly, the Sunday Times foreshadowed the mining announcement with this recollection of the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-05:

"She (Japan) gained an immense advantage at the outset of her historic conflict with Russia by entering Vladivostok Harbor without a declaration of war and torpedoing at anchor the fleet of her unsuspecting enemy.

"She has not forgotten that stroke. Nor shall we forget it."

British Report 82 Killed in Sinking Of Southampton

London, Feb. 16 (AP).—The admiralty announced today that 82 officers and men lost their lives in the sinking of the 9,100-ton cruiser Southampton, which the British said had to be sent to the bottom of the Mediterranean after a Nazi dive-bomber attack January 10.

The total dead and wounded was given by the admiralty as 93. The vessel's normal complement was about 700. In her last engagement, the British said, the Italians lost a destroyer and the Germans at least a dozen dive-bombers.

The Southampton was reported hit in the same general engagement in which the British aircraft carrier Illustrious was damaged by dive-bombers.

The vessel, the fourth cruiser lost by the British since the outbreak of war, was said to have been sunk by the fire of other British ships after flames broke out while she was being towed, crippled, to port.

Petain Reported Ready to Quit Leadership

By the Associated Press

Another critical period in the government of Chief of State Petain, which has gone through several crises since it replaced the third republic last summer, appeared a possibility of the near future last night, with hints that Marshal Petain himself would be involved.

A drastically censored dispatch from the Associated Press staff correspondent in Vichy said that it was believed there that Petain would step aside in the event a deal projected by political circles between Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan and his predecessor, Pierre Laval, is consummated.

The dispatch gave rise to speculation that Petain might take another—and perhaps less active—role in the Vichy regime in that event.

Political circles in Vichy said Admiral Darlan, the current No. 2 man in Vichy, was expected to go to Paris in the near future to interview Laval.

These circles said that they believed in an effort to get Laval—who favors full collaboration with Germany—back into the cabinet Admiral Darlan would offer him the vice presidency of the council of ministers—the vice premiership, in fact.

In that case, it was said, Admiral Darlan would advance himself to the presidency of the council—the premier's post. Admiral Darlan already is foreign and navy minister and yesterday he was given charge of the interior ministry.

Here the mystery concerning the part Petain will play was injected.

The Vichy censor passed a fragmentary dispatch saying "it was believed that Marshal Petain would step aside to become——" and there the dispatch was stopped.

However, on February 6, the censor had permitted a dispatch saying that the latest political crisis which ended in Admiral Darlan's advancement might mean the marshal's retirement to a nonpolitical status similar to that of the presidents of the republic.

Another minister fell from Petain's cabinet yesterday. It was announced Marcel Peyrouton had resigned as minister of the interior and was named ambassador to Argentina. Admiral Darlan—and two secretaries—received the ministry of the interior.

A further move to bring together dissident Frenchmen was seen in the report that Lucien Chasseigne, French delegate to the armistice commission at Weisbaden, had left Vichy for Paris for what was believed to be an attempt to bring together chief of state Petain's national propaganda committee and the "popular national propaganda committee" formed in Paris recently with backing by Laval and Germany.

Life Insurance is a Career Today

An eighteen-year-old boy writes me: "I am entering college in the Fall, and want to plan my course with an eye to my business future. Will you please tell me frankly what qualities I should possess to be a successful life insurance agent?"

You should be a man with a sincere interest in and sympathy for human beings. If you sincerely like people and if you can get deep and enduring satisfaction from the knowledge that your efforts have served to lighten the economic burden and make more bearable the misfortunes of others—then you possess a most essential quality of the good life insurance agent.

You should be able to discipline yourself, and manage your own work. By the time you start your career, you will perhaps have taken courses on life insurance in college, and your company will no doubt put you through a course of intensive training—but after that you will be more or less on your own.

You will meet stiff competition, not only in selling, but in rendering service. Selling will be only a part of your job. You should acquire a knowledge of some of the essentials of economics, finance, business organization, taxes, estates. You will spend much time in advising your clients about their existing insurance and in keeping yourself informed about their changing circumstances. You must make yourself the authority on family security in your community.

Life insurance is not an easy path to great wealth; a few agents at the top, as in most other businesses and professions, do make substantial incomes; the average agent can look forward to a good living. If you want to "make a killing," you will not be happy in life insurance.

The American people believe in life insurance and are entitled to a professional type of service from agents. If this kind of work appeals to you there is a career for you in life insurance.

Belligerents Considering Hoover Plan

By the United Press

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Herbert Hoover, who directed the feeding of starving Europeans during the World War, tonight announced that the British and German governments have under consideration a plan to do the same in this war.

The plan, proposed by the Committee on Food for the Small Democracies, was described in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Hoover said it was proposed "a few weeks ago," as follows:

1. "An initial experiment in Belgium to test out whether these people can be saved without military advantage to either side."
2. "That this test comprise feeding only through soup kitchens, where the people come to get their food and thus there can be no question of feeding Germans."
3. "At the beginning, 1,000,000 adults receive half a pound of bread and a soup allowance and 2,000,000 children receive special food in addition—requiring about 50,000 tons a month, half of it breadstuffs and half meat, fats and food for children."
4. "That the German government agree there is to be no requisition of native food."
5. "Both governments to give relief ships immunity from attack."
6. "The whole to be under the supervision and checks of some neutral body."

Hoover delivered his address at a mass meeting in the Auditorium Theater. He read telegrams to the meeting from Gen. John J. Pershing and Admiral William V. Pratt, former Chief of Naval Operations.

Both Pershing and Pratt indorsed Hoover's plan for feeding the democracies and said food shipments could be made to Europe "without military loss or gain to either side."

Hoover argued that suspicion of German food faith could be controlled by limiting the stocks of supplies to enough for from three or four days to two weeks, to be stopped immediately if there should be German violation of the agreement.

"Most of these democracies," he said, "have the cash resources with which to pay for their food. They can secure its transport without using American ships in the war zone . . . Possibly a small financial credit to Finland and Poland should be given, but that would be infinitessimal in the light of other foreign loans being made in this war . . .

"We have surpluses some of which are rotting today and others for which our farmers have no market."

Hoover asserted that "hunger in the present war is coming faster and with more violence than even in the last war."

"After a year and a half of the present war," he said, "nearly 100,000,000 more people are short of food than after three years of the last war."

The most immediate danger, he continued, is "among the 70,000,000 people of the democracies which have been overrun by the German armies," which took part of their supplies, other portions of which were destroyed by retreating armies and battle.

"When the food supply falls to famine levels," he said, "people do not lie down and die from starvation. Long before they get to that point their physical resistance is so lowered by malnutition that they die of disease.

British Cool To Plan

Copyright by New York Times

London, Feb. 16.—Herbert Hoover's plan for supplying the small German-occupied nations with food came as no surprise to the British government. He personally outlined the scheme to the British ambassador to Washington, Lord Halifax, a few days ago and was told some of the serious objections it would entail, it was said in authoritative quarters today.

The opinion here is that Hoover may have misjudged this government's determination to enforce the blockade at all costs and to admit no foodstuffs into the continent.

No amount of argument convinces the British that Germany would not benefit by the admittance of food, or that Hoover would succeed in establishing "controlled supervision" in one of the few remaining neutral countries—almost certain to be German dominated.

Among the leading arguments that have been marshalled against Hoover's plan is the result of discussions with the "free governments" of the German-occupied nations who have settled in London. They have studied reports from their own people and have come to the conclusion that so long as the Germans are "looting fields, granaries and shops" and there is no danger of starvation, it would weaken the allied war effort to sanction food traffic.

Hopkins and Winant Confer of Hopkins' misssion and observations.

Hopkins had commented at New York that "I was sent on a specific mission by the President, and I have finished it."

"Was it only a mission of observation?" he was asked.

"It was more than that," he replied, but declined to explain.

Hopkins was met at the New York airfield by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia and his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Hopkins.

Sees Winant in New York

In New York, the President's representative spent several hours with John G. Winant, newly appointed Ambassador to London, presumably giving Winant some of his observations.

In the course of the conference Hopkins talked by long-distance phone with Secretary of State Hull here.

Winant later said Hopkins had been "very helpful," and added that the two would confer here again this week, before the ambassador departs for London.

Arriving in Washington, Hopkins had little to say before driving to the White House. He told reporters that he had seen Wendell L. Willkie in London and said, in answer to a question, that he considered the former Republican Presidential nominee "a pretty fine fellow." He would define his tasks abroad only to the extent that "I was sent to discuss things of mutual and urgent interest to our two countries."

He was enthusiastic about the Clipper plane trip home. "It's just like riding in a baby carriage," he said. "Not a bit rough."

Other Official Passengers

New York, Feb. 16.—Among the 13 passengers on the Yankee Clipper aboard which Harry Hopkins returned to America today was Daniel B. Dyer, of Salt Lake City, Utah, secretary to the American Consul General at Lisbon, who said that while he was in Germany recently he saw no indication of a break in morale.

He added that the Germans were prepared for a long war, "although they feel that the sooner it is over the better."

Also aboard were Lieut. Col. Willis R. Taylor and Lieut. Col. James G. Taylor, returning from a four-month mission as United States Air Corps observers in Europe.

Another passenger, Lieut. A. A. McComas, of the Irish Guards a British subject, said he was on a mission to Washington, but that he expected to return shortly "to our little war over there."

Giant Bomber For RAF Spans U. S. Nonstop

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 16.—Averaging 270 miles an hour without being "pushed," the first of 26 new four-motored bombers being built for Great Britain by Consolidated Aircraft Corporation landed today at LaGuardia Field after a nonstop flight from San Diego, Calif.

It was reported unofficially at the field that the camauflaged ship, bearing the R. A. F. insignia, would leave within 48 hours for a direct flight to England, which would be the first of its kind from New York by a bomber.

The 20-ton high-winged monoplane, built from a new design, can carry four tons of explosives from England to almost any sector of belligerent Europe and return, nonstop, it builders have asserted.

An aeronautical authority said today that all leading American combat plane types now being delivered to the Army and Navy "were provided with armor, leak-proof fuel tanks and fire power unsurpassed by planes operating in the European war theater."

Predicting a manufacturing rate of 1,500 military planes a month by mid-year, Col. John H. Jouett, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, said the production curve would continue to rise at an ever-accelerating pace.

"The aircraft manufactures have been given the biggest job ever handed an industry," he added in an N. B. C.-W. E. A. F. broadcast.

"This job is to build 37,000 military airplanes for the United States and Britain. Last fall a production goal of 1,000 military planes in the month of January, 1941, was set by Government officials. This figure was set despite the industry's sincere belief that that goal was far too optimistic considering available facilities. Last December a high Government official estimated that the industry would fail to meet its goal by 30 per cent.

"But it gives me great satisfaction to announce that the aircraft industry has done the impossible asked of it. Plane production in November was around 700; in December, 800; in January, 1941, over 1,000."

He said that in addition to the present 37,000-plane program, negotiations were approaching completion which would call for American manufacturers to build from 11,000 to 15,000 more planes for the United States air forces and an additional 12,000 for the British.

Workers See New Planes

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 16 (AP).—The U. S. Army lifted the cloak of secrecy today and permitted thousands of workers from this city's vast warplane plants to inspect the finished product of their own handiwork—latest model fighter ships.

Police estimated about 15,000 employes of the Curtiss Aeroplane Division and Bell Aircraft Corporation, their friends and families, filed through guarded gates at Buffalo Airport.

The workers also were given opportunity to inspect six twin-motored bombers flown from Langley Field, Va., in an inspection authorized by the War Department to stimulate enthusiasm among the workers and give them a chance to see "the real thing."

Hoover's Plan Rejected

As if rejecting former President Hoover's plans to feed famine-threatened peoples of German-invaded lnads, the petition said:

"We cannot directly help the conquered peoples whose food is being stolen to feed the German armies. They can be helped only by being freed from the yoke of oppression. But we can see to it that their only hope of liberation is not destroyed—as it would be if the British Isles should be reduced by starvation."

Whether Senator George would be able to open Senate debate on the House-approved aid-to-Britain measure depended on his recovery from a troubled throat which a physician last night directed him to rest. It had not been decided whether the committee chairman would be able to speak today.

He is scheduled to be followed by Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, and Assistant Republican Leader Austin, of Vermont, both supporting him in backing the legislation.

Two Oppose Bill

Senators Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, and Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, are listed to oppose the bill tomorrow. The schedule of speakers to follow these five has not been completed.

Administration strategy looking to prompt passage of the bill will be discussed at the White House this morning when President Roosevelt meets with Vice President Wallace, Senator Barkley, Speaker Rayburn and House Majority Leader McCormack.

The "food for Britain" petition quickly drew fire last night from Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, leader of the isolation forces fighting the lend-lease bill. Wheeler told the International News Service the "larder" proposal was "another move to take us closer to war" and an effort by those favoring war to win the sympathy of American farmers.

Noting that Vice President Wallace made public the food appeal, Wheeler added:

"It should seem strange to the American people that whenever petitions urging steps to take us closer to war are prepared, they are made public by the White House. But the White House does not make public the petitions it receives from peace-loving American citizens who plead with the President to keep us out of war.

"I don't think this latest petition will fool the American farmers. If the British are hard-pressed now to provide ship space to carry our munitions to England, where will they find space for food? Will they expect American ships to do this and will they look for American convoys?"

Defense Proceeds As Lost Army Trucks Find Route

Somerville, N. J., Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Part of the Nation's defense effort was sidetracked tonight, but everything was solved when someone found a road marker.

Twenty Army trucks were officially missing for hours and a State police alarm was broadcast for them. The rest of a 60-vehicle caravan en route from New York to Georgia rolled on without them. Nobody even noticed the loss for 30 miles.

Hours later Somerville police reported the missing trucks were back on the Georgia trail once more. They had taken a wrong turn at the Newark Airport.

Radio Profits Tax Urged by Union Chief

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (U.P.).—John B. Haggerty, president of the International Allied Printing Trades Union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, tonight proposed that his organization sponsor legislation that would tax the advertising revenue of radio stations.

Haggerty was here in connection with the meeting of the A. F. of L. Executive Council, although not a member of it.

Haggerty said his union had made a five-year study of advertising and had decided to lay before publishers and operators of printing plants proposals for taxing the income of radio stations. He said the union's survey showed the revenue of radio stations had increased from 2 per cent of the total of advertising expenditures in 1929 to 35 per cent in 1940.

Munitions Board, OPM Divide Priorities Plan Management

A working agreement between the Army and Navy munitions board and the priorities division of the office of production management covering the operation of the priorities system and the relationship of the two production control groups was announced yesterday by Edward R. Stettinius, jr., director of the priorities division of OPM.

Under the arrangement, the priorities division and the munitions board will divide administraton of the system, with the strictly military needs considered by the military board and the general industrial and civilian needs administered by the priorities division.

The announcement came as Leon Henderson, head of the division of price stabilization of the National Defense Advisory Commission, issued the first of a series of price schedules, intended to prevent profiteering in second-hand machine tools.

Henderson said that cases had been brought to the attention of the price stabilization division where machine tools had been priced at twice their original cost 30 or more years ago. In many instances the prices asked for the second-hand tools exceeded that for new ones, thus threatening the entire machine tool price structure, stimulating disastrous inflation, and placing undue burdens upon the Government, thereby weakening the defense effort, he said.

Henderson made public copies of a schedule to be sent to all firms handling second hand machine tools, giving them the maximum percentage of the original cost which they might charge for tools based on their age, and also a form which dealers must fill out every month on their transactions during the previous month in second hand tools.

The division of authority over priorities between the Army and Navy Board and the priorities division of OPM will give the former the same control over all items such as guns, tanks, airplanes and ammunition as they exercised in the past.

The Munitions Board will also handle the extension of priority ratings down to the first subcontractor on the critical list.

On the other hand, authority over priority ratings for all raw materials, for extensions of ratings below the first subcontractor, over items not on the critical list, and over the general field of civilian and commercial needs will lie with the priorities division.

Stettinius pointed out that while the priority certificates issued by his division were mandatory, in the sense that they could be enforced, the priorities division hoped that the contractors affected would cooperate voluntarily.

The administration of priorities by the division is handled in the five following sections: Minerals and metals; chemicals; commercial aircraft; tools and equipment, and general products.

Meanwhile, the War Department disclosed that new equipment for augmented defenses against air raids would include 4,000 trailers of a new type for transportation of 60-inch searchlights and their power plants.

The new trailers, a four-wheel tandem tilting type, are equipped with independent wheel springs which permit them to maintain a fairly level course when traveling on rough ground, thus minimizing damage to delicate parts.

Uruguay Names 2 Missions to Buy U. S. Arms, Planes

Montevideo, Uruguay, Feb. 16 (AP).—The Uruguayan government designated two missions today to go to the United States to buy arms and airplanes and a third was said to be planned to purchase small warships and minelayers for coastal defense.

This was Uruguay's first move toward defense since an internal dispute several months ago over the issue of cooperation with the United States in establishment of hemisphere defense bases.

The government also assigned four officers to training in the United States Air Corps and ordered 95 others each to Brazil and Argentina for training.

Uruguay has appropriated 7,500,000 pesos, about $5,000,000, to start her purchases and also is prepared for construction of an arms and munitions factory, a civil and military airdrome and a naval base.

Nazi Plot Against U. S. Is Reported

which greeted Vice President Henry Wallace when he arrived in Mexico recently on a good will mission, riots, strikes, political troubles extending even to revolts, and serious attacks on United States diplomatic missions and on their personnel.

The party, the informants said, is composed of men only, and for each member there is a rifle, military training, and education in espionage and sabotage activity.

'Bales of Propaganda'

They said the party, in cooperation with Russians, Communists, Spanish Falangists and radicals generally might attempt simultaneous attacks on United States diplomats in several Latin countries to create "diplomatic incidents" and to attempt to wreck the good neighbor policy.

These attacks would be on the theory that if the United States failed to take stern action it could be called cowardly; if it did, the cry would be raised throughout Latin America that it was "picking on" little Latin-American nations.

The United States headquarters for the party was said to be in Philadelphia, but the informants refused to give the address. From there, they said, money and "bales of propaganda" were sent into Latin-American countries.

(John F. Sears, head of the Philadelphia Federal Bureau of Investigation, declared there, "I have no comment to make at this time.")

The informants said they had been told there were 150,000 members in Mexico City alone, but they admitted this figure was ridiculous, since the city has a population of only 1,500,000.

Wallace, on his trip to Mexico recently, said there was "a whale of a lot" of Nazi activity here. Informed quarters said many Nazi agents had arrived in Mexico in recent months.

Ships arriving recently from Japan have disembarked numerous Germans. Increased propaganda activity recently has been aimed at creating suspicion of the United States' good neighbors policy and at spreading a whispering campaign that it shortly would go to war and drag Mexico into the European conflict.

President Manuel Avila Camacho has often expressed friendship for the United States and dislike for totalitarian policies.

CIO Union Threatens Strike Over Kelvinator Hiring Plans

By International News Service

Racine, Wis., Feb. 16.—An unusual demand put forward by the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers Union tonight threatened a strike in the three Wisconsin plants of the Nash Kelvinator Corporation. Approximately 4,000 persons are employed in the three plants.

The dispute arose over plans for reopening the Racine plant, beginning tomorrow, to manufacture United States Army trailers under an initial contract of $3,000,000. The union demanded the Racine unit employ the Racine men now working at the firm's Kenosha plant, as a result of closing the Racine works in 1937.

R. A. Devlieg, Wisconsin works manager, declared transferring the men from Kenosha to Racine would be unfair. Kenosha City officials joined in the controversy, demanding that the Racine men be transferred to provide jobs for Kenosha unemployed. The union authorized its executive board to call a strike vote.

The third Nash plant in Wisconsin is at Milwaukee. Government conciliators were on hand tonight, endeavoring to settle the dispute.

Selberling Strike Averted

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 16 (AP).—Threat of a strike at the Selberling Rubber Co. was ended tonight with the United Rubber Workers (C. I. O.) local unanimously approving a new wage agreement calling for general increases.

N. H. Eagle, international organizer, said the terms provided raises of 3 cents an hour for hourly workers, 2½ per cent for male piece workers and 4 per cent for female piece workers.

The local authorized a strike in a February 5 vote after the company refused demands for an 8½ per cent wage boost. Strike action then was delayed pending approval of the international executive board and the outcome of negotiations directed by Michael J. Crosetto, Federal conciliator.

Selberling has been turning out 7,500 gas mask face blanks daily and producing bullet-sealing tires and tubes for the national defense program.

Fears Attack on Labor

By the Associated Press

On the eve of initial Congressional hearings on legislation to curb strikes in defense industries, Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., declared yesterday that an "attack against labor organizations is becoming most acute" in many State legislatures.

Murray sent a letter to all C. I. O. unions asserting that the attack was centered on a "model" bill recommended for passage by State legislatures to penalize sabotage in defense plants.

The House Judiciary Committee will hear testimony today from Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's antitrust division, at the opening of hearings on a variety of so-called antistrike bills.

Members said Arnold would be questioned chiefly about the department's activities in prosecuting labor organizations under the antitrust laws and the effect of a recent Supreme Court decision holding that unions cannot be prosecuted under the Sherman Act for activities growing out of jurisdictional disputes.

Committee members planned to call William S. Knudsen, defense production chief, and his associate, Sidney Hillman, later in the week and said that Westbrook Pegler, the columnist, also would be heard.

House to Get Bill Modifying Profits Tax

A bill to modify the excess profits tax legislation and remove hardships created by some provisions of the law will probably be introduced in the House today. Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said last night.

Although Doughton would not discuss particulars of the bill, it is expected particularly to provide for the removal of the so-called "basket" clause which imposed on the Treasury the task of determining most of the adjustments for abnormalities which would come up in the attempt to levy a new tax on excess profits, which had never before been tried out.

At the same time Doughton said that the House would probably agree to two amendments which had been made in the Senate to the House-approved measure to raise the debt limit to $65,000,000,000 from the present $49,000,000,000 limit. The masure would then be sent on to the President for his signature without going to conference.

The National Economy League meanwhile proposed that a special tax of 10 per cent be levied on individual incomes in order to put the defense program "substantially on a cash basis."

Wherever possible, the tax should be collected at the source, that is, when salaries, dividends and interest are paid, the league said. Self-employed persons, such as farmers and professional men, would be required to file special returns.

The recommendation was based on a study by Harley L. Lutz, professor of public finance, Princeton University.

"By using the proposed tax in addition to the existing conventional taxes," Lutz said, "it should be possible to come very close to a cash basis for 1942."

Asserting that borrowing was the only alternative, Lutz said that borrowing from individuals would require compulsory loans or such high interest rates that outstanding Treasury bonds would decline in value. Borrowing from banks, he added, would "add to the purchasing power of the people without a corresponding increase in the production of goods they can buy."

Jewish Aid Drive Praised By Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 16.—A Nation-wide campaign to aid distressed Jews throughout the world, launched today, was termed by President Roosevelt "the cause of all Americans, for democracy must begin with man's humanity to man."

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York and former Premier Paul van Zeeland of Belgium spoke at the opening meeting of Jewish leaders from all sections of the United States. The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee will head the campaign.

"Through the activities of your organization and other American agencies of mercy," the President's message said, "mercy, dignity, self-respect and hope for a better order of things have been restored to millions of men and women. They have thus been reminded that they are not alone in their travail and suffering; that free men and women of good will hope for their liberation and in the meantime are ready to come to their assistance."

J. C. Hyman, the committee's executive vice chairman, said a minimum of $12,600,000 was needed during the next six months for Jews in approximately 50 areas.

Edward M. M. Warburg, son of the late Felix M. Warburg, philanthropist, was named chairman, succeeding his father.

Social Agencies Council Will Hear Mrs. Doyle

Two Washington physicians and an educator will discuss ear, eye and heart troubles in children at today's luncheon of the health division of the Council of Social Agencies.

The luncheon, at 12:30 p. m. at the Seventeenth Street Y. W. C. A., will hear Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, discuss prevention of blindness.

Col. Roosevelt, McNutt Debate Pacific Policy

Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Paul V. McNutt, both former governors general of the Philippines, came to words last night over whether the United States should abandon the Islands.

"As the independence of the Philippine Islands has been granted, I believe that country, when the day arrives, should be treated as an independent nation," the smooth-talking son of the rough-riding President told the American Forum of the Air.

If war with Japan comes, he declared, the whole objective of the United States should be to win and not be "sidetracked" by such tasks as protection of the Philippines.

Calling for "a strong policy in the Far East," McNutt said the Philippines were a necessary bulwark of our Pacific "frontier."

The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, was an attentive member of the audience at the Willard Hotel, from which the forum was broadcast over a Nation-wide Mutual Broadcasting System network.

Robert Aura Smith and William Henry Chamberlain, former newspaper correspondents in the Far East, participated in the debate with McNutt and Roosevelt.

Speaking against giving up our authority over the Philippines while retaining the responsibility of protecting them, Col. Roosevelt declared:

"I do not believe the United States should engage in knight errantry for the world. The job is too great and would only spell destruction for our people . . . On the other hand, we must guard our evident interests. I believe these would be jeopardized should Japan establish a great, militaristic Asiatic empire, embracing the southern Asiatic countries and the surrounding islands."

In case of war with Japan, he said, the Philippines would be more of a liability than an asset, adding: "We mustn't leave our bases and attack, but throttle from the home country."

Sees Japan Bluffing

"But," Col. Roosevelt said, "I do not believe Japan wants to engage in war with us. . . . As long as Japan believes we are bluffing she will crowd us. The great danger lies in the fact that in so doing she may inadvertently cross the line and be in a position from which she cannot withdraw."

Roosevelt and McNutt agreed that aid should be given to China.

"For America," said McNutt, "the Sino-Japanese war now assumes the character of a preliminary action on the outer defense line of the Philippines, and hence becomes inseparable from our hope for peace. Therefore, all economic help given to China now means inherent strengthening of our own outer defenses."

In opposition of giving up the Philippines, McNutt said the United States needed them not only for defense but for "a market in the long run."

Source of War Material

He said six of the 17 "strategic" materials essential to defense of the United States had to pass through the islands en route to the United States: tin, rubber, tungsten, quinine, silk and mica. Three others, manila fiber, manganese and chromium, have their origin in the Philippines, he said.

Smith, New York Times correspondent and writer of "Our Future in Asia," declared:

Our policy in the Pacific must necessarily be one with our policy in the Atlantic, and it must continue to be resistance to the utmost to Adolf Hitler and all his works, even if that includes the Japanese militarist party and its 'immutable' Axis alliance."

Chamberlin, former foreign correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor and now a lecturer and writer, warned against "the dangerous and strategic situation that might arise if the American Navy were engaged with the Japanese in the neighborhood of Singapore and Manila at a time when there was a sudden collapse of Great Britain."

1,500 Men Attend Service In Cathedral

More than 1,500 men in Washington Cathedral yesterday heard Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo assert that the present world's darkness can't snuff out democracy's candle.

They came from 80 business, professional and civic clubs in Greater Washington for a "Reaffirmation of Faith" service, which opened with an impressive choral and clerical procession into the tall-columned "house of worship for all people."

Heading the marchers were flag-bearers with emblems of the District, Maryland and Virginia; the Protestant Episcopal Church; the Washington Diocese and the Cathedral Church of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Dr. Sizoo, who is pastor of the St. Nicholas' Collegiate Church in New York City, former pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, and member of the Washington Cathedral Council, used for his text a passage from Jeremiah—"Let us build up the walls of Jerusalem."

"The rebuilding of international goodwill, understanding, compassion and religion is the only hope of the world in these darkened days," he declared, making a plea for an active and awakened democracy to fight the doctrine of slavery, hatred and totalitarianism." He added that "history is not Hitler."

Assisting in the services, which took place at the Evensong hour, were Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, and the Rev. C. S. Abbott, of the Church of the Good Shepherd.

300 Attend Dinner Given By Jewish Veterans' Auxiliary

The problem of patriotic Americans in today's crisis were discussed by three speakers last night at the second annual dinner of the Ladies Auxiliary of Jewish War Veterans Post No. 58, held at the Willard Hotel. More than 300 members of the organization and their guests attended.

Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the editor and publisher of The Post, told the gathering: "We must take measures at once to make our Nation inwardly stronger if we are to face hostile nations with the fortitude and wisdom that our position in the world demands of us . . .

"To prepare for the future, we need to put our own house in order first by establishing a new and greater sense of responsibility for the successful functioning of our social structure.

"We need to acquire and to help other people to acquire a sense of security that comes not only from without, but from within; a security that arises from the feeling of belonging to the social structure, of being a definite and necessary part of our community life."

She pointed out the value of the group she addressed being "already organized for such an effort because you have long devoted yourselves to a similar task."

Rabbi Aryeh Lev, of the office of Chief of Army Chaplains, warned that "welfare and social organizations are today facing their greatest challenge.

"If they fail today, the social welfare work outside the Government camps also will be taken over by the Government, through a new three or four letter agency."

Discussing the functions of the Army chaplains' service in strengthening the morale of selectees and aiding in their adaptation to Army life, he said that civilians have a "responsibility" to inform them of the benefits of the chaplain's work.

"It's up to us as social agencies to see that men entering the service have the proper moral atmosphere," he emphasized.

Mrs. Falk Harmel, a representative of the national organization, paid tribute to the mothers of Washington and Lincoln as types of personalities needed today.

Mrs. Maurice Folsom served as mistress of ceremonies. She was introduced by the president of the organization, Mrs. Mitchell Novak. Commander of the post, Nat Silverberg, extended his greetings.

A dance and entertainment followed.

Guests of honor included Dr. Ivy Pelzman, Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Areyah Lev, Falk Harmel, Miss Ruth Schepsle, Miss Faye Laskey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rose, Maurice Folsom, Mitchell Novak, Mrs. Nat Silverberg, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Israel Orlove, Mr. and Mrs. Israel Reiskin, Mrs. Irving Gensberg, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Miller.

Lithuanians Here Celebrate National Day

Americans of Lithuanian ancestry sang their national anthem together here yesterday on the twenty-third anniversary of Lithuania's declaration of independence, and pledged themselves to make that document a reality again.

Referring to the nation's present subjugation by Russia, Albert W. Shupienis, president of the American Lithuanian Society of Washington, expressed confidence that Lithuania would again somehow regain liberation and urged the society to work toward that end.

"It is only a temporary snuffing out; the fires are still smoldering," he told 150 members of the society at a breakfast meeting at the Willard Hotel.

The Lithuanian Minister, Zadeikis, greeting the society and speaking in Lithuanian, reminded that his nation's representatives are still here and working for Lithuania. Dr. Juozas Kajeckos, formerly attached to the Lithuanian Legation in Berlin and now with the legation here, described incidents associated with the declaration.

"The reports of refugees indicate that the Soviets are evacuating from Lithuania into the interior of Russia all machinery from the industrial establishments. It reminds one of the Russo-German war of 1914-1915," one of the local Lithuanians said yesterday.

The society was guest at a tea in the legation between 5 p. m. and 7 p.m. yesterday.

W.C.T.U. Pays Tribute to Founder Here

Annual tribute to Frances E. Willard was paid yesterday at her statue in Statuary Hall, the Capitol, by a crowd of Woman's Christian Temperance Union members, headed by Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, of Chicago, the organization's national president.

Speaking of Miss Willard's career, Miss Elizabeth A. Smart, W. C. T. U. national legislative director, recalled Miss Willard's words, "but, per contra, the liquor traffic and the drink curse are undermining our civilization."

Both Miss Smart and Mrs. Smith recounted high points in Miss Willard's long activities against liquor, and Mrs. William J. Peters, director of the Flower Mission, placed a wreath. "How Firm a Foundation," Miss Willard's favorite hymn, was sung.

Betty Jane Watt, of the Loyal Temperance Legion, read a passage from the Scripture, and Frances Birge, of the Youth Temperance Council, prayed.

Wanted: Housing

The report of the Work Projects Administration on available Washington housing shows an acute situation in the making. In April, 1940, the United States Census revealed that 5.4 per cent of all housing units in the District were for sale or rent. By this month the ratio had been reduced to 2.5 per cent—already far below the rate considered necessary to take care of a moving day even in times of normal influx.

Reduced to figures, vacancies in the District now amount to 3,400 units. These would be far too few even if they were of the types most urgently needed. But, according to the report, only about 125 units were found for rent at $20 to $29 a month, and about 450 at $30 to $39. About half the vacancies—some 1,700 units—are in the class under $50. The 5,500 rooms for rent in occupied dwellings will soon be exhausted, for new construction is not of the boarding-house variety.

If all the homes for rent were immediately available for newcomers—as they cannot be if present residents move in a normal fashion—they still would not begin to take care of the workers pouring into Washington. The reports of the Civil Service Commission show that Federal employes alone are arriving at the rate of three or four thousand a month, and there is every reason to believe that this influx will continue for well over a year. If we may rely on the long-time ratio, an equal number of private employes will be added. Some relief may be felt when 8,000 employes are released by the Census Bureau, but even so the indication is for a net gain in working population of over 60,000 in the next twelve months.

According to the Coordinator of Defense Housing, private operators built here in 1939 something more than 13,000 dwelling units. It may be assumed the rate of private construction has greatly increased. In December the coordinator directed the building of some 1,700 units in Washington and vicinity, and this month 1,000 more, in answer to special and immediate needs of the Army and Navy. But when we take into consideration the large proportion of private building which rents at higher prices than the incoming workers can afford, it is easy to see how far short all these operations must fall. Presumably the recommendations of the Housing Coordinator based on the general survey are soon to be issued. Whatever his division finds to suggest, the task of housing Washington's population in the months to come will be monumental.

Wire-Tapping

Hearings on the Hobbs and Walter bills before the House Judiciary Committee clearly point to the need for re-examination of the present water-tight ban on wire-tapping. This ban dates only from the enactment of the Federal Communications Law of 1934. Prior to the interpretation of this act by the Supreme Court in 1937 wire-tapping was occasionally employed by the Department of Justice in investigating serious crimes. Such interception of telephone messages was held not to constitute a violation of constitutional rights. It is only the Communications Act which stands in the way of carefully restricted wire-tapping by the FBI.

There is ground for doubt that Congress intended to cut off wire-tapping for law enforcement purposes when it adopted new regulatory provisions for the radio, telegraph and telephone systems. In any event the Judiciary Committee has shown good judgment in reviewing the issue in the light of our present defense problems. Certainly Congress should not unduly hamper the Department of Justice in ferreting out spies, saboteurs and Fifth Columnists. And the assurance to kidnapers and other criminals that their use of the telephone will be unmolested by officers of the law is a questionable policy.

Of course, indiscriminate wire-tapping should never be tolerated. But ample safeguards can be thrown around a limited use of that weapon against dangerous criminals. The Hobbs bill would permit interception of messages when "the head of an executive department" found reasonable ground for believing that a felony under Federal law had been committed or might be committed. Congressman Walter's bill would require a permit from a judge or commissioner. In this way wire-tapping could be placed on much the same basis as is search of private homes and seizure of property. Of the two methods resort to the courts seems preferable, though Mr. Walter's bill may be too restricted in other respects. Certainly it indicates that limited use of wire-tapping can be authorized to track down spies and other criminals without any real danger that the privacy of our homes will be lost.

Beginning The Debate

The eyes of the country will turn to the Senate today as the legislators begin their deliberations upon the lend-lease bill. Every Senator, we dare say, will be conscious of the high significance of his duty. Almost every one of them, moreover, is in sympathy with the primary object of the measure. This is to throw our resources into the struggle against the encircling menace of Hitlerism—the menace which has become a world-wide challenge to our security and our institutions.

Only in recent months has the Hitler threat to "our world" become sun-clear. Now we feel toward our fighting friends, as Daniel Webster put it a century ago, "like vessels on a common tide, propelled by the gales at different rates, according to their several structures and managements, but all moved forward by one mighty current." Such a recognition accounts for the backing for this bill which is reflected in the popular polls. The delay, however, has meant that our resources are only yet half-mobilized for the struggle. This is one reason for the hope that the vote on this measure will be overwhelming. A national policy generates forces in its declaration no less than in its execution. If the policy is affirmed overwhelmingly, if it is bipartisan, the vote will echo throughout the capitals of our storm-wracked world. It will buoy up our friends, it will confound our enemies.

To get this unity the Administration has shown a commendable hospitality to amendments to the lend-lease measure. But there's a definite yardstick for amendments that would sustain the purpose of the measure and amendments that would hamstring it. It is: Does an amendment mar the effectiveness of our aid. Aid as such is an idle and a dangerous preoccupation. Effective aid is the aid that makes sense, and no other policy is imaginable at a time when the American people have decided that their own destiny is involved in the Hitler challenge.

Back To Beards

One of the most formidable problems of modern civilization, one which up to now has baffled all human ingenuity, seems on the way to solution at last. We mean the problem of what to do with old safety razor blades. The solution, like all strokes of genius, turns out to be absurdly simple: men will simply cease to shave.

Everyone who gets around much nowadays must have remarked the gradual increase in the number, variety and luxuriance of beards on exhibition in railroad terminals, theater foyers and other such public places. Moreover, these beards appear oftenest on the faces of men still on the lee side of 30. Only rarely does one behold a beard "all snowy white" and still more rarely one "sable silvered." In other words, the fashion is rising with the rising generation. Thus it will take some time before beards can become, what they were in Sixteenth Century Europe, the rule rather than the exception. But the movement is undoubtedly gaining impetus from the example of popular authors like Mr. Christopher Morley and Mr. Rex Stout, who for reasons best known to themselves have put away their razors and let come what may in the way of foliage.

It would be interesting, though perhaps futile, to trace the various historico-cultural influences which have brought about this unpredicted revival of the art of facial horticulture. A rather obvious suggestion is that the movement is one of subconscious protest against feminine encroachments into hitherto exclusively male preserves. Growing a beard is, like cooking and poetry, one of the few remaining fields in which the accomplishments of men far outshine those of women. The female sex, for all its amazonian ambition, has never yet produced a Merrillion, a Shakespeare or a pair of Smith Brothers. Possibly, however, the revival is indicative of the warlike temper of the times. The association of beards and military ardor goes back to mythology. Not only Gods like Mars and Jove but heroes like Agamemnon, king of men, Menelaus of the loud war cry and Hector, the horse tamer, are represented by tradition as mildly or generously bearded. This tradition must have had much to do with the popularity of beards among the great captains of the Renaissance. Perhaps it also inspired the tropical and semitropical jowls and chins of our own Civil War commanders.

All the same, the tradition seems to have been built on something of a fallacy. If we except the Arabs, the Seljuk and Ottoman Turks, the great conquering races appear to have been smoothly shaven or very nearly so. The beard of Jenghis Khan was as unimpressive as that of Gen. George B. McClellan. On the other hand Alexander forced his men to imitate his habit of shaving, and the great Scipio Africanus, according to Pliny, was the one who introduced the habit of daily shaving among the Romans. King Harold's men, after discovering the Normans to be "shaven and shorn like priests," thought it would be an easy task to push them back into the sea, but how grievously they were misled! No doubt poor Gen. Bergonzoli was under a similar misapprehension about the British in Africa.

As to the value of beards in the other leading occupation of homo sapiens, the authorities appear to differ. There is, for example, the proverb, quoted by the lady in one of Maupassant's tales, that "a kiss without a mustache is like an egg without salt." On this basis a kiss from, say, Capt. John Smith or Henry Wadsworth Longfellow would be the equivalent at least of several well seasoned omelets. On the other hand many women doubtless feel as did Shakespeare's Beatrice, who said she would as soon "lie in the woolen" as endure a bearded husband. Maybe it's just a question of what one is used to, or maybe it has a deeper psychological significance. Perhaps we'd better refer the matter respectfully to our Miss Haworth.

Jitters In Tokyo

The conversations held Saturday by Secretary Hull with the envoys of Great Britain, Australia and the Netherlands reflect the common concern felt by the four nations in the rapidly growing crisis in the Far East. These talks should also serve as a pointed reminder to Japan that her dream of acquiring a rich imperial domain in southeastern Asia may suffer a rude awakening. The community of interest displayed by the United States, the British Empire and the Netherlands in what is happening and is likely to happen in southeastern Asia promises to have a sequel in a parallelism of action whose possibilities are not pleasant for the Island Empire.

It is significant in this connection that the capital where the greatest alarm was manifested during the past week over the possibility of a clash in the Pacific was neither Washington nor London but Tokyo. Tensions developed rapidly following the latest suggestion by the United States that Americans in the Far East should leave for home as soon as possible, the dark warnings of crisis heard in Australia, and other storm signals. Not least important was President Roosevelt's statement to his press conference the other day that an involvement of the American fleet in the Pacific would not result in any diminution of aid to Britain. This statement, which scarcely produced a ripple of interest in this country, had the effect of a bombshell in Japan. The Japanese tried subsequently to find comfort from another statement by the American Chief Executive in which he minimized reports of an impending crisis. Yet the author of the war of nerves in the Pacific found its own nerves so ragged that the spokesman of the Cabinet Information Bureau issued a statement describing the reports of an impending clash as "exaggerated." And an experienced observer, Mr. Hugh Byas, declared, in a dispatch to the New York Times that "inner circles" believe that "the sudden vision of war with America . . . has crystallized all the fluid opposition that hitherto has feebly and ineffectively resisted those who wanted to have the southward expansion policy pursued at top speed."

Too much faith cannot be placed in the wishes of the Japanese people to remain at peace with the United States. The decision rests not in their hands but in the hands of the Japanese Army and Navy chieftains who are far more likely to be deterred from embarking on an aggressive policy in southeastern Asia by the realization that it would meet with the firm resistance of all interested powers. That is why a clear and complete understanding between the United States, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and the Dutch East Indies regarding the course to be pursued in the face of Japan's southward pressure should be speeded up at this juncture.

THE MADMAN SINGS.

There is no time for serenades of madness.
A man of hungry eyes and fevered brain
Leads blinded flocks to caverns of great sadness
Where melodies are haunting and insane.

Poor sheep. Stone walls alone can hear their bleating,
And stone holds jealously their frightened cries
Within the cave's great gloom. The shadows meeting
Tremble on the madman's melodies.

The song was born in bleak and barren places:
The lifeless room, the lonesomeness of night,
The memory of sharp accusing faces,
The phantoms in the unforgiving light.

Now through the groaning belly of the darkness
The madman sings. He grins and weaves his head.

Within the cavern's overladen starkness
About the madman's feet the sheep are dead.

Thoughts Inspired By Art Exhibit

Is this a degenerate age we have arrived at? In the great out-of-doors, all about us, nature is beautiful where man has not destroyed that beauty. What of our "modern American art?" Would anyone call it any resemblance to nature, or anything beautiful? Nature evidently does not inspire modern artists to portray her marvelous harmony of gorgeous colors and beauty! What an object lesson we have in the work of the Great Artist who put the marvelous design upon the wings of the moth and butterfly, with their wonderful symmetry and harmony of color! All the insect world is teeming with gorgeous color and beauty. In the world of birds we find the same color attraction. Even the common pigeon has beautiful iridescent coloring on his neck plumage.

It is the same if we look at the creatures beneath the ripples of the brook or the waves of the sea; the same Artist has not slighted His work there either.

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene,
The dark, unfathomed caves of ocean bear;
Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

"Dame Fashion," which enslaves our women of today, has the same urge—get as far from nature as possible—the Great Designer of the flowers, birds and insects made a grievous mistake! The delicate pink of lips and fingernails, which so beautifully harmonizes with a natural skin, must be covered up with a blood red, which gives an artist the blind staggers, like a red traffic signal we see before anything else!

Many of us can remember when we heard some beautiful music. Some birds are wonderful songsters. Today we turn on the radio, and between advertisements we get some "jazz," or "swing music," or long groans of "croonings" which no barnyard, or other animals I have ever heard, can successfully imitate. It is marvelous that any lovers of good music can listen to such stuff! I remember that Mme. Schumann-Heink said that jazz was not fit for German ears. The old Greeks made the most beautiful statuary of all time. The flowing draperies on the human figure followed the form. It was the form that was beautiful, not its covering. Can anything be put over a baby's dimpled arm that can make it more beautiful?

If anyone wants to see to what depths "modern art" has degenerated, I would advise him to visit the show of oil painting by "Washington artists" now on view at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

I have heard it said that all art is one. The beauty of music, form and color all belong to the same love of the beautiful. Surely no real artist should seek to get away from it!

Air Power And Hemisphere Isolation

Col. Lindbergh in his statement to the House committee on the lease-lend bill laid down the broad principle that aviation decreases the security of nations within a continent against each other, but increases the security of the continent as a whole against foreign invasion. In other words, air power favors a land aggressor but it also favors a coastal defender against attack from oversea.

This is an important principle. It has not yet been fully tested out. The Battle of Britain will ultimately throw further light on it, but this will not be a conclusive test, either, since Great Britain is not a continent but an island outpost of the European Continent.

But the principle as stated means that the rise of airpower has put a premium upon internal unification of continents and that, at the same time, it tends to promote the isolation of continents from each other. Hence it tends to split the world up into a set of great, regional, self-sufficient empires, independent of and hostile to each other—the Hitlerian theory of world organization, only that in the Hitler dogma one of the regions is to dominate all the others. (This idea, incidentally, rather undermines the basic theory.)

If such a view of world politics and economics follows automatically from the mere fact of air power, it is manifestly useless to struggle for a free world order based on law; any such order has become impossible and obsolete.

But a little reflection leads to the conclusion that the implications of aeronautical progress are not so sweeping, the matter of continental unifications not so simple. Consolidations of continents, in fact, are dependent upon other factors than air power, and the role of sea power still appears to be dominant.

Take the two Americas, for example. Col. Lindbergh uses the term "continental" as equivalent to "hemispheric." But the Western Hemisphere is actually composed of two continents, whose centers of population are as far apart as North America and Europe, and which are joined only by a narrow neck of land highly unfavorable to military operations or to ordinary communications.

South America can be effectively approached from North America only by water. It can be effectively defended only by command of the sea approaches, to transport the necessary men and supplies. There is no other way to maintain the "reasonable" land and naval forces which Col. Lindbergh specifies—South America being unable to provide them herself, or the planes either. In other words, the Western Hemisphere cannot be either consolidated or isolated, and it cannot depend upon air power for defense if it loses command of the seas.

Then take the case of Europe. The rise of aviation probably makes necessary the unification by some method of a continent so overpopulated and split up into so many conflicting national elements. And in the absence of internal collapse, Europe—unlike South America—can be defended by air power. But the continent is still vulnerable to blockade. It is very seriously deficient in essential raw materials that must be brought in by boat.

If the blockade of Europe can be maintained, it is improbable that Hitler's attempt at forcible unification can succeed. He must gain control of the sea to insure success.

In sum, the rise of air power may make the unification of certain continents highly desirable, but does not necessarily make it feasible. Air power does not make continental—or hemispheric—isolation either desirable or practicable. Sea power is probably still dominant for both continental defense and transmarine offensives.

Hence, the joint Anglo-American domination of the seas—based upon both numerical superiority and possession of the major naval bases—is still to be viewed as the main desideratum of American national policy. LLOYD M. GRAVES.

The Convoy Issue

"After me, the deluge!" exclaimed King Louis of France, and indeed it came!

With folly and abandon our Nation is now rushing nearer and nearer to the precipice. And remember, once over the precipice and in the war it is we who will underwrite its prolongation. We will be tied into it, not through attack on us, but because we send warships to seek it!

Make no mistake, if our battleships act as escort to convoys—2,000 or 3,000 miles eastward of where they belong, we will be (not as we are now) actually at war—a war which our entrance will prolong for years and of utter demolition. We will have "stuck our neck out." We will have asked for it! Among our costs will be the dead, the maimed, the insane, the wrecked homes, the widows, the orphans and an impoverished Nation loading debt upon its children's grandchildren.

I believe in aid to Britain, but with no extension of hazard over methods already used. Nor to prolong the war by our aid beyond helping the British assure their safety in their homelands on the British Isles.

Unless we seek trouble by sending our own warships, or in the highly improbable event of attack upon our outpost islands or our continent, we will keep out of war. Unless Washington (as it protests it does not) wishes war—and thrusts our people into it.

Our participation in foreign waters would inevitably mean foreign soil, and its years of agony would end with suffering and demoralization here and the crushing of European humanity into an unthinkable chaos—a basis for new wars.

Let us devoutly pray and so act that we do not again commit the crime of spilling the blood of our American boys upon the soil of Europe.

Our Neighbors

Occasionally there is published in certain magazines of the United States photographic and written information about the South American countries which not only does not reflect the real situation in these countries but also places them before the opinion of the American people in an unfavorable light and without taking into consideration the enormous development which has taken place in these countries in the last few years.

These publications prejudice the betterment of relations between the countries of the Western Hemisphere and wound the feeling of the Latin American people, hindering the efforts of the governments, institutions and individuals in creating a closer union on the American continent.

I am confident that there is no intention on the part of the editors to be anything but helpful, but one-sided stories do not have the desired effect.

I believe, then, that periodicals of the importance of The Washington Post should call this to the attention of the public and it is with this in mind that I address this communication to you.

Love And Hate

Is there any wonder that youth's interest in religion is waning, when, on the one hand, it is taught to love its fellow beings while on the other, it is taught to hate them? Even an immature mind is likely to discover the absurdity of trying to "serve God and mammon."

The Post Impressionist

Confirmation Day

IT WAS EMMA JOHANNA'S Confirmation Day. She was 14 years old. She stood before the small oval mirror in the little cold bedroom and surveyed her confirmation gown. It was black, it was plain, it was altogether hideous. Tears rolled down Emma Johanna's cheeks.

For weeks now she had envisioned her confirmation dress; from the very hour, in fact, that the spinsters Rausing had come to the tiny apartment to take her measurements. The spinsters Rausing were wealthy, they were philanthropically inclined. They would provide Emma Johanna with her confirmation frock and donate, as well, a Kranze Kage for the confirmation tea. Emma Johanna's mother, the widow Kathie, had thanked them solemnly, had tried to feel grateful—and had hated them cordially.

But no cloud had marred Emma Johanna's happy anticipation. Her only dress, threadbare now, if spotlessly clean, was black and utilitarian—and three years old. She had shot up like a strong young sapling and the dress that had fitted her tolerably three years ago, she had hopelessly outgrown.

This past winter had been the worst, for the ubiquitous spinsters Rausing, finding in one of their numerous bags and boxes a quantity of red yarn, had given it to the widow Kathie. Stockings were badly needed by the little family that winter and the needles flew in Emma Johanna's slim young fingers as she knitted the red yarn into stockings. One pair was for herself.

"They are so very red, mother, and my dress is so short. Couldn't we dye them?"

"There is no money for dye, child," said Kathie.

It had not taken the urchins on the way to school very long to yell derisively, "Storke Langeben, Storke Langeben!" (long stork legs). They were rewarded by a disdainful glare from the proud Emma Johanna but fury scorched her. She ran all the way to school. She hated her long slim legs. She loathed the red stockings. She was thoroughly miserable.

Confirmation dresses might be either black or white. Emma Johanna had pictured herself in a demure white cashmere. She was not a vain child but the thought of herself in a pretty frock had made the reality of her short black dress and the red stockings more bearable.

To be sure this confirmation dress is not short. It is long—too long. The sleeves are long and tight, the bodice is long and tight, and though the skirt has a certan fullness it is very erratically distributed.

The spinsters Rausing did no dress-making for themselves, but decided, on impulse, to undertake the sewing of this dress for Emma Johanna. They had so much time—and it was only for the widow Kathie's child. Not that they were indifferent about it. They were full of zeal—and lacked only skill.

The result of all this fervor and labor was not happy. Even to their spinsterish eyes the dress looked, somehow, not quite right. But the material was good, they assured each other. It would wear. And Emma Johanna was not in a position to quarrel, creditably, with style when durable fabric was of so much more importance in a frock. Only to Emma Johanna, brought up, to be sure, in the tradition, the greater importance of fabric over style seemed of questionable value on this her confirmation day.

"Oh, it is a horrible, horrible dress," and Emma Johanna bit her lips and tried to hold back the tears that, nevertheless, rolled down her cheeks.

Kathie had silently entered the room. Her patient face was sad but a gleam of pride stole into her sweet faded eyes as she looked at her slim, straight young daughter. She saw Emma Johanna trying to hide her tear-wet face. Her heart grew hot with resentment against the spinsters Rausing, whose own frocks were always so carefully tucked and shirred in the right places—but Emma Johanna must not suspect that.

Spartan parent of the '30s, she merely put a kind hand on Emma Johanna's thin shoulder and said: "Come, we must go. Pastor Dejn will not like to wait." Emma Johanna gave her mother a despairing look. Kathie spoke more cheerfully, "Your coat is quite handsome; we may be glad the Rausings had no hand in that, and no one will notice you among so many."

A faint little smile showed through Emma Johanna's tears. After all, she stood at the head of her confirmation class. She knew her catechism better than any of the others. Fat Katinka, the Kobmand's daughter, might well wear her long white cashmere. It would not loosen her tongue nor put right answers in her mouth.

But Emma Johanna, the widow Kathie's child, whose father had been the brilliant, if indigent, young docent Halrup, would do her mother credit. What, after all, was a dress? Emma Johanna lifted her proud young head and followed Kathie from the room.

Native Fascism

By Dorothy Thompson

Its Relation To Foreign Policy

RELATIVELY FEW Americans consider the connection between foreign policy and the internal structure of the Nation. Our attitude and behavior toward the rest of the world seem to be something apart, and to have nothing to do with how we live with each other. But this conception is false, and particularly false in this era.

THOMPSON

Fascist movements begin with foreign policy. This has been true of every one of them.

Mussolini's essential program was to build a new Roman Empire in the Mediterranean, the Adriatic, Africa and the Near East. His domestic program was a form of organization for that purpose.

Hitler's program was to throw off the Treaty of Versailles and establish Germany as the master of Europe. His domestic program consisted of creating the political, social and economic organization that he thought could best serve that purpose.

The American Fascist can be recognized not by what he is advocating for us at home, but by what he is advocating for us abroad.

Certainly none of the forerunners of American fascism are at present recommending drastic internal changes or "reforms." What they are recommending is a change in foreign policy which will, if it is adopted, carry with it a drastic reorganization of the political parties, the emergencies of new national leadership, and an America radically different from any that has ever existed before.

AMERICAN FASCISM, while preaching isolation from Europe, is designing a program of American imperialism which is a copy of Hitler's continental imperialism. The outlines of it are most clearly discernible in the speeches of Col. Lindbergh.

It consists of giving Europe to Hitler and Asia to Japan and Russia, in return for a new Monroe Doctrine that assigns to the "Lebensraum" of the United States, Canada, Central America, and a still undefined portion of northernmost South America.

Canada is to be treated like Scandinavia and forced into breaking all ties with the British Commonwealth and Empire. The inhabitants of Mexico and the rest of Central America are to be treated like lesser breeds—they are to be our Poland and Balkans where we have the mission of creating order.

In other words, we are to be the Master Folk of the Western Hemisphere, and conclude a binding treaty with the Nazis, "the dominant nation of Europe."

This treaty will lay down a joint political and economic policy in regard to the greater part of South America.

It is not the function of this column, at this time, to comment on this program, but merely to call attention to it and to remark that it is an American foreign policy recommended to us by Berlin.

The supporters of this program in the United States are very cautious advocates at present. They are waiting for the propitious moment. That propitious moment will arrive when—as they speculate will happen—Great Britain is either defeated or forced to sue for a humiliating peace. Their program at present is to hasten this consummation by attempting to delay and sabotage aid to Britain.

Should Britain be defeated—such is their speculation—there will immediately be a completely new political constellation in the United States. The Roosevelt Administration will have been as decisively defeated as Churchill. The pro-British, prodemocracy, proliberal forces in both political parties will have been defeated—Mr. Willkie as much as Cordell Hull.

But so will the conservative forces in both parties, Senator Taft, for instance, no less than Mr. Willkie. For Senator Taft and most of the other conservative Republicans are not men of the type to envision the full implications of the new world order. They are traditionalists.

WITH THE ADMINISTRATION, the party system and foreign policy all in a state of chaos, the moment will have come for those who are foreseeing this situation, counting on it, and preparing for it.

They are already laying the foundations for a reconstructed Republican Party. They already have their own monthly magazine, in the last number of which they counsel Republicans to remain "mentally solvent" and not "rise to the bait of unity." Mr. Willkie they write off with a smile, and predict that "time and a growing Federal deficit and the knowledge that the war can't last forever are all factors." They say: "There is no hurry. The Man will come." "The Man"—not the man.

"THE MAN" is already in our midst. So is their labor leader, their Dr. Goebbels, their foreign secretary, their behind-the-scenes chief brain-truster and political philosopher; so are their Thyssens—a few industrialists willing and even anxious to cooperate. And so are several very powerful mass demagogues.

I RECALL that the late Huey Long once told me that American Fascism would never emerge as a Fascist, but as a 100 per cent American movement; it would not duplicate the German method of coming to power, but would only have to get the right President and Cabinet. And he added that it would be quite unnecessary to suppress the press. A couple of powerful newspaper chains and two or three papers with practical monopolies of certain fields would go out to smear, calumniate and blackmail opponents into silence, and ruthlessly to eliminate competitors.

IF THE METHOD of installing American Fascism would differ from the Nazi, the program, should it ever come to power, would be different in no essential particular. It would be war on neighbors, war on liberals, war on racial minorities, militarism and the concept of America as a gigantic land power with a permanent huge standing army, a regimented and "total" Labor Front in a new gigantic NRA, all masked as "progressivism" and "peace."

THE WHOLE SETUP, with the key personalities, exists now. It awaits merely the propitious moment—the fall of Britain—to stage the attempt to end the era of American freedom, equality, concentration on naval defense and good-neighborliness.

Preserving A Monopoly

By Ernest Lindley

Wings Over Atlantic

THE HOUSE Appropriations Committee has refused a second time to approve funds to subsidize a competing American trans-Atlantic airline.

Last fall it struck out the President's request for money to start this service. Now it has struck $1,200,000 from the 1942 budget.

The result is to preserve the present monopolistic position of Pan-American Airways. This is in spite of the fact that every agency of the Government which is concerned with the promotion of aviation favors the establishment of a competing trans-Atlantic service.

The aspiring competitor at present is the American Export Airline Co. After more than two months of hearings, the Civil Aeronautics Board approved the entry of this company into the trans-American service. In doing so it specifically rejected the contention of Pan-American Airways that their monopoly over these routes was in the public interest.

The Bureau of Aeronautics approved the new proposed line as useful to national defense. The State Department approved it as in the interest of the Government generally. The Postoffice approved it. And the President signed the necessary certificates and included in his budget the funds needed to start the service.

But the House committee concerned with Postoffice appropriations cut out the item. The main reason given was economy.

It is admitted on all sides that it would cost a little more at first to pay the mail subsidy for a new line than to expand Pan-American's service. The considered view of the Civil Aeronautics Board and other Government agencies was, however, that the competition would later result in savings to the Government, as well as in ampler and better service for passengers, mail and express.

The explanation formally given by the House committee for deleting the appropriation is a labored apology. Anybody who read it would immediately suspect that it was inspired by motives less noble than the saving of a few dollars.

THE MAIN FACTS are simple. Excepting lines to Canada, Pan-American has an Amercan monopoly in foreign air service. It has done some pioneering. Its successes have brought it good will both from the public and the Government. It has worked closely with the Government, and has been, in fact, a sort of arm of our foreign policy.

Within the United States, however, regulated competition has built up commercial airlines which are the best in the world. There is a decided belief in the Government that the development of airlines to foreign nations would be benefited by competition. The trans-Atlantic routes are considered especially suitable for competition because of the heavy traffic, actual and potential, in passengers and mail.

American Export Lines, a steamship company, began to get interested in trans-Atlantic air service about four years ago. It set up an airline subsidiary and employed aviation experts who devoted some six months to exploratory work. With the cooperation of the Navy, it obtained a Consolidated PBY flying boat and made six crossings of the Atlantic by various routes. Meanwhile the Germans started regular service, and the French crossed the ocean three times with an old ship.

American Export Airlines became convinced that, on account of rough water, the Azores were not a suitable stopping point and that they should aim for a nonstop service from New York to Europe. They decided to use the Vought-Sikorsky four-engined flying boat, carrying 16 passengers and from 1,800 to 3,500 pounds of mail, with a cruising range of more than 4,000 miles.

THE ACTIVITY of American Export Airlines spurred on Pan-American, which came forward with proffers of prompt and adequate trans-Atlantic service. The Pan-American uses Boeings, which are larger than the Sikorskys but do not have their range. Their service is supposed to be three times weekly, but actually it is not, due to weather conditions and also to water conditions at Horta, the Azores, where rough seas often have caused delays. Recently they have begun using a more southerly alternative route via Portuguese Guinea and Trinidad—the route taken home by Wendell Wilkie.

American Export Airlines wants to begin flying the Atlantic immediately with its Consolidated flying boat. This would carry only mail and express. By October, its officials aver, they can start service with the four-engined Sikorsky, which will carry passengers in addition, and fly non-stop from New York or Bermuda to Lisbon. They emphasize that Pan-American is cutting down passenger loads to make room for mail which could be carried in American Export Airlines' present ship.

The latter company has already put more than $2,000,000 into its project. On the strength of the certificates granted by the Civil Aeronautics Board they put in their orders some time ago for three of the four-engined planes. Neither this company, nor Pan-American, can operate without mail contracts. Pan-American contends it can expand its service for less than it would cost the Government to start its competitor into operation.

On many of the points involved there is, of course, controversy. But during the last two years all of them have been extensively explored by the agencies of the Government charged with such responsibility. They have recommended the competition also as a matter of major policy, in the interest of the United States.

Then a House subcommittee, after a few hours of hearings, decides otherwise. Plans for economy have been used to explain many strange actions in Congress, but it is doubtful whether they can cover this one.

Willkie To Go To China?

THE FACES of the Republican politicians after Wendell L. Willkie's invasion of Washington were the richest sight to be seen in this political city for a good many months. Noses out of joint, teeth on edge and thin, sour smiles are always pretty comic in themselves. In this case they were also strikingly interesting, since they meant that Willkie, by sheer imagination and force of personality, had rescued himself from the obscure fate the politicians optimistically planned for him.

ALSOP

When the campaign ended, it was generally agreed among Republican leaders of the type of President Herbert Hoover that Willkie was to be treated as a nine-day wonder on the tenth day. Now, however, all that is over. By his stand on the lease-lend bill and his trip to Britain, Willkie has secured his position as a public figure of the first importance. Just what his next step may be is difficult to know. Since the war in the Far Eastern theater is growing so much more menacing, many of his friends are urging him to follow his trip to Britain with a trip to China and Australia, to round out his knowledge of the world situation. But whether he goes to the Far East or stays at home, his importance is now a permanent political fact.

Furthermore, having dissented from the opinion of the majority of other leaders of his party, he now can enjoy the spectacle of the majority veering toward his views. Several Republican Senators, who once talked of the lease-lend bill as "another court bill," are wondering if they can find some way to vote for the bill after all. Hoover himself, who threatened to charge Willkie publicly with "war-mongering," has apparently concluded the moment is inopportune. In short, the politicians are well aware Willkie has done himself great good.

Finally, Willkie has placed himself in a position to carry out reprisals. The reactionary and isolationist Republican elements went after him. Willkie can now go after them. In short, by the simple expedient of saying what he believed and making a fight for it, Willkie has largely turned the tables on his enemies.

AS THE EPISODE is extremely instructive, it is worth rehearsing the circumstances of Willkie's lease-lend stand and British trip. When the bill was introduced Roy Howard, of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, who has assigned himself the role of the little corporal of isolationism, immediately began to organize the opposition. It was Howard who secured from the other Republicans, such as Dewey and Hoover, their extraordinarily prompt statements deploring the President's measure. As he subsequently admitted, it was also Howard who first telephoned Willkie to ask for his opinion of the bill. Unlike most of the others, Willkie refused to talk until he had time for study. Then, after examining the text of the bill, he told Howard he intended to give it his qualified support, causing Howard to menace him with all sorts of dire consequences.

Partly owing to Howard's exertions, the lease-lend bill had virtually been made a partisan question before Willkie spoke out. Willkie's statement, and Willkie's decision to go to Britain to see the war at first hand, sharply changed the political picture. The partisan opposition to the bill collapsed, and the attack on it lost momentum so violently that it has never recovered. The effort to commit the Republican Party to isolationism, and to make it the exclusive property of the old guard group who favor that doctrine, was also checked. Willkie's personal following, meanwhile, revived in force. Letters began pouring in on him again, at the rate of 2,000 or 3,000 a day, expressing support for his stand. The old feeling for him was renewed, as was proved when many very plain, not too prosperous people traveled to Washington from all over the East to see him appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

THE MORAL of it all is rather simple. The sense of effect, and the ordinary common sense which Willkie demonstrated in his appearance before the Senate Committee have a good deal to do with political success. But the essential difference between Willkie and his less adroit rivals is that he expresses the convictions and aspirations of a great many voters, while the Republican old guard can hardly be said to express convictions or aspirations of any sort.

KINTNER

Willkie's future is still a difficult problem. If he goes to the Far East, his decision will be temporarily deferred. On his return, however, he will have to make up his mind whether to follow his present plan of resuming law practice in New York, or to reserve himself more definitely for the public service. At the moment, he is still telling his friends he is determined not to take a post in the Administration, although there is now an excellent indication that he can have a big job if he wants one.

His reason is that while he and the President may see eye to eye on foreign policy, their differences on domestic questions are as great as ever. Perhaps as the world situation grows increasingly serious, and domestic questions recede further and further into obscurity, he will change his mind. But in the Administration or out, he is now a man to be counted with, and will continue to be.

Fair Enough

George Speaks

GEORGE SPELVIN, American, being summoned to Washington to give his views on the state of the nation, took the stand and spoke as follows:

A. (by Mr. Spelvin). Well, now, I certainly am glad you asked me, because the way I look at it as a 100 per cent American citizen, why, the most of us, all we want to take and do is live and let live. But you have to be on your guard all the time these days, because, for instance, like my wife always trades at the cash-and-carry store, because I feel sorry for the little fellow who can't meet their prices, but, still and all, if you can get a can of soup for 11 cents in a chain store and it costs 13 cents at the independent, well, I notice if the Government wants to buy a new battleship they don't pick the highest bidded, and it is the same way with the working man when he can get $2 an hour you don't see them working for $1, and he would be a fool if he did.

But I can't see why we can't work it out so we can just live in our own country and, if you will pardon the expression, why, to hell with all those foregn nations, and why should I pay taxes so we can practically give that money away to all kinds of foreigners, whether it is to make it so they can buy our goods with our money or fight a war, because if you mind your own business and keep in good shape we don't need their trade, and I get sick and tired of all this talk how you have to look out for the foreign vote or the different religions, because, after all, this isn't a foreign country and everybody ought to be an American or a foreigner, and no two ways about it, but all you hear is this and that about foreign groups and isms, and all the time we keep on letting in more foreigners to tear down American ideals, and the first thing you know you have to apologize for being an American or somebody will start a rumor that you are an appeaser or a Fifth Columnist.

BUT WHAT BURNS me up is the way Hitler squawked about the Versales (sic) Treaty when you see what he did to the Poles after he licked them, and compare that with how he sent all that food over to the Germans after the last war, and there again you come around to giving our money away to foreign nations, because, like President Roosevelt said, taxes are the sweat of the American workingman, but we gave the Germans hundreds of millions to build new roads and swell apartment houses for the German people, and now they call us a bunch of dirty warmongers when they used our money to build all those tanks and planes and we didn't even have a division of soldiers in the whole American Army and just a lot of old farm implements for tanks, and now Hitler is saying we were looking for a fight.

So if you want my candid opinion, as a 100 per cent American, well, it seems to me like there ought to be some way to stamp out all these foreign isms, and I want to tell you, gentlemen, a good wife is everything in a man's life, and if you have a good, sensible wife and not a gadabout gadding about like a gaddy all the time and bothering their heads with lectures and all this and that, there is where you get your answer to the your problem, because an old-fashioned mother doesn't need the Government to tell her how to raise their children when you can't tell who the Government selects for this work, and some Communist will be telling them God is a fake, and it just stands to reason the parents ought to take care of them so they will know what they are up to.

AND I WANT to say to you, gentlemen, it certainly makes my collar boil when a man works hard for years trying to raise a family to be decent, God-fearing Americans if you save some money and a banker steals it we all agree he is a crook and probably goes to prison, but then the Government grabs your money to give it away to foreign nations and pay some people relief so they can turn up their nose at a job, and when election time comes, why, naturally they are going to vote for the one who is giving them my money, so all I say is let the people work if they want to work and never mind whether they belong to some union, and why don't the Government ever have any sympathy for the ones who do have a job or a private business and raise their own kids and pay their bills intsead of all the time worrying what the unions or the foreign groups are going to think?

Senator Nilly (Ind., Ind.): The committee thanks you, Mr. Spelvin.

Hour Of Decision

Japan And Southeastern Asia

FOR SOME TIME the role played by Germany in the Far East has been that of Lady Macbeth to Japan's Thane of Cawdor.

NOVER

Step by step over a period of more than 60 years the Japanese have watched their imperial dream come to life. First, they took over a few islands; then they secured a foothold on the mainland of Asia; now the domain under effective Japanese domination extends in a great arc all the way from Saghalin and the Siberian border to the Spratly Islands and the Gulf of Siam and deep in the interior of China as well.

But the most glittering of all prizes—Malaya and the Dutch East Indies—their Nazi partners remind them, are still in other hands, although within Japan's reach if Japan would only exert the proper effort. And never again, Tokyo is warned, will the time be more propitious than at present.

IT IS NOT difficult to see why Hitler is so anxious for Japan to press south.

A Japanese drive at Singapore would serve a double Nazi purpose at this juncture. On the one hand, it would increase Britain's difficulties in the Far East at a moment when an all-out German attack on that country is being prepared. On the other hand, it might so tie the hands of the United States that the American program of aid to Britain would perforce be curtailed. Nor can it be doubted that within Japan powerful forces are advancing imperious reasons for a southward thrust in the near future.

For well over three years Japan has wasted her substance in a futile effort to reduce China to subjection. The game has not been worth the candle. A Chinese army is still in the field and continues to harass the far-flung and thinly spread Japanese garrisons. A Chinese government, recognized and supported by Great Britain, the United States and Russia, continues to operate. And with each passing month of this seemingly endless war Japan's strength ebbs, her vulnerability to possible pressure from outside increases.

LAST SEPTEMBER Japan joined forces with the Axis powers in an agreement whose immediate purpose was to intimidate the United States and whose ultimate objective was to divide the world.

From Tokyo's point of view that agreement has already paid dividends. In the first place, German pressure on Vichy, exercised on behalf of Japan, enabled the latter nation to gain a foothold in Indo-China. Later, German and Japanese promptings led Thailand to embark on hostilities against Indo-China and that, in turn, enabled Japan to play the profitable role of peacemaker. The Japanese are now collecting the rewards of their intervention in the Thailand-Indo-Chinese dispute.

Japanese naval and air forces are now established in southern Indo-China, within easy bombing range of Singapore. They may soon be, if they are not already, in possession of Thai military and air bases from which a campaign against the Malay Peninsula might be launched.

BUT IN ALLYING HERSELF with Germany and Italy, Japan also took great risks. The pact of Berlin has led to the further alienation of American opinion and has, therefore, created the possibility that the United States will take rigorous economic measures against the island empire. It has also created the momentum for cooperative action in the Far East between the United States, the Netherlands Indies and the British Empire and Commonwealth.

Even from Thailand and Indo-Chinese bases it would be no easy matter for Japan either to wrest Singapore from the British or the Dutch East Indies from the Dutch.

The Dutch East Indies, a region rich in oil, tin, rubber and rice, has been viewed covetously by the Japanese for a long time. Without outside support the Dutch garrisons might conceivably hold out against a Japanese assault for some time. The defenses of the islands—naval, military and aerial—are believed to be excellent. It is doubtful, however, if the Dutch alone are in a position to hold out indefinitely against a Japanese attack.

The same holds true of Singapore, which the Japanese may find it necessary to capture before going any farther in their southward march. Singapore is one of the most powerful naval bases in the world. Its defenses have also been strengthened recently by reinforcements of men and planes. Yesterday the British announced that all sea approaches to the Malay metropolis have been heavily mined.

HOWEVER, the naval power which Great Britain is today in a position to employ in the defense of Singapore is limited and it may be some time before a sufficient British naval strength can safely be diverted from other theaters to Southeastern Asia. The Japanese know this, which is why they are tempted to resume the southward march in the near future.

They also realize, however, that they are no match against the combined forces which Great Britain, the Netherlands Indies and the United States are in a position to throw into the scales against them. The Japanese know that disastrous would be the consequences of failure. That is why a tremor of alarm swept over Japanese people when they heard last week that a clash between Japan and the United States was imminent. That also explains their relief when they were told officially that the immediate dangers of the crisis had been exaggerated.

Were Japan definitely convinced that the United States would stand by idly while Singapore and the Dutch East Indies are attacked, the Japanese would almost certainly act and act soon. But there is doubtful if their own insatiable yearnings for more territory, or the warnings of the Nazis not to let "'I dare not' wait upon 'I would,' like the poor cat in the adage" would be sufficient to induce them to act were they convinced that the United States would remain a silent spectator to such an act of aggression. The key to the fate of Southeast Asia is to be found as much in Washington as in Tokyo.

Russia Solves Grain Problem, But Some Industries Still Lag

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Feb. 16.—Claims of a "tremendous growth in production" in Russia were disclosed officially today in a report on industry and transport by Secretary Malenkoff of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

Malenkoff announced Russia had solved the problem which was her first concern—assurance of a grain supply—and now must turn the party's attention toward industry and transport.

He said gross production of Soviet industry last year was 137,500,000,000 rubles and compared that figure with 123,915,000,000 rubles in 1939 and 106,834,000,000 in 1938. (The ruble is not quoted in foreign exchange.)

"Success in acquisition of new techniques and growth of the defense industry permitted a considerable increase in mechanization of the Red army and navy with the newest models and types of armaments," he added.

Malenkoff reported several industries which failed to fulfill 1940 plans under Russia's third five-year plan included locomotive and car building, electricity, timber, paper, fish and building materials. Some fell behind 1939 schedules.

Transport systems also lagged, he said, citing sea and river systems as having fallen short in deliveries, especially of "such important kinds of production as ore, oil, grain, salt, timber and coal."

The lag, he said, was due to defects in management commissariats and lack of attention by party committees.

"Industrialization of the U. S. S. R. became the law of socialist development in our country," he said. "In order not to become an appendage of capitalist economy we must have everything at our disposal—so teaches Stalin.

"Guided by this instruction our party brought about conditions which preclude any possibility for capitalism to arise in our country. Already now, the U. S. S. R. is a mighty industrial socialist power."

Capital Decided Fate Of Latest Broadway Hit

Washington's Verdict on John Golden's 'Claudia' Tipped the Balance in Fine Comedy's Favor; The Pint-Size Puleo Returns to His Native Stage

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD—as revealed to this column on the Saturday night marking the end of the recent week's engagement of "Claudia," at the National Theater.

When "Claudia" was taken to Wilmington for the experimental tortures of three tryout performances, Producer John Golden and Author Rose Franken—in a mild dither over the fate of her first play since "Another Language"—were so fearful that the deeper meanings of the comedy of character-building would be smothered under its heavy top layer of audacious dialogue that the Delaware press was importuned to express its doubts leniently and give audience reaction a chance to express itself in the final verdict.

BELL

Audience response was so preponderantly in the play's favor that the management decided to make Washington the ultimate laboratory of critical analysis. "Claudia" either would close quietly or proceed toward Broadway on the strength of the Capital's appraisal. After the local reviews had burst into print—with excerpts printed simultaneously in the New York gazettes—the managerial conclusion was, "Why not go directly into New York and not bother with New Haven?" That would have been too bad, for, otherwise, we might not have received that gracious note Frances Starr found time to write during the New Haven engagement.

But the point, as expressed by Bernard Simon, of the Golden office, in a note to this desk, is that "'Claudia' is terrific here and Dorothy McGuire scored magnificently. I suppose you may have seen one, or two, or more of the New York notices. The theater's selling out at every performance."

Which is as it should be.

John Golden's confidence in Washington's critical judgment may be traced nebulously to the fact that when Osgood Perkins died suddenly a few hours after the premiere performance of "Susan and God," at the National several seasons ago, certain local drama desks were at least partially instrumental in persuading him to call in his telegrams to practically all of the distinguished actors at liberty in America at the time and elevate Paul McGrath, already a member of the cast, to the role opposite Gertrude Lawrence in the play that went on to a huge Broadway success. Mr. McGrath it is who is visible in an important supporting role, with Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas, in the current "This Thing Called Love," on the screen.

And so it is—we'll get this thing wound up eventually—that John Golden, with "Claudia" firmly entrenched on Broadway, today is embarking on a Florida vacation that will take him up to March 17, when "Theatre," his new starring a vehicle for Cornelia Otis Skinner, will go into rehearsal with a view to its metropolitan premiere in the National Theater here on Easter Monday. Miss Skinner's supporting cast already has been signed, sealed and delivered and will include Margaret Bannerman, Canadian actress with a fine record on the London stage, making her American debut; Arthur Margetson, from the cast of "Charley's Aunt;" Reginald Mason, Florence Edney, just out of "Ladies in Retirement;" Joan Wetmore, Carl Harbord, Frederick Bradlee, Leslie Austin, Stanley Harrison, Ralph Bunker and Jack Merivale, son of the illustrious Philip Merivale. Mr. Golden likes Washington—and vice versa.

When Borrah Minevitch's Harmonica Rascals open Friday as headliners of the new stage bill at the Earle, Johnny Puleo, that diminutive comic giant, again will be the chief instrument of the act's appeal to the risibilities. Johnny is that pathetic little fellow who is so persistently pushed around by his towering associates on the blowing ends of the mouth organs. He is a native Washingtonian, with an almost Chaplinesque command of pathos as a vital element of comedy, whose skill far outmeasures his physical dimensions. Since joining the "Rascals," Johnny has been around a bit. The Minevitch group has toured the principal cities of Europe twice and has just returned from a 10-week engagement at the Casino de Urca—whatever that may mean—in Rio de Janeiro, not to be confused with the Casino Atlantico, where our friend, Jack Powell, "your drummer boy," recently set the Brazilians on their ears, but just as good. Besides that, the kids have appeared in a flock of pictures—"One in a Million," "Love Under Fire," "Rascals" and the prevalent "Hit Parade of 1941." After the Earle engagement, the Minevitch minstrels proceed to San Francisco and thence to Hollywood for another film. Borrah already is out there paving the way. But the greatest of these—next to the Minevitch—is the pint-size Puleo. Not very many inches, but every one an artist.

Willkie Holds The Spotlight At Trans-Lux

Wendell Willkie, appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and advocating prompt passage of the lease-lend bill is the popular hit of the current program at the Trans-Lux Theater. Britain mopping up in Africa, after recent successes, is another favorite flash.

Other conspicuous events are the capsizing of the British freighter off the Delaware breakwater, the heartbroken dog, flown to his master, and the mysterious explosions in Philadelphia and Chicago. United States defense is represented with views of Marine Corps parachute troops in a spectacular sky drill and air defense tests over Puerto Rico.

Ski stars furnish thrills in a trio of tournaments, among the sport items, and the Lipton Cup yacht race off Florida is another spectacular event.

The time usually devoted to short subjects is largely taken up by a remarkable film illustrating the merits of the Government's electrification program, entitled "Power and the Land." The amazing results are brought home very impressively by this superbly artistic and wholly commendable presentation. Walt Disney's latest comedy cartoon, "Pantry Pirate," featuring Pluto, the pup, is bubblingly funny.

Gayety

"HEART BREAKERS." The Independent Burlesque Association presents the musical attraction, in two acts and 20 scenes, featuring Margie Hart, supported by Mike Sachs, Alice Kennedy, Irving Selig, Delores Green, Denny Morton, Herbie Barris, Dottie Darling, Fran Lewis and the Stanley Brothers. Dance numbers devised by Jack Montgomery.

Burlesque's best-known and most popular personality, Margie Hart, is the featured artiste of this week's revue at the Gayety.

Titian-haired and very easy on the eyes, Margie's exploits and experiences, better related by Broadway's columnists, have made her one of the most widely popularized sirens in show business. In the current bill, Miss Hart offers several daring musical specialities. Incidentally, Margie's wardrobe is something the lady fans will be sure to appreciate.

The star's supporting cast, as usual, boasts the circuit's top entertainers. In her latest vehicle, she has such swell funsters as Mike Sachs and Irving Selg at her elbow, not to mention clever Herbie Barris and charming Alice Kennedy. Sachs, burlesque's ranking "mugging" comedian, is at his best in this attraction, while the versatile and talented Barris gives another of his grand performances.

Completing a cast of stellar entertainers are Delores Green and Dot Darling, beauty specialists; Denny Morton, whose vocals are nicely rendered; Fran Lewis, a lass who executes several snappy dance routines, and the Stanley Brothers in one of the most sensational acts recently seen at the Gayety.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, Feb. 16.

BOOK DEPT.: "Jan Valtin," the mysterious author of the current best-seller, "Out of the Night," is Richard Krebs, a former German seaman who was also a courier for the Comintern. Krebs, now being guarded by Federal men, has received permission to remain in this country in return for the assistance he is rendering the Government.

LYONS

SOCIAL NOTES: The Harvard Club, for the first time in its history, will permit ladies to enter the sacred portals and dine there . . . A special dining room is being set apart for club members who prefer feminine company to that of their schoolmates . . . Corliss Lamont, Harvard '24, effected this tradition-breaking move.

DRAMA DEPT.: Sidney Kingsley now is collecting material for his new play about Thomas Jefferson. He and his wife, Madge Evans, have been working in the Reference Room of the New York Public Library. Last week Miss Evans went there and tiptoed through the quiet room giving slips of book requests to the usher . . . The usher, just as quietly, tiptoed to Miss Evans' table, gave her a slip of paper and whispered: "Please—your autograph."

WEATHER DEPT.: For the last ten days Moss Hart has been in Palm Beach, where the weather has been rainy. Yesterday he telephoned his New York apartment ordering his sun-ray lamp to be shipped South . . . "It's rained so long in Palm Beach," Hart reported, "that I've lost the tan I had when I left New York."

FASHIONS: On the day the front pages reported that Pierre Laval was insistent upon returning to high office to collaborate more effectively with the Axis powers, Henry Bernstein entered the Stork Club—wearing the red emblem of France's Legion d'Honneur . . . "Your decoration seems redder than usual," the French playwright was told. He replied: "It's blushing."

FOREIGN DISPATCH: The Baroness de Gripenberg, wife of Finland's Minister to Britain, now in Manhattan, possesses the original of an historic cable sent in February of last year . . . It was sent by the orange growers of Greece to the people of Finland during their fight against the Soviet. It reads: "Finland has shown us our duty if we are attacked. Finland has lit the torch we too shall carry for our freedom."

THEATER: Although the President's custom has been to visit the theater only once a year—during the Command Performance in Washington—he will set a new precedent by going to the theater again, this week. In Washington he will attend the Woollcott performance of "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

LOCAL NEWS: Herbert Bayard Swope, jr., will produce a revival of "Porgy and Bess." Wharton and Gable probably will be associated in the production . . . Gen. Hugh Johnson, who testified against the lend-lease bill, will speak on the Bundles-for-Britain broadcast . . . Elizabeth Hawes will leave soon for a tour of South America, gathering material for a new book . . . After a long absence from New York, Lou Holtz returns to Loew's State next Thursday . . . Ethel Waters is breaking the records at Fefe's Monte Carlo . . . Douglas Fairbanks, jr., may play the Franchot Tone role in the revival of "The Fifth Column" . . . Herman Rauschning, former intimate of Hitler who now is in London, has sent a new manuscript, "The Coming of Peace," to follow his forthcoming book, "Age of Democracy."

SERVICE DEPT.: George S. Kaufman has joined Robert E. Sherwood in Washington. These two, who are among the foremost theater men of our time, will supervise the entertainment for the Army and Navy.

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: One of the important actors in "Major Barbara" was conscripted into the British army while the movie was being filmed. On two occasions a leave of absence was obtained for him, so that he could continue his work. One final scene remained, but the army officials refused to grant any further leaves to the actor . . . Nevertheless, Gabriel Pascal, the producer, went to the barracks and assured the actor: "It's quite all right. I have a one-day leave for you. So come with me" . . . The innocent actor followed him to the studio. There, while army officers searched in the dark studio for him, the actor finished his work. Then he went to the guard house.

CAFE DEPT.: Gertrude Lawrence is planning an unusual party for British relief. The star, who is writing a book, will present autographed copies to all the guests. The party will be held at Fefe's Monte Carlo on a Sunday evening. Champagne, etc., will be included. Price: $25 per ticket.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 16 (INS).—Young Budd Schulberg is certainly a son that a father may be proud to claim—and don't think B. P., veteran producer, isn't thrilled over his boy's achivements. Some time ago Budd and Martin Berkeley sold Sam Goldwyn a story called "City Without Men" and now Sam has sold it to Columbia for $45,000—a big price to be paid for an original. And what to me is most interesting is that there is a chance that Budd's own father, B. P. Schulberg, will produce his son's story. B. P. is at Columbia.

PARSONS

The appearance of Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow together at the preview of "I Wanted Wings," in Long Beach, certainly caused a furor. There was a great buzzing and a craning of necks to see them and immediately a rumor was started that Myrna and Arthur had reconciled. I only wish it host.

Errol Flynn is not on the clipper as everyone believed—the excuse being that there was no room for him because of the heavy mail. But he is on the Lurline due to reach here next Wednesday and he will immediately get ready to make "The Dive Bomber," the Commander Frank Wead story which is to be filmed at Pensacola. Robert Buckner, who adapted Commander Wead's story, was told to hurry since the Government has requested that the movie be made as soon as possible.

You would be surprised how many film people were upset over the death of Laddie, the sick dog, flown out from Kansas City to be with his master, Everett Scott, at Camp Ord. I was dining with Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers when we heard the news of Laddie's death and Mary said: "Laddie didn't die in vain. Everyone who owns a dog will be better and kinder to his pet." Laddie made us all realize the deep devotion our dogs give us and that the only thing they ask in return is a little attention from us.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Lana Turner is in the hospital with wisdom tooth trouble; Frank Capra is spending all his time between the Good Samaritan Hospital—visiting his wife and new son—and in the cutting room getting "Meet John Doe" ready for us to see; Pat Stewart, who is a very attractive young lady, at Charlie Foy's supper club with Wayne Morris, who seems to be her favorite boy friend.

Bette Davis and her bridegroom, Arthur Farnsworth, at Ciro's on cook's night out; Edward J. Flynn, big shot in the Roosevelt organization, dining at Ciro's and having all the celebrities pointed out to him by Sid Grauman, his host.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Feb. 16.

For years I've shouted that Hollywood could be the center of the fashion world. But not until Paris fell did we do anything. When the Fashion Group took over the Fiesta Room at the Ambassador Thursday night, with Bob Hope, Reggie Gardiner, Howard Greer, Joe Hernandez, and myself m. c. ing the show, the town was alive with fashion experts. Lilly Dache and her husband were here for a few days, so were Harper's Louise Macy, Vogue's Margaret Case, Tobi for herself.

HOPPER

And John Frederics put on one of the most amusing shows Monday night, duplicating his recent New York one of a couple of weeks ago.

John has lots of early American primitive paintings—you know, the kind the house painters did and then sold to the neighbors, painting in their children's heads on the bodies already done—which are screamingly funny. So John did clothes in that period to match his new hats, which are saner, strange as it may seem, than they have been for moons. He's gone in for fine fabrics, workmanship, crocheting of all kinds, and if you want to be a la mode, get out your mother's old wool and cotton fascinator.

Place was jammed with celebrities from Lady Mendl and her adopted son, Johnny McMullin, who grabbed a couple of hats and did his own modeling, to Ann Sothern, pretty Mrs. Ray Milland, Tilly Losch, Anita Loos (sporting a new gift from Flato, a miniature platinum satchel enclosing a watch).

Clara Ray, lovely as ever, Janet Gaynor, in soft green sailor, huge pink sapphire clip on green tailor-made suit, was the smartest woman there. I wore a flight of bluebirds, but came out with a red net and straw airplane on my head. Now you can't see above or around me. Yes, spring is here—I've got my red hat.

Bert Wheeler is the first star signed for the Walter Schumann and Alan Gordon musical, "It's High Time." It looks as though Rudy Vallee, Gertrude Niesen and Mary Healy would also be in it . . . Incidentally, I hear Bert's part in "La Vegas Nights" is something, and so is he . . . Judy Canova says she knows a star who gives until it hurts, but who is very sensitive to pain.

Vera Banks reports seeing this sign on a marquee: "Four Mothers—Escape—Labor and Defense" . . . Since Victor Mature has become the matinee idol of New York, he wouldn't speak to Lana Turner when he saw her back there. I guess maybe she'll survive that.

Jane Withers and I worked up a little gag to hold her mother to a certain promise. You see, Janie's mamma promised her a few years ago, that she could have her first date without chaperone at 15. Now that Janie's fifteenth birthday is just around the corner, she's afraid "Mummy's" going to renege. So here's our gag. The premiere of "Her First Beau" will be sometime around Janie's birthday in April, so how about letting her have her first date then? She thinks she can't have it with her hero Don Ameche, but Honore (Mrs. Ameche) is a good sport, and so is Don. I'll bet she could arrange the date. And let Honore and "Mummy" take back seats—then we'd all have a good time.

Bethrothed Couple Feted At Mrs. E. B. McLean's

Friendship, the home of Mrs. Edward Beale McLean,—where hospitality is dispensed lavishly, casually and often—was ablaze with lights last evening as over 100 members of the younger set gathered to fete Miss Nancy Leiter and Thomas Claggett who will be married on Saturday. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. McLean and her daughter, Miss Evalyn McLean.

The couple will be entertained at a party every day this week, climaxed by a dinner dance at the Sulgrave Club on Friday evening which will be given by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter. Mrs. F. Lammot Belin will give a reception this afternoon at her Georgetown home, Everymay in their honor. Guests are invited to come "after five." On Thursday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lyle O'Rourke will be hosts at a cocktail party at the Carlton. Carmen Cabellero will provide incidental music.

But to return to the last night's party: Following the seated dinner the young guests were shown a new movie entitled "Tall, Dark and Handsome." Cesar Romero and Charlotte Greenwood take the leads in this farce, which is a satire on gangster movies.

'Ned' McLeans Attend Party

Mr. and Mrs. "Ned" McLean, who are spending the winter at Friendship, were at the party last evening. Small tables were arranged over the lower floor of the rambling house. Covered with gleaming white damask, the tables were centered with bouquets of spring flowers. Following dinner, guests wandered about the house, admired the pine-paneled bar, collections of pictures, china and paper weights. Meanwhile, the long closed-in porch was being set up for the movie, which is Mrs. McLean's favorite form of after-dinner entertainment.

Among the young marrieds attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Du Bose, Mr. and Mrs. Yelverton Garnett, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Igor Cassini, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Kauffmann, Mr. and Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, she will serve as matron of honor at Miss Leiter's wedding; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moulton, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson McIlvaine, Mr. and Mrs. John Newbold, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Orme, Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbert Train, Mr. and Mrs. George Y. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilkins, jr., Mr. and Mrs. James Wimsatt and Mr. and Mrs. Bentley Hoeber. Mr. Wimsatt, who is to be best man at the ceremony on Saturday, arrived over the weekend from North Carolina, where he has been working for the past few months. Mrs. Hoeber is Mr. Claggett's sister.

Audrey Campbell Returns Here

Miss Audrey Campbell, who will be an attendant in the wedding, returned from New York just a few days ago to take part in the festivities. Among others at the party last evening were Countess de Baillet Latour, Miss Elizabeth Claggett, sister of the prospective bridegroom, who will be a bridesmaid; Miss Ruth Dove, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Mildred Dunn, Miss Elaine Darlington, Miss Eleanor Flood, Miss Zeva Fish, Miss Patricia Hill, Miss Kitty Hill, Miss Marilyn Himes, Miss Elizabeth Kean, Miss Peggy Lansdowne, Miss Eleanor Meem, Miss Ann Perin, Miss Louise Stillwell, Miss Suzanne Slingluff, Miss Peggy Townsend, the Misses Cecelia and Marie Vom Rath, Mrs. Mary Wright, sister of Mr. Claggett; Miss Ann Wilkinson and Miss Nancy Weller.

Mrs. McLean had asked a "family group" of her contemporaries to attend the party also. Others who were there included Jack Logan, Samuel Biddle, Sterling Bolling, Richard Bolling, Britton Browne, Judson Bowles, Harry Covington, Winthrop Crane, Stephen Elkins, Henry and Winston Frost, up from Middleburg; Harold Fangboner, George Franklin, Randall Hagner, Rufus Johnston, Jock and William Merriam, Basil and George Mishtowt, James Mitchell, James Parks, Quinn Shaughnessy, Ricard Siri, Middleton Train, Huntington Thom, Arthur Vandenberg, jr., William Van Allen and Robert Wallach.

Book Sale to Aid R. A. F. Families

Mrs. Truxtun Beale, chairman of the Piccadilly Arcade, announces another shop where books, old, new, autographed or rare, will be sold. The Arcade is a bargain-benefit to be given on April 3, 4 and 5, at 1423 F Street. Proceeds will benefit families of the Royal Air Force members.

Mrs. Charles Henderson will be chairman of the book shop and those on her committee include Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. McCook Knox, Mrs. William Clayton, Mrs. E. R. Kinkenstaedt, Mrs. Francis Biddle, Miss Grace Guest, Miss Anita Phipps, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, Miss Ann Perin and Mrs. Ethel Bernard Clark.

Duffields Give Farewell Party For Kilgores

A gay note was introduced into the farewell party given yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Duffield at the Wardman Park Hotel for Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kilgore, because of the modernistic appointments of the Metronome Room where the reception was held, accented by the colorful floral decorations arranged by the hostess. On the buffet table set up in a semicircle with a background of ferns and palms, was a silver service including several candelabra and large bowls filled with spring flowers. At either end were the coffee and tea urns, with each of the feminine assistants taking a turn at pouring. Smartly turned out in a colorful print gown with which she wore brown accessories, Mrs. Duffield was assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Kilgore. The latter's costume was a navy blue dressmaker suit, with a blouse of dusty pink crepe, complete with navy blue accessories and a corsage of Spanish iris and freesia.

Mr. Kilgore, who has been on the local staff of the Wall Street Journal, is leaving shortly with Mrs. Kilgore for New York, where he will take over his new duties as managing editor of the paper. On hand to bid them farewell were many of their friends from official circles and a number of their colleagues. Members of the local staff of the Wall Street Journal and their wives who assisted were Mr. and Mrs. George Bryant, jr., Mr. William C. Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mahoney, Mr. Fred W. Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Plummer, Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Sloan and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterner. More than 150 guests were invited to the party and glimpsed among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Phelps Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Belair, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Daniel W. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. James Berryman, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bonnette, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Bralove, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brandt, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brayman, Mr. and Mrs. Walker S. Buel, Mr. and Mrs. W. Women Democrats To Hear Schram

Emil Schram, chairman of the board of directors of the RFC, will be the guest speaker at the Woman's National Democratic Club today at the regular weekly luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. Schram will speak on "The RFC in the Defense Program." Mrs. Schram is a member of the club and will be an honor guest with her husband. Mrs. Claude Pepper, president of the club, will preside.

Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson is in charge of the luncheon and will be assisted by the following hostesses: Mrs. Claude E. Hamilton, Mrs. Charles S. Henderson, Mrs. Clifford Durr, Mrs. Renee Jones Taylor and Mrs. Sara Marcum.

Mrs. Jones to Entertain Beta Phi Alpha Members

Members of Beta Phi Alpha Sorority will be the guests of Mrs. Alice Hanson Jones, former national president of the sorority, at her home in Arlington this evening.

Mrs. Edwin M. Brown, chairman of the drama section of the American Association of University Women, will read a one-act play, "The Minuet," by Louis N. Parker, selected in commemoration of George Washington's Birthday.

Mrs. Jones will be assisted in entertaining by Miss Iris Bell and Miss Frances Youngblood.

Monroe Warrens on Trip South After Wedding at Orange, Va.

MRS. MONROE WARREN, JR.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Warren, jr., are on their wedding trip in the South following their marriage on Saturday at historic St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Orange, Va. The bride is the former Miss Dorothy Margaret Noehren, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Groman Noehren, of "Tetley," in Orange County, Va., and the late Mr. Noehren. Mr. Warren is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Warren, of Chevy Chase, Md.

The Rev. Charles V. Covell, rector of the church, officiated at the ceremony in the presence of a large group of relatives and friends. The altar was decorated with ivy, white gladioli and snapdragons, with cathedral candles. The wedding music was played by Mrs. L. W. Dick, of Woodberry Forest.

The bride entered with her brother, Arthur Groman Noehren, jr., of New York, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was of ivory satin trimmed with rose point lace. She wore a veil of illusion and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and fresia. Miss Virginia Noehren, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of pale green. Miss Elizabeth Noehren and Miss Edith Pratt, the bridesmaids, wore gowns of pale yellow, and carried bouquets of mixed flowers.

Heber T. Rice, jr., of Chevy Chase, Md., was best man and ushers were C. Manley Wade, jr., Martinsville, Va.; Thomas Warren, Chevy Chase, Md.; Robert Van Denbergh, and John Mallard, University of Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison Kite entertained the bridal party and house guests at a dinner Friday evening at "Tetley." They were also entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Warren, parents of the bridegroom, at a dinner at the Shoreham Hotel. The bridal party was feted at a supper by Mr. Warren's fraternity, Theta Tau, at the University of Virginia and the out-of-town wedding guests were entertained at a supper at "Tetley," Saturday evening.

Welfare of Youth Is Forum Topic

"Do we have too many young people and what can we do with them?" is the question that Dr. Howard Y. McClusky, assistant director of American Youth Commission, will discuss under the title, "Youth—Threat and Resource" at the Chevy Chase Community Forum tonight at 8:30. Dr. McClusky is on leave from the University of Michigan, where he is professor of psychology.

Rall Grigsby, who is planning special vocational courses for secondary schools as part of the national defense program and who is a former leader of the Des Moines Forum, will be discussion leader. The participants will be Ewan Clague, director, Bureau of Employment, Social Security Board; Miss Bertie Backus, principal, Alice Deal Junior High School; Miss Molly Yard, formerly executive secretary, American Student Union, now with National Youth Administration; Dr. C. E. Rice, United States Public Health Service, in charge of health programs for National Youth Administration.

The meeting is the fourth of a series sponsored by the Women's Club of Chevy Chase, and held at its clubhouse on Connecticut Avenue and Dunlop Street, opposite the Columbia Country Club. It is open to the public.

Mrs. James V. Bennett is the chairman of the forum.

Dr. Juan Soler To Give Luncheon

The Minister from Paraguay, Dr. Juan Jose Soler, will entertain at a small luncheon today in the Madison suite of the Wardman Park Hotel.

His guests will include the Chief of Staff of the Army, Gen. George C. Marshall; Chief of Naval Intelligence, Admiral Harold R. Stark; Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles; Director General of the Pan American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe; President of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, Warren Lee Pierson; Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, U. S. A., and Brig. Gen. L. T. Gerow, U. S. A.

Press Women Hear Willkie 'Off Record'

With the erstwhile Presidential candidate, Wendell Willkie, as guest of honor, the Women's National Press Club entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon in the Willard Room of the Hotel Willard. Arriving a few minutes after 5 o'clock, Mr. Willkie was greeted with photo flashlights, handshakes and cheers. To the disappointment of all, Mrs. Willkie did not accompany him. Last evening Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, with whom they are staying, entertained at a dinner party in their honor.

High point of the afternoon was Mr. Willkie's "off-the-record" speech, in which he recounted his trip to England. It was an informal talk and guests surrounded him, applauding at frequent intervals. Mrs. Patrick Hurley, wearing a white feather hat to accent her black ensemble, clapped her white-gloved hands quite often. Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Justice Douglas, wore a straw bonnet trimmed with flowers and chatted with Mrs. Bruce Smith, whose white flowered hat topped a mink coat.

Senator Styles Bridges wandered about greeting guests and sipping tea. Mrs. George Holmes was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Dana Coman, who wore a long, polka dot snood. Mrs. Holmes had a silver fox jacket over her black ensemble. They were accompanied by Miss Ann Beasley, of Ohio.

Mrs. J. Fred Essary, president of the club, introduced Mr. Willkie. She wore a bright red hat with a white feather and her black frock had ruffles of white organdy about the neck and sleeves. Others there included Mrs. Harvey Delano, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. John Matthew Whitall, Miss Neta Davis, of New York; Vincente Billmania, Mrs. Al Toombs, Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Bargeron and Miss Marion Martin, who topped off her severe ensemble with a completely frivolous pink straw hat.

Odend'hals Off For Florida After Maryland Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Odend'hal are en route to Florida following their wedding last Friday at 10 o'clock in Rocvkville, Md. The bride is the former Miss Evelyn Isabelle Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Woodward of Dallas, Tex. Mr. Odend'hal is the son of Lucien Odend'hal of Baltimore.

The bride wore a going-away suit of teal blue, with a black straw hat trimmed with dusty rose, and matching accessories. She wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Helen Kayser, of Tyler, Tex., was matron of honor, and Albert E. Reitzel of Greensboro, North Carolina, was best man.

The bride attended North Texas State Teachers College and Texas Christian University. The bridegroom was graduated from the Law School of the University of Maryland, and is an attorney with the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, at Frederick, Md. On their return they will be at home to their friends at Springbrook, Silver Springs, Md.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

TO SAY THAT PIGS, in great variety, were the motif of a very elegant weekend dinner party requires some explanation. The dinner was a birthday party given by the United States Ambassador to Poland (and to other governments-in-exile in England) and Mrs. Anthony Biddle for their son-in-law, prince Aleksander Hohenlohe. Alec Hohenlohe and his charming little princess have recently acquired a farm in Maryland where they intend to raise pigs, the sweet, clean, modern kind of pig. Thus the pig motif at the Biddles chic party.

Most amusing present brought to the party was the live, baby pig given the Hohenlohes as a start for the farm by Lieut. Col. W. H. Colbern. Col. Colbern had spent the whole afternoon bringing the piglet in from the country and giving it a bath, in preparation for its introduction to society. The little animal didn't take kindly to water, at least not soapy water, and bit the hand that bathed it. However, Army discipline took effect and the pig behaved perfectly after its initial protest. Another useful gift was a pair of meek little guinea pigs in a wicker basket.

Luckily, perhaps, there was no more livestock among the presents but there were china pigs, wooden pigs, balloons shaped like pigs, books about pigs and treatises on how to raise them, and even a chain of sausages tied with little blue bows. Probably the Hohenlohes will have had enough of porkers before they ever reach their farm.

THE BIDDLES received their guests at the 1925 F Street Club and dinner was served at three flower-laden tables in the club's dining room. Mrs. Biddle, who has wide, gray eyes and a radiant smile wore a gold and maroon dinner gown in a Persian design. A sparkling necklace of two rows of diamonds and a sable scarf completed her costume.

Helping her mother welcome each new arrival, Princess Hohenlohe looked enchanting in a simple, brown evening gown with a filmy, gold-embroidered scarf across her shoulders. Her jewels were a ruby and diamond necklace and a matching ring of bracelets.

Among those helping celebrate Alec Hohenlohe's birthday are his former chief at the Polish Embassy, Count Jerzy Potocki, Baron and Baroness Baeyens, Senhor and Senhora Gouthier, of the Brazilian Embassy, Count Lasocki, without his popular wife who is recovering from flu; the Assistant French Naval Attache and the Marquise de Levis Mirepoix, and Mrs. Kent Legare. Also Lady Gormanston, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Mitchell, the Counselor of the Polish Embassy, Jan Drohojowski, the Misses Theo Sedgewick, Marie vom Rath, and Pamela Whatley, and Carmel Offie, Ricardo Siri, Robert Coe and Rafal Lepkowski.

Fascinating Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins has found the satisfactory answer to the problem of how really to "see" one's friends at a party. At the tea given for her the other afternoon by Mrs. Lawrence Houghteling, Mrs. Robbins sat on a sofa by the fire while people took turns sitting beside her for a real chat. She is very much cheered these days by the news that her second son, Hutchinson Robbins, will come to Washington to live. He will be accompanied by his attractive wife, the former Louise Auchincloss, and their baby son and the date of their arrival will be sometime in April.

FOR THE TEA PARTY Mrs. Houghteling had chosen a long, black dress topped by a fitted jacket of becoming scarlet, embroidered in gold. Pouring tea was Miss Carolyn Nash, whose white, flower hat added a spring-like touch to her dark costume. She was being coached a bit in German by the former Austrian Minister, Edgar Prochnik. Miss Nash is working at the Red Cross translating German.

Others glimpsed at the Houghtelings' were Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock, with their weekend guest, Mrs. Robert Post, Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, the Misses Patten, William P. MacCracken, Fred Roy, George Abell and a number of others.

Prettiest headdresses seen at the Adolf Berles' tea the other afternoon were the becoming coronet of pink roses worn by the hostess and Mrs. Dean Acheson's wide, black hat turned up off the face to show a band of jet at the forehead.

Reeds, McNutts Give Dinners

Two official dinners were given last evening when the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt were hosts and and Associate Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed entertained in honor of the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones.

The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih was ranking guest at the buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. McNutt in their apartment at the Shoreham. The party preceded the forum-broadcast in which Mr. McNutt took part last evening. It was sponsored by the Washington Committee of the Chinese Industrial Cooperatives of which Mrs. McNutt is chairman.

"Our Far Eastern Policy" was the subject, sponsored by Theodore Granik of the American Forum. The speakers were Mr. McNutt, Robert Aura Smith, William Chamberlain and Col. Theodore Roosevelt, jr.

Man Defames Girl's Character to Her Coworkers; Believing He Misunderstood Her Attitude on One Occasion, She Asks How to Secure His Good Opinion

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For several years I worked with a certain young man, who is very good looking and has a pleasing personality. While we were always friendly, we had never dated until a couple of months ago,—just a few weeks previous to my changing places of employment. In spite of our surface friendship, however, there was an element of antagonism,—since he sometimes told us at the office of his conquests, and I treated him indifferently, as I didn't want him to think I was interested.

When he asked me for a date, I thought that in view of our long acquaintance, he would treat me in a friendly, companionable way,—and while I was greatly attracted to him, I expected to maintain that attitude. However, his behavior disappointed me. But I hoped, each time we had a date, that I would be able to handle the situation more successfully than the last time. I wanted to be a good influence on him, but he proved to be the stronger personality. Still, I believed him to be a fine person, who had associated with the wrong sort, and I know he has ideals, from things he says.

Since it was unusually late when we got home, I said good night at the door,—until one evening when I had insisted on getting in early, as I had special work to do next day. As it was early, I didn't stop to say good night at the door, but stepped inside and turned on the lights. (I share a small apartment with another girl, and since it is the only home I have in this city, I like to use it hospitably.)

He followed me inside, and naturally I expected him to stay only a few minutes. But since my housemate was out, he misconstrued my actions and decided I was "leading him on." Nothing, I assure you, was farther from my thoughts. I was speechless with bewilderment at his behavior, and so he left, with the wrong impression. I felt so degraded I could scarcely live with myself; and tried to think what I should have done that would have prevented the misunderstanding.

A few days later, I had a proposal of marriage from another man, whom I had been dating intermittently for about two years. He had proposed before, but this time I was in utter confusion about the other situation, so I persuaded myself that marriage to him might be for the best. Shortly afterward, in talking to a girl in my former office, I mentioned that I was "thinking of getting married." She carried this news back to her office,—and when this man heard it, he broadcast the statement that I had "led him on;" asked what he was supposed to "think of me?" and said the marriage "looked like an invitation to trouble," etc.

We had previously agreed not to mention to others in his office that we had been dating together, and I had kept the agreement. When others asked me about him, I would change the subject. Following his tirade above mentioned, an older woman in the office told me about it; said he seemed "ashamed and upset," and remarked that she wished she could help me straighten things out.

By that time I had changed my mind about getting married and I told her so. I also told her to tell this man, if he wanted to know anything about me, that he should get his information from me. As it happens, he frequently asks her about me. The situation has me terribly upset, as I value his good opinion of me, and never before has my character been questioned. Is there anything I can do to correct his wrong impression?

I have never seen him any more, but I do see others from that office, and while I feel that, having known me, they trust me—still I know it is human to doubt. The older woman has suggested that I explain myself by letter to this man, but I am not sure this would be helpful. However, if you believe a frank discussion of the misunderstanding would be profitable, I shall make an effort in that direction. In the meantime, worry over the matter is having a bad effect on my new work. Please advise me soon. A. B. C.

'All Seems Yellow To the Jaundiced Eye'

DEAR A. B. C.: The nasty insinuations this boastful bounder leveled at you, on learning you might take a husband, are reminding of the skunk's performance—when surprised or dismayed. It was inevitable that you would eventually feel unclean after romancing with him. Anyone who associates with a skunk is bound to carry for some little time afterward the stench of the creature.

But it is folly to expect the skunk to apologize for that state of affairs, or to understand the peculiar offensive nature of his idiosyncracies. He is best left entirely to the company of his particular breed. No kind lady is ever going to work any change in his type or manner by employing the "nice kittty" approach to him. And yet, such is the fool's errand you have in mind—in thinking to treat with him further, in an effort to establish a pure and fragrant meeting of minds: compounded of remorse and regeneration (tantamount to reincarnation) on his part, and foregiveness and renewed faith as your contribution.

Favored, as you are, by a change of employment which automatically delivers you from his presence and spell—the sensible thing to do is to forget about him. Forgetting is merely a process of outgrowing—as you can easily do by opening your mind to the challenges of the new environment, thus gradually crowding images of the past from the foreground of your consciousness.

What he thinks about you should give you little concern. It is more important that you get, and hold, a true picture of him. It is to your credit,—although indicative of your gullibility, your disposition to believe the best, even when confronted by the worst,—that you cling to the notion he is essentially fine, but temporarily coarsened by wrong associations.

And it is to his discredit that he befouls, by lecherous aggression and lewd insinuation, any woman who admits him to friendship. What he assumes, and says, of his women friends is less an inventory of their actual quality, than it is an expression of his own polluted state of mind. As Pope remarked, "All seems infected to the infected spy, as all seems yellow to the jaundiced eye." M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

And Now the Red Shoe—Color Accent for the Spring Wardrobe

There was a day when women shied away from the slightest suggestion of color in shoes. Now feminine footwear is getting giddier every day. The woman who first wore blue shoes was a daring soul, indeed, but wait until the first blossoms of spring appear. It's a wager that one woman out of every three will own red shoes of some description. These made their debut for evening wear several years ago, but this season you'll see them worn by day with navy white, prints, and to accent the new beiges and greens. Fashion Futures predicted, "Red strapped shoes to wear with everything." Below are three airy versions in satin-sleek red kidskin. Left—Delman presents a sandal with the vamp swirled into a graceful rosette. Center—Newton Elkin makes a Pandora design in red combined with vivid royal blue, and with platform sole, and vamp set off by a two-tone bow. Left—The I. Miller shoe features strips of kidskin twisted into an intricate lacy pattern over the vamp

Cellophane Covers For Star's Clothes

The cupboards and shelves in Lucille Ball's dressing room are a symphony in cellophane. Her entire wardrobe for "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," her latest picture, is tucked away in transparent covers. Each frock or suit had a cellophane shoulder cover, bound with blue cotton tape. Handbags and gloves each had their separate envelopes bound to match.

Lucille's closets in her home are similarly equipped; there is even a collection of envelopes for lingerie, scarves, handkerchiefs, and transparent bags for her shoes.

It's About Time

IT'S ABOUT TIME to use fringe to give new life to a dressing table. Paste fringe around top of plain lamp shades. Cut fringe same depth as shades or unevenly, if desired. Use a row of fringe around top of dressing table skirt

Diet Tricks Will Give Reducer Satisfied Feeling After Meals

By Ida Jean Kain

REDUCERS are always on the lookout for "a few tricks to help us to keep our calories on the safe and svelte side—say like toasting the bread. Does that help to 'dry' out the starch?"

That's a fair question, but the answer may be disappointing—toasting the bread sometimes adds calories for the simple reason that you are apt to eat more of it than of plain bread. However, the calories in bread or toast depend on how thin you slice it and how much butter you spread on it. Soft butter spreads farther and a thin film of butter counts less.

A neat trick is to balance the menu so that you include some foods which help you to feel full and some which stay by you. Fibrous vegetables are bulky and help you to feel satisfied quickly. Have one or two of these plus a chewy salad or crunchy biscuits to give you the illusion of having dined well. Then to keep from getting too hungry between meals, have a protein food—lean meat, eggs or cheese—in your reducing meal.

Hardboiled Eggs "Stay"

It may be helpful to know that hard cooked eggs have greater "staying" qualities than eggs which are soft cooked. Also, start the meal with a hot soup or top it off with a hot beverage—they give a sense of satiety and comfort all out of proportion to their low calorie content.

Along about 4 in the afternoon—when that "all gone" feeling begins to sneak up on you—take a hot beverage. A cup of tea with one lump of sugar counts very little in calories. Or, you might prefer piping hot bouillon, a glass of fruit juice or some fruit. For a real treat, have a cup of hot cocoa made with skim milk and flavored with vanilla.

The rule on these afternoon pick-me-ups is not to let them exceed 100 calories. If you feel the effects of your diet during the afternoon, it is much better to have a low-calorie snack of this kind to tide yourself over.

Count Your Calories

One successful dieter has passed along a tip which you may find very profitable. She explains that "I have been on a diet for six weeks and have lost 21 pounds. I found that it was easier to lose when I kept track of all the calories taken at each meal. I used a small notebook and kept a 'calorie diary'—then I always knew just how I stood with my daily allowance."

This plan has worked so well that I hope the reducer is reinforcing her menus with one vitamin A, B, C, D concentrate daily for additional protection.

There are other ways of making dieting easy—well, easier! For example, when you market select the young vegetables. They contain fewer calories than the old ones which have developed more starch. Moreover, the young vegetables are higher in vitamins. And in cooking the vegetables, take care to cook them so they retain their own flavor—then you won't need to add butter for flavor. Start the vegetables in a very small amount of boiling water and do not overcook.

Learn to Write Clear Letters

WHAT A LOT of letters a girl has to write! Now she's penning a note to a young man at camp or to an old school chum; tomorrow she's writing to a "snooty" social acquaintance or to a critical would-be employer. And each letter has its own difficulties!

That's why it's such a help to have a few letter-writing pointers. You don't have to worry over whether you've said the right thing or whether you've "pulled a boner."

What to do about that chilly feeling that's crept into your letter to Jim? Take out some of the "I did this, then I did that," sprinkle in a few warm-sounding "you's." Write "The gang all asks after you . . . You must have lots to tell us."

And no danger of your petering out halfway through your letter to Sue if you've salted away a few good bits of local news you know will interest her; "Betty and John are altar bound . . . We're all sewing for Alice's new baby."

Are you puzzled about letter etiquette? What paper to use in answering a formal invitation from the fastidious Mrs. Jones—in writing a job application to the awesome Mr. Wells of Wells & Co.?

Plain or monogrammed paper is suitable for your very formal note to Mrs. Jones. In writing to Mr. Wells use paper that's plain or printed with your name and address.

All business letters should be typewritten and you can use the typewriter for friendly letters but write social notes by hand.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Breadcrumb Dumplings Easy on the Pocketbook

THERE'S no need to forego a fresh loaf of bread, just because you still have a few slices in your bread box. For you can use up those leftovers in dozens of different breadcrumb recipes.

For instance, the next time you serve stew, dress it up with breadcrumb dumplings. You'll have a good cold-weather dish, at low cost, too. Make the dumplings tiny for daintier appearance—they'll triple in size anyhow before they're cooked through. The following recipe makes 24 dumplings.

Breadcrumb Dumplings

Scald ½-cup milk with 1 tablespoon butter; pour onto 1 well-beaten egg. Add ¾-cup fine dry bread crumbs, ½-teaspoon baking powder and ¼-teaspoon salt; stir to make a mixture stiff enough to form lightly into marble-sized balls with a teaspoon. Drop balls from teaspoon on top of a hot stew. Cover and steam for 8 minutes. Makes 24 small dumplings.

Dumplings for oven-cooked dishes—Use recipe above, increasing baking powder to 1 teaspoon. Mix and drop from teaspoon on top of hot casserole or stew or hot pie. Cover and bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees for 15 minutes.

Cedar Chests Modernized; Now Have Drawers

For, 20 years ago, or even less, cedar chests mostly were large, oblong, boxy catchalls for woolens and souvenirs.

But today cedar chests are quite another story—stylized and modernized for greater beauty and convenience. One of the outstanding innovations in the new cedar chests is the liberal and adroit placement of extra drawers and trays.

For example: If you want to store away in your cedar chest some little trifle like last winter's gloves, soft silk or woolen scarf, or something similar, you don't have to open the lid of the cedar chest and go pawing down under all the things packed away.

No, just open one, or the other, end of your cedar chest and you'll find a velvet lined tray which makes a nice, easily accessible place to store this sort of female accessory.

The Vitamin Crowd

I.

"Pardon me, could I have a glass of water?"

"No, wait, let me get you an old-fashioned."

"No, no, I'm sorry, but I wouldn't dare taste a thing until I had my vitamins."

"Oh, do you take yours before you eat? That's just the way Louise Leep does hers! Now, where is Louise? You simply MUST meet Her!"

"Does she take her's in capsules or pills?"

"Pills—I believe. Anyway, I KNOW she takes them before she eats. Now, Dr. Bilk makes me take mine after meals."

"Oh, well, I've virtually quit eating anyway—my compound has 20,000 units of A!"

"Well, I have all the letters and then I have the riboflavin——"

"So have I . . . And the iron and the liver concentrate . . ."

"Yes, and I have the thiamin chloride . . . and the nicotinic acid——"

"Say, I don't believe I have the nicotinic acid! I'm going to call Dr. Bilk right up about that!"

"Yes, and then I have all the B factors——"

"Oh, I take my B complex separately."

"Dr. Salvo's very much opposed to taking the B complex separately."

"Well, I understand the medical profession is hopelessly divided on the subject—oh, how do you do, Arthur? You're just the man I want to see! Miss Snapp, this is Mr. Dosey. I've been wanting to get you two together! Arthur, Miss Snapp takes her vitamin B complex separately! . . . Yes! Just the same as you do!"

II

"Pardon me, I didn't get your name?"

"Vimm! Mrs. Alphonso Vimm."

"I'm Mrs. March—Mrs. Augustine March. Have you lived here long, Mrs. Vimm?"

"Several months, but I haven't gotten out much because I haven't been so well—that is, until I started taking B1——"

"Oh, are you taking B1? I'm taking B2!"

"Well, I'm really taking B1 and B2."

"So am I! And, as a matter of fact, B4."

"Say, do yours come in a dark brown syrup?"

"Yes! That tastes just like molasses!"

"That's right! And in a brown bottle with a white cap that screws on?"

"Yes! And the bottle says 'Shake well' on the outside?"

"So does mine! Why, it's exactly the same thing!"

"Now, isn't that amazing!"

"It's simply uncanny!"

"By the way, where do you live, Mrs. Vimm?"

"At the Alhambra."

"Well, I live at the Taj Mahal, and I'll just drive you home if you haven't your car."

"Oh, I'd love it!"

"And, by the way, are you doing anything tomorrow?"

"Not especially."

"Well, I was just wondering if you wouldn't have luncheon with me? I'd really like to get to know you better."

III.

"Did you go to the Twitters' party?"

"Yes."

"Marjorie Prance have all the men lassoed as usual?"

"No! Alice Weeks had 'em!"

"Not Alice Weeks!"

"Yes! I never saw anything like it. She acted as if she had the St. Vitus dance."

"I can't believe it! As blah as she is!"

"Vitamins! Why I take A, B, C, D, E, F and G and then B1, B2, B3——"

"Oh, so do I. But they say Alice is taking ALL the English alphabet and then some new one they've just discovered called Alpha 2——"

"Say, where can you get this Alpha 2?"

"Alice said she just got it at the drugstore—wait, where are you going?"

"TO THE DRUGSTORE!"

'Shock Troops' To Spur Drive For Boys Club

An army known as his personal "Shock Troops" and numbering 500 men, has been organized by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, founder of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, and will play an important part in the drive to raise $100,000 for the five Police Boys Clubs, Campaign Chairman Charles B. Dulcan announced yesterday.

"I realize that it is important to meet this quota as quickly as possible, "Maj. Brown, superintendent of police, told Chairman Dulcan. "Therefore, I have banded together this special go-getting, hard-hitting group of men."

Maj. Brown said his "Shock Troops" had been invited to occupy special tables at tomorrow noon's first luncheon report meeting in the National Press Club.

Hundreds of workers will be on hand for the first report meeting at 12:30 to hear Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, deliver the principal speech. All division chairmen, vice chairmen and captains will attend, in addition to prominent members of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club board. Morris Cafritz, club president, also will speak.

Vienna Models Show Styles To Buyers 'Friendly to Nazis'

Copyright by New York Times

Vienna, Feb. 16 (Via Berlin).—In a room where Beethoven first presented his revolutionary Eroica to the world, Vienna's haute culture in the realm of women's dress this afternoon opened a four-day presentation of the newest spring and summer fashion models, their first 1941 exhibition of timely styles, in the House of Fashion in Vienna.

The exhibition is primarily an affair of buyers and sellers of Germany and the states friendly to Germany. The general public is excluded. There is something for every taste in this year's fashions. Evening gowns, for instance, include almost everything from clinging form fits and slit skirts, through befeathered and bespangled exotics back toward 1815, a marvel of a tight, unicolor bodice with figures billowing the skirt. Feathers and spangles are not distributed over the dress, but concentrated at one of two points such as the flowing headgear, hip girdle of ostrich strands or silver, gold or pearl glistening in coat of arms designs in the shoulder cavity or upper skirt.

For outdoor spring and summer socials jersey materials also provide numerous possibilities that combine elegance with warmth. Some such jersey models are belted. Evening wraps, capes and coats run from furs to linen and include jersey. Afternoon party frocks incline toward long extra-full skirts.

The line of tailor-made for street wear is almost severely straight from the shoulder to the skirt seam quarter leg below the knee. Sportswear varies from extravagances to gray and green fusions inspired by the national costumes worn centuries long by Alpine hunters.

The most popular colors appear to be various shades of yellow, although greens are much evident. The basic old stand-by in black for afternoons and evenings this year is relieved by color touches, most often by white. Pockets and pocket imitations have been adapted to almost every kind of garment except evening gowns.

Mlle. Eve Curie White House Guest

Mlle. Eve Curie, writer and daughter of the discoverers of radium, is a guest at the White House and will be until this afternoon, it was learned last night.

Mlle. Curie, who has been publishing a French newspaper and making radio talks in London for the benefit of the "free French" forces, arrived in the United States January 20. She is a friend of Mrs. Roosevelt.

'Y' to Hold Mardi Gras

The annual All-Association Mardi Gras gill be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p. m. this week at the Phyllis Wheatley Y. W. C. A., 901 Rhode Island Avenue Northwest. A costume ball, with crowning of the queen and a costume parade, will be held Tuesday, February 25, at the closing of the festivities.

Mrs. Clagett's Funeral Today In Marlboro

Mrs. Elizabeth Lansdale Sasscer Clagett, member of an old and prominent Maryland family, who died Friday in Upper Marlboro, will be buried in Trinity Cemetery today following services at 11 a. m. in Trinity Church at Marlboro.

Mrs. Clagett was descended from an old Huguenot family that came to Maryland in the seventeenth century. She was the wife of T. Van Clagett, of Upper Marlboro, former judge of the Circuit Court, whose family goes back to the beginnings of the Free State.

Mrs. Clagett, 73, was the daughter of Dr. Frederic Sasscer and Mrs. Rosalie Ghiselin Sasscer. Representative Lansdale Sasscer, of the Fifth Maryland Congressional District, was her nephew.

One of her sons, Lansdale Clagett, of Upper Marlboro, also entered politics and now is a member of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Mrs. Clagett was born at the family home, Kingston Park, where she died.

Alfonso Renounces Claim to Throne In Favor of Son

Rome, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain, in a manifesto to the Spanish people tonight, renounced all claims to the Spanish throne in favor of his 27-year-old son, Don Juan, Prince of the Asturias.

Alfonso issued the manifesto from a sick bed where he is suffering from a second heart attack within a comparatively short time.

Should Juan be placed on the throne, he would reign as Juan III. Gen. Franco would remain in direct control of all the armed forces and perhaps other posts, it was understood.

The condition of Alfonso of Spain was reported unchanged today. A bulletin by his chief physician said his respiration and heart action still were labored.

Musicians' Union Backs Symphony Drive for Funds

The National Symphony Orchestra's current drive for funds was given the full support yesterday of the Musicians Protective Union.

The indorsement was given in a letter to Augustus E. Gigengack, chairman of the campaign's Government committee, from C. R. Brinton, secretary of the union, who declared:

"Approximately 70 musicians have found employment (through the National Symphony) for summer seasons of from six to eight weeks. It appears that the increasing popularity of symphony orchestras has served to some degree in remedying the very disastrous unemployment situation which was created by the dismissal of approximately 130,000 musicians since the advent of sound pictures in theaters."

The drive for $107,000 to operate the orchestra during the 1941-1942 season ends next Thursday.

Norman Davis Given B'nai B'rith Service Award

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, today received the ninety-seventh anniversary award of B'nai B'rith, Jewish service and fraternal organization.

The award, a plaque symbolizing "honor, duty and achievement," was given in recognition of Davis' "Humanitarian Services" and his insistence to Nazi officials that American relief supplies sent to Poland be distrbiuted on a non-sectarian basis.

Accepting the award, Davis said that before Italy's entrance into the war closed the port of Genoa the Red Cross had contributed $1,000,000 in cash and supplies to relieve the suffering of Polish civilians.

"The powerful alchemy of the Red Cross flag works to dispel to a degree at least the petty animosities and despicable hatreds generated by war," Davis said, adding that the "spirit of brotherhood, of tolerance of understanding and of good will was never more important than it is today."

Nursing School Plans First Commencement

Invitations are being issued today for the first commencement of the School of Practical Nursing at the Home for Incurables, Upton Street and Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

The exercises will take place at the home on Saturday, March 1, at 3 p. m. when Bishop Freeman will speak. There will be 12 graduates in the ceremonies marking the close of the first year of the school.

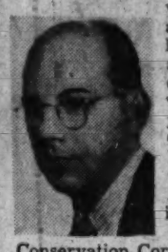
The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt's worst headache at the moment is the job training program and what to do about it. He has three agencies under him involved in job training: Office of Education, Youth Administration, and Civilian Conservation Corps. The results so far have been good, but not as good as had been expected. Office of Education has had its troubles. It has been training persons for defense jobs in vocational schools. By law, it can't dictate educational standards, which some officials believe has been a handicap. Labor organizations have complained that the training program has flooded the labor market. Another complaint is that the trainees aren't getting jobs.



A plan has been suggested which would give Employment Service, another McNutt agency, a check on the training programs of NYA and the Office of Education. Employment Service has detailed knowledge of labor demands in each city. The plan is to train persons to meet those demands and then have Employment Service place trainees in jobs.

Federal Bureau of Investigation hasn't sufficient funds to pay salaries of its employes for the full fiscal year. Defense work compelled the FBI to spend its money faster than it had expected to. A deficiency appropriation of $975,000 is being asked from Congress . . . Card - punch registers will be set up this week . . . A Federal employe, who prefers to remain unnamed, suggests that Government workers here get together and contribute 25 cents each weekly toward the purchase of a bomber to be given public employes of England.

Immigration and Naturalization Service has asked for a deficiency appropriation of $2,900,000 to hire additional employes to complete its job of registering aliens. It estimated that there were 3,500,000 aliens in this country and more than 4,900,000 have registered . . . The House is expected to act favorably on the Dirksen resolution to investigate the feasibility of moving agencies from Washington to the field. Representative Dirksen believes that Social Security, ICC, HOLC, Railroad Retirement Board, General Land Office, and many others could operate in the field better than in Washington.

An "ice box in reverse" that will age hams in a few weeks has been developed by Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry. It is claimed the hams are better than many aged commercially or home-cured. Hams are aged in a "heat box." It has heat at the bottom instead of cold at the top as in an ice box.

Federal employe unions are trying to agree on amendments that would liberalize the retirement act . . . Representative Jennings Randolph will speak tonight on Carl Berger's "Your Government and Mine" that will be heard over WINX at 10:15 o'clock . . . One out of every five volunteers for the recent Army primary flying course was a youth who had been trained by the Civilian Pilots Training program . . . James Hunt, Navy messenger, has completed 30 years of service in the same job.

Railroad Retirement Board has suffered from the business boom. It has meant less work, consequently fewer employes. Several hundred employes have been separated within the past year and most of the agency's field offices were reorganized. The board's work has increased unexpectedly recently and apparently it was discovered that too many employes had been separated as Congress has been asked for $462,000 to hire additional personnel. Much of the new work results from a search of prior service records of railroad employes.

Judges of the recreation contest that closes tomorrow night are Lucille Foster McMillin, Dr. Frederick W. Davenport, Capt. Frank W. Hoover, Sybil Baker and Archie Edwards. The two winning Federal employes will be sent to St. Petersburg for a week's vacation.

D.A.R Will Consider Chapter for Children

Formation of a chapter of Children of the American Revolution by the Erasmus Perry Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will be considered at a meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Morrison Clark, 2801 Daniel Road, Chevy Chase, Md.

Mrs. J. Morris Kerr, national president of the Children of the American Revolution, will be guest speaker. Mrs. George Lyman Clark, Silver Spring, Md., regent, will preside.

Pays for Coffin—Dies

Albemarle, N. C., Feb. 16 (AP)—John David Burris, 72, of the Pleasant Grove Church community, wanted to leave no obligations behind him when he died. So he arranged to make monthly payments on his casket and funeral expenses. Last week—two years later—he made his last $5 payment. The next day he had a stroke of paralysis and died.

Pleasure Before Business

Mount Rainier Volunteer Fire Department members paid their bread and butter call yesterday at Holbrook Farms Dairy, Brentwood, Md. The firemen had held their annual banquet at the dairy building Saturday night. They returned yesterday afternoon for a fire in the cellar. Brentwood volunteer firemen accompanied the Mount Rainier smoke-eaters.

Protestants To Begin Home Visits

1,500 Christian Laymen Will Start Visitations Tonight In District Area

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post's Church Editor

More than 1,500 Protestant laymen tonight will begin visiting homes to win others to the Christian way of life. Instructions were given at mass meetings in the Washington area yesterday.

Participants in the home visitation evangelism phase of the National Christian Mission, they went to workers' rallies at Calvary Baptist Church, here; First Methodist Church, Hyattsville, Md., and Central Methodist Church, Ballston, Va. They were accompanied by many pastors.

At Calvary Church, lay leaders from about 70 churches heard Dr. Guy H. Black declare, "The greatest service you can render a friend is to win him to Christ." He cited as an example the bringing of a youth into church, and preparing him to take his place as a Christian citizen.

Dr. Black, director of the evangelism of the National Mission, shared the program with Dr. Walter Woodbury, secretary of evangelism for the Northern Baptist Convention. They and three other prominent evangelism leaders are aiding local pastors and laymen in the campaign.

Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the local mission, substituted as presiding officer for Dr. Horace E. Cromer, chairman of the local evangelism committee, who is ill with the flu. Dr. Charles Enders, pastor of Concordia Evangelical Church, offered a prayer.

Meanwhile, church workers of the Arlington and Fairfax congregations were listening to instructions at Central Methodist Church, Ballston, Va. The "teacher" was Dr. Roland Q. Leavell, director of evangelism for the Southern Baptist Convention.

Folllowing the Calvary meeting, Drs. Black and Woodbury attended a dinner rally at First Church, Hyattsville, to present similar instructions.

Tonight through Thursday, team workers of the Prince Georges area will meet at 6:15 p. m. for supper meetings prior to their visitations. Some who live closer to the District will join in the nightly previsitation programs at McKendree Methodist Church, South Dakota near Rhode Island Avenue Northeast. Dr. H. H. McConnell, of Pittsburgh, will speak at McKendree tonight.

Other speaker assignments for tonight are: Central Church, Ballston, Dr. Leavell; Foundry Methodist, Dr. Black; Chevy Chase Presbyterian, Dr. Black; Metropolitan Presbyterian, Dr. Woodbury; Emory Methodist, Dr. Harry Williams, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Oneida, N. Y., and Vermont Avenue Baptist, Dr. Woodbury. With the exception of Vermont Avenue Church, suppers will precede the meetings. Workers of the Chevy Chase area will meet tonight at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church for their precalling program. Other area churches' meetings are continuing through Thursday night.

Sydney Kaufman Fetes Employes On 60th Birthday

Sydney C. Kaufman, president of the Young Men's Shop, celebrated his sixtieth birthday yesterday by entertaining employes of the store at his summer home in Bowie, Md.

KAUFMAN

Kaufman, who has been in the clothing business all his life, founded the Young Men's Shop in 1912, at which time it was said to be the only men's store on F Street. He is now associated in the business with Edgar C. Kaufman and Isadore Cohen.

Fond of fishing and hunting as recreations, Kaufman is also active in several Washington organizations. He is a Shriner and a member of the Elks and belongs to the Woodmont Country Club.

Five Fairfax Home Clubs Will Meet

Five Fairfax County home demonstration clubs will meet this week to discuss "Color Schemes in the Home," it was announced yesterday by Miss Lucy Blake, home demonstration agent.

The schedule of meetings is as follows: Woodlawn, today, at 2 p. m.; Oakton, tomorrow, at 2 p. m.; Mount Vernon, Wednesday, at 10 a. m.; Fairview, Wednesday, at 2 p. m., and Navy, Thursday, at 2 p. m.

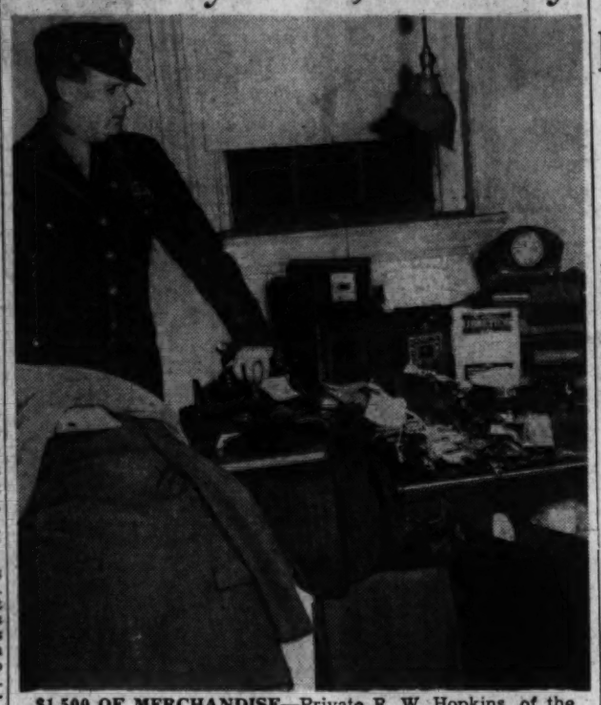
Meetings of 4-H Clubs are scheduled as follows: Burke, today at 9 a. m.; Woodlawn, today, at 12:30 p. m.; Groveton, tomorrow, at 9 a. m., and Centerville, Friday, at 10:30 a. m.

Party Tomorrow to Aid Holy Names Academy

A party for the benefit of the Academy of the Holy Names, Silver Spring, Md., will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association at the school auditorium on Pershing Drive.

The committee on arrangements consists of Mrs. Donald Shannon, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clements, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lynch, Dr. William Greaney and William V. Jouvenal.

'Scientific' Shoplifting Ring Smashed by Arrest, Police Say



$1,500 OF MERCHANDISE—Private R. W. Hopkins, of the Third Precinct, looks over part of a collection of miscellaneous articles taken from stores by what police described as a shoplifting ring

Two Washington detectives yesterday shattered a ring of scientific shoplifters, who trained for their nimble work like athletes, under the orders of a college-educated "master mind."

A diary kept by the ringleader was the final clew that exposed the gang, formed in a "prison pact" among three colored youths who at the time were serving sentences at the Occoquan workhouse.

More than $1,500 worth of loot, taken from downtown department and clothing stores, was recovered by police from a number of second-hand stores. One of the three youths was arrested yesterday. The leader and one other are still being sought, but their indentities are known.

The detectives, Lester Rank and Jack Frost, of Third Precinct, discovered the ring in a routine check of pawn reports, filed under the law by second-hand stores. They found numerous items listed for persons living at 1710 R Street Northwest.

At the R Street address they found the diary, kept by a former Howard University student with a long police record. It contained a detailed list of crimes committed during the past month. They also found 23-year-old Frederick Lee there. He was charged with grand larceny.

Police said they learned the gang leader had his associates take vigorous exercise and alcohol rubdowns to limber up their muscles before each "shopping" trip. At home the three spent arduous hours practicing the art of concealing large objects beneath their overcoats. They also rehearsed shielding each other by standing nearby with coats outspread.

Goods recovered from their apartment and second-hand dealers included large radios, clocks, electric irons, 25 new suits of clothes and more than 500 victrola records.

Dr. Gottschall Asks Religious Understanding

Worshipers of Petworth Methodist Church yesterday heard Dr. A. W. Gottschall plead for a greater religious understanding in America.

Director of the Southern Area of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, he said that "all of us have a claim on America and not one group in our midst can say this land belongs to it."

Because of that, he continued, "we should recognize the rights and privileges of religious liberty and freedom of conscience, and learn to appreciate the sincerity and earnestness of others in the practice of their religions, no matter how different from our own."

"These differences, deep-rooted and valid, have a definite place in our American way of living together," said he. Dr. Frank Steelman, pastor, introduced him.

Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregation Church, yesterday sounded a sermon appeal for more practical Christianity.

He told a large morning congregation that mere theorizing is "balcony living" and only becomes valuable when applied to the "cobblestone existence" of reality.

Building Stays At High Level In Alexandria

Alexandria building operations continued at an above normal level last week, when applications for construction costing $103,552 were approved by Building Inspector A. R. Lash, according to his weekly report to City Manager Carl Budwesky. Seventeen building permits were issued.

New construction, principally responsible for the establishment of new records in 1939 and 1940, continued to set the pace, with 12 permits representing projects casting $82,558, while five permits for alterations, repairs and additions amounted to $20,994.

The largest individual project during the week was represented in six permits issued to Parmanesque Homes Village, Inc., for the construction of six brick and frame two-story single-family dwellings on Halcyon Drive and Grandview Drive, the development will cost $36,578.

Dondero to Speak

Representative George A. Dondero (Republican), of Michigan, an authority on Lincoln, will be guest speaker at the annual turkey dinner and meeting of the Brotherhood Club of Takoma Park Presbyterian Church tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. Club President William M. Greene will be toastmaster.

75th Year Is Celebrated At St. Mary's

Worshipers of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church yesterday helped begin its diamond jubilee celebration and were urged to carry on the loyal spirit of its founders.

Crowding the edifice at 728 Twenty-third Street Northwest, the members of Washington's oldest colored church of that denomination heard the Rev. E. G. Henderson, guest preacher, extol the spirit and faith of the early members. He is Vicar of Atonement Chapel, Deanwood, near the District line.

Further tribute to the founders was paid last night, when a memorial tablet bearing their names was dedicated at services led by the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, vicar of Calvary Chapel, Eleventh and G Streets Northeast.

The Rev. Ellis A. Christian, St. Mary's rector, celebrated Holy Communion during the morning. This week he will lead the congregation in further celebrations of the anniversary.

An historical pageant will be presented tonight at 8; Men's Night will be observed tomorrow at 8 o'clock and on Wednesday, a book of remembrance will be dedicated by Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church. A reception is planned for Thursday at 8 p. m. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will preach and confirm a class on Friday at 7:30 p. m.

St. Mary's Parish was founded in 1865 by colored communicants of Epiphany Episcopal Church. The St. Luke's Parish at Fifteenth and P Streets Northwest was a "daughter" church of St. Mary's.

The present St. Mary's Church site was a gift from Mrs. Catherine Pearson, a St. John's parishioner.

D. C. Lawyers to Honor Justice J. W. Madden

Justice J. Warren Madden, of the United States Court of Claims and former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, will be honored by a testimonial dinner at the Shoreham Hotel, on Saturday, February 22. The dinner will be given by the National Lawyers Guild.

Senator Abe Murdock (Democrat), of Utah, and Edwin S. Smith, of the National Labor Relations Board, will be speakers. Members of the United States Supreme Court and Federal bench, and members of the Senate and House of Representatives will be guests.

Businessmen to Meet

Final plans for the annual dance of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association February 25 will be made when the association meets tomorrow at 8:30 p. m., at 5320 Georgia Avenue Northwest.

Citizen Units To Dedicate Police House

Ceremonies Set For Today at New Second Precinct Headquarters

Ten regular citizens' meeting and four special meetings are scheduled this week, while 30 North Washington associations plan to be represented at continued crosstown bus hearings Tuesday.

Members of the Mid-City and Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Associations will sponsor a formal dedication of the new Second Precinct Police Headquarters at Sixth Street and New York Avenue Northwest today at 10 a. m.

Ceremonies will be preceded by a parade at 9:30 a. m. from Ninth and U Streets Northwest to the new building. Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Police Capt. Jeremiah A. Sullivan and A. J. Driscoll, Mid-City president, will speak at the dedication.

American University Park Citizens will hold their fifteenth anniversary dinner today at 7 p. m. at Brook Farm Tea House, 6501 Brookville Road, Chevy Chase, Md. Dancing will follow the dinner talks, according to President James E. Maxwell.

Meeting Set Tonight

A dinner-meeting of the Interfederation Conference, coordinating group for associations in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia, also will be held tonight in the Y. M. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest.

A mass meeting of Southwest citizens will be held Wednesday night by the Southwest Association to discuss the proposed military patrolling of areas in that sector and to hear a report of police plans in that connection by Maj. Brown.

Washington's birthday services will be held for the seventy-fifth consecutive year on Saturday morning by the Association of Oldest Inhabitants. Special exercises are scheduled for 11:30 a. m. after a business meeting at 10:30, followed by wreath-laying ceremonies at the base of the Washington Monument.

At the regular citizens meetings, E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co., will address the Petworth Association Tuesday; Inspector Arthur E. Miller will speak at the Chevy Chase body's meeting Wednesday, and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer will address Sixteenth Street Highlands citizens Wednesday.

Today

Ill Infant Keeps Silver Spring Rescue Squad Busy

The rescue squad of the Silver Spring (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department won credit yesterday for twice saving the life of a 3-week-old girl.

Friday night Barbara Anne Ebbess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amat James Ebbess, of Burnt Mills Hills, Md., became strangled because of a digestive difficulty, and the rescue squad revived her with a respirator after 45 minutes' effort.

The child was taken to a Washington hospital, treated and sent home yesterday.

Last night she choked again, and again the rescue squad revived her, this time after 25 minutes' work. She'll go back to the hospital today.

A. S. Page to Address Air Mail Society

Arthur S. Page, topographer of the Postoffice Department, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Washington Air Mail Society this evening at 8 o'clock at the Thomson Community Center.

He also will exhibit some of the official cachets that have been used on first-flight covers. Members of the society also will exhibit first-flight and other air-mail covers. All stamp collectors are invited to be present.

Party for Rabbi, Mrs. Becker So Popular They Hire a Hall

WED 50 YEARS—Rabbi Moses Becker and his wife are shown at the party given yesterday at Chapel Lodge in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary

To Rabbi Moses Becker, 72, and his wife, Mary, 70, came nearly 200 relatives yesterday to pay tribute on the couple's golden wedding anniversary.

So numerous were the relatives and friends that members of the family hired a hall. They filled the Chapel Lodge Hall at 4211 Ninth Street Northwest with talk and tobacco smoke, toasts and merriment, incessant music of a nickelodeon and immeasurable good will.

Before his retirement a few years ago, Rabbi Becker was an assistant at the Ohev Sholom Congregation, where he served for 35 years. The couple are natives of Riga, Latvia, and were married in Baltimore. Since 1905 they have made their home in Washington at 306 I Street Northwest.

Rabbi Becker attributes their happiness to the fact that "our lives have been concerned with things of the spirit. The most important thing is the family. We're proud of them and happy to have them with us today."

Huge mounds of salads and cold cuts and sandwiches were consumed with cases of soft drinks. An anniversary cake topped off the feast.

All their children and families were there—Mrs. Louis Horowitz, of Baltimore, and Mrs. N. L. Goodman, Mrs. Abe Abrams, Miss Anne Becker, William Becker and Barney Becker, all of Washington.

From Baltimore came "over 100" relatives — brothers and sisters, cousins, nephews, nieces and their children and their children's children.

A niece, Mrs. Charles Doctor, came from Cleveland to attend the celebration. Other nephews and nieces included Mr. and Mrs. William Kneper, Long Island, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Falkman, Coatsville, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Israel I. Becker, Philadelphia.

Rabbi Zemach Green, of the Ohev Sholom Congregation, spoke briefly in tribute to the couple.

State Societies Will Sponsor Many Parties During Week

State societies will dance extensively this week. The Nebraska group leads off with a dance and reception beginning at 9 p. m. today at the Shoreham Hotel.

Honor guests will be the State's Congressional delegation. Entertainment features have been arranged.

The Delaware society will meet at 8 p. m. today in the Thomas Circle Club, 1326 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, to arrange for a St. Patrick's Day ball. An entertainment program will follow tonight's meeting.

The Pennsylvania society will hold a reception at 9 p. m. tomorrow at the Shoreham Hotel, followed at 9:30 p. m. by entertainment and dancing.

Quentin Reynolds, author and war correspondent, has been invited to address the Kentucky society at a meeting and dance to be held at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Willard Hotel. The event is in honor of Kentucky colonels residing in Washington.

"North Carolina's Part in National Defense" will be discussed by Gov. J. Melville Broughton at the North Carolina Society's annual Governor's Night banquet at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Shoreham Hotel.

A George Washington's Birthday anniversary ball will be held by the Virginia State Society at 9 p. m. Thursday at the Willard Hotel. Students at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va., will give a pageant.

The Colorado State Society will hold a reception and dance in honor of the Colorado Congressional delegation at 9 p. m. Thursday at the Shoreham.

West Virginians will dance Thursday night in the Rose Room of the Hotel Washington. The event begins at 10 p. m. The Iowa society will hold a Washington's Birthday ball at 9:30 p. m. Saturday at the Shoreham.

The Michigan State Society will hold a spring dance at 9:30 p. m. Thursday, March 6, at 2400 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

Mrs. Palmer Loses Diamond Watch

Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer, widow of the former Attorney General, reported the loss last night of a diamond wrist watch valued at "a few hundred dollars."

She offered a reward for its return to her at the Shoreham Hotel. It apparently was lost, she said, between the Anchorage Apartments, 1900 Q Street Northwest, where she attended a small party given by Speaker of the House and Mrs. Rayburn, and her automobile, which was parked in front of 1619 Nineteenth Street Northwest.

Merchants to Dance

The District Commissioners, Senator Reynalds and Representative Jennings Randolph are among the guests expected to attend the Columbia Heights Businessmen's Association's annual dinner-dance at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street.

3 Women, Girl, 5, Hurt In Traffic

Auto Collision Injures Two; Third Hit by Trolley; Car Strikes Child

Three women were seriously hurt yesterday in traffic accidents here, and a 5-year-old girl suffered injuries which may be serious.

A light truck collided with a sedan at Twelfth Street and Jefferson Drive Southwest, injuring two 69-year-old occupants of the car. Taken to Emergency Hospital were Mrs. James Stevenson, of 3066 Sixteenth Street Northwest, fractured shoulder, fractured rib and lacerations, and Moselle Herndon, of 1852 Colorado Road Northwest, chest injuries and two broken ribs.

Police said Martha Pransy, of 2900 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, was driving the car and Warren J. Payne, 20, of 1507 C Street Southeast, the truck.

Theresa Gorman, 56, of 1016 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, suffered a compound fracture of the arm and head lacerations when struck by a street car at Eleventh and L Streets Northwest. She was taken to Emergency Hospital. Allen W. Anderson, 27, of 319 Sixteenth Street Northeast, was listed as operator of the street car.

Struck by an automobile in front of her home, 1808½ Sixth Street Northwest, Barbara Ann Hooks, 5-year-old colored child, was taken to Freedmen's Hospital with head and body injuries. Lurnie Hall, colored, 42, of 1760 Corcoran Street Northwest, was driver of the car, police reported.

D. C. Tax Problems Spur Formation Of House Unit

With an eye to the "urgency" of tax matters in the District, Chairman Randolph, of the District Committee, said last night he would form the subcommittee on fiscal affairs today.

Customarily, the step would not be taken until the membership of the full committee had been named, and there are still three Republican vacancies.

But in this case, Randolph pointed out, the Republican membership will not be affected since there are no Republican vacancies on the subcommittee. The two Republican members of the subcommittee, Dirksen, of Illinois, and Bates, of Massachusetts, are holdovers from the last Congress.

Two Democratic members are to be appointed and a chairman selected.

Randolph also said that a report from the subcommittee on traffic and streets may be heard at today's meeting of the District Committee.

Picard Sets Mark Winning New Orleans Open

This Morning

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on his vacation his column is being written by other members of The Post sports staff.)

By Bill Burnett

Following the example of millions of Americans who are "telling all" to their income tax advisers about now, Washington's sports bread-winners give a brief account of their condition, financial and otherwise.

BURNETT

BASKETBALL: I must confess things are looking pretty bright for me. There isn't one of my sons who isn't doing better than ever before, especially my offsprings in the colleges and in the professional game. My high school and sandlot boys are getting along all right, too.

Guess the fact they moved their offices to Riverside Stadium is what helped college and pro most. There's nothing like putting up a good front to boost business, I always say. And you can't deny Riverside is a lot more centralized than Tech gym, and the facilities for making customers comfortable twice as good.

Two colleges, in particular, are booming business, Georgetown and George Washington put out products as good as any in the country, all guaranteed solid material with nothing but natural finishes. They compete against one another, too, which certainly puts an added spark in the routine of trade. Georgetown wound up on top in the first tangle this year in something of an upset, but that should increase interest in the second meeting soon. My other college sons around town aren't doing quite as well (a couple haven't made a sale all year), still I see no reason for complaint.

BASEBALL: This is just the beginning of my big season, so I haven't much to say. Naturally, I expect big things—probably I'll see most of my plans materialize—but I can't tell yet.

My Nats, after what was considered a good buying trip, start getting in shape Thursday for the opening of this year's stand. My Nats had a very bad year in 1940, as you know, but I honestly expect them to start paying dividends this season. They've practically torn out their old outfield and rebuilt it in the modern style with streamlining and everything. Last year's dependable pitching clerks have been rehired and a few young ones with reportedly fine futures added.

My college, high school and sandlot boys are also getting the annual longing for the feel of the hickory against the horsehide. I think, my report at the end of 1941 will be written in blue ink, with stars attached.

BOXING: What is happening to me shouldn't be happening to a herring, even. I ain't doin' a little good.

Maybe I put over a coupla good deals during the past 12 months, but right now me and my boys is so tangled up we don't know if we go or come. First I think I get a break when Mike Uline opens his new plant and sez "Me'n Joe Turner will get along fine, just like that. We'll co-operate, that's what we'll do."

Then right away I get knocked out of one of my best bouts. Joey Archibald and Harry Jeffra was to meet here, just to settle the argument that started back when Joey got the great Griffith Stadium "steal." But Harry turns up with a bad hand, forcing the commission doc to call things off.

Now matchmakers from Mr. Uline's place and Mr. Turner's place are at each other's throats. One guy thinks Mike Jacobs is going to help him promote a scrap between Chalky Wright and Pete Scalzo, and the other sez he's already got both fighters under contract. Seems as if we got too many angles, most of 'em bad.

HOCKEY: We have a commodity that has become almost a necessity with many people, and so we proudly report a banner year even though it isn't over yet.

Our Eagles, furnishing what it takes to draw the spenders, started off with a dazzling winning streak, ran into a streak of bad breaks and even worse hockey, but still can't be counted out of Eastern Amateur League reckoning. As a matter of fact they are still the team to beat, though Baltimore is ahead.

Attendance records have fallen as fast as Italian planes all season for the Eagle management at Riverside. My only worry is that the the new league team scheduled to come to Uline Arena next year may cause dissention in the local hockey situation and eventually kill much of the appeal to the public. There should be room for two clubs, but I don't know. Anyway, business couldn't be better now.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 16.—Shades of the bunion derby! The Greek war relief people are going to stage a 1,500-mile marathon from New York to Miami next month for the benefit of that brave nation which for some months now has been doing a good job of making Il Duce ill.

CONSIDINE

This tremendous piece of hoofing will be done by 300 American athletes, strung out like a necklace of muscles from Times Square hard by New York's little Athens, to Miami's stucco City Hall. Each runner will run five miles. As was the case in C. C. Pyle's deathless contribution to chiropody, the path of this gargantuan relay will be routed through whichever towns look good for a little dough for Greece. As a special feature, Bernarr McFadden, the raw carrot and stewed ferns man, will run the final mile, munching turnip seeds. Glenn Cunningham will be asked to come out of his retirement to attend to one of the five-mile chores, and prominent current distance runners will be invited to take part. Home town runners along the route will be used, for the most part.

Instead of a baton the boys will carry a blazing Olympic torch, handing it on and on down the coast of the United States from our gentle springlike weather clear to Miami's frozen wastes. The runner turning in the fastest five miles will be given a gold watch.

Speaking of track, the boys at the New York A. C. games gave each other a fierce run-around Saturday night.

We used to think that the most invisible thing in the world was a new world track record. But Greg Rice changed all that in setting his new mark for two miles in 8:53.4. The barrel-chested little man from Notre Dame was mercury with a firecracker tied to his pants.

It looked as if a record were in the making from the moment starter Johnny McHugh pulled the trigger. Mel Trutt of Des Moines, a nice runner, kept up with Rice (the two of them a half-a-lap ahead of the field) until three laps from home when, by pre-arrangement with ASCAP, the band played the Notre Dame victory march. Literally and figuratively on the wings of song, Rice began running as if he were a sprinter, fighting for the lead in a 100-yard dash. Trutt dropped back as if his gears had slipped into reverse. Rice lapped five opponents in that last baleful sprint to the tape, his strong little legs a blur of motion.

The Baxter Mile was a curious race, and we're still wondering a little if Les Mac Mitchell, the new boy wonder, won it. From where we sat, which was exactly on the finish line, it looked as if Walter Mehl pushed his chest an inch or two ahead of Mac Mitchell just at the end. Anyway, 13 A. A. U. officials at the finish line put their heads together and ruled that Mac Mitchell won in the indoor record-equaling time of 4:07.4. Foot racing needs a photo-finish camera very badly, just as it needs to have the human element taken out of timing these races.

The 4:07.4 mile was announced as equaling the fastest indoor mile from scratch. That was to distinguish it from Glenn Cunningham's 4:04.4, set at Dartmouth a couple of years ago with the aid of two or three pacemakers who ran a quarter or a half-mile and then dropped out.

But the Baxter mile turned out to be something like this. Luigi Becalli of the N. Y. A. C., apparently determined to provide a sensational finaltime for his club's main event, got out in front at a suicidal clip at the start. He wanted to insure a fast race. He ran the first quarter in 0:59-4-5 which is, of course, too fast for a fellow who expects to run a mile, his half-mile time of 2:02 was out of proportion. But the field stayed surprisingly close to his heels. Then, as the half mark started, Chuck Fenske, who won it last year, quit. Then Becalli, his work done, dropped out.

Mac Mitchell, always in a good spot, took the lead from Mehl two laps from home, and seemed to be winning easily, but Mehl came on again and (from our angle) seemed to catch the great young runner at the tape.

One of the officials immediately ran over to Mehl and handed him the first prize, and the kid was overjoyed, because the Rev. Dick Evans, who started him on his running career six years ago, had flown up from Miami to see the race—after Mehl told him that if he did that he (Mehl) would win. But after a little while the official came over again and took the medal away from Mehl . . . And for a moment it appeared as if Mehl would burst out crying. But he didn't and he said to the minister, his friend, "Well . . . I tried . . ." "We have an idea that his mentor must have been very proud of Mehl for that.

15,000 to See Champ 'Risk' Heavy Title

$50,000 Gate Seen For Convention Hall Battle; Louis in 14th Defense of Crown

By Sid Ferber
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Philadelphia, Feb. 16.—Although the home town boy's chances of making good are about as bright as an old shoe, Gus Fan and his family are out to set a new local indoor fistic record for Joe Louis' heavyweight title defense against Gus Dorazio tomorrow night.

LOUIS

DORAZIO

Promoter Herman Taylor gave the boxoffice a fast once-over today, discovered the advance sale was already well over the $30,000 mark, and, with business still brisk, visioned a possible sell-out in Convention Hall for Philadelphia's first heavyweight championship shindig since Gene Tunney did that thing to Jack Dempsey in the rain 15 years back.

He estimated more than 15,000 of the faithful would turn out in the big West Philadelphia arena to see the Bomber put his title on the line for the fourteenth time against the 190-pounder from "South Philly," and that the gate would hit the $50,000 jackpot. This would eclipse by considerable the old high Steve Hamas and Tommy Loughran set when they opened Convention Hall to the business of bashing beaks before some 14,000 fans back in the early '30s.

14 Rounds the Limit

As for the fight itself, even Dorazio's best friends won't tell him what figures to happen. A close check-up disclosed today that one bet actually was made on the fight, but this was only for $1.50 and was based on what color trunks Louis would wear. Only one person was giving Gus a chance—and that was Gus himself.

This corner believes it will take several minutes for Louis to study Dorazio's half crouching, weaving, bobbing style, but that once he gets the blue print charted, the roof will fall in on Gus almost immediately. That should be inside of four rounds.

Louis agrees with this theory, but Dorazio pooh-poods any possibility that he may lose. He has all the confidence Tony Galento and Red Burman carried into the ring against the Bomber, and has an added incentive in the fact a State legislative investigation has been threatened over a charge by a State Senator that this match is between opponents of "unequal ability." He is going to look for the Senator's seat at ringside tomorrow, he says, and will knock Louis right into the legislator's lap.

Tea Parties No Help

This outing is the third trip to the post in the champion's fight-a-month campaign which is making heavyweight history this winter. He stopped Al McCoy in Boston in December, stiffened Clarence (The Red) Burman in New York less than three weeks ago, and goes from here to Detroit to tussle with large Abraham Simon next month.

He looked none too impressive in his tea parties with McCoy and Burman, and Dorazio figures this time he's going to be nuder par once too often. At that, when a guy's as confident as Gus, you can't rule him off for trying.

Pierce, Wofsey Win Table Tennis Crowns

Men's Champ Beats Bernard at Ice Palace; Mrs. Wofsey Defeats Kitty Kloeber; Panitz Takes Novice Title in Post-Government Play

Bill Pierce successfully defended his crown yesterday in the championship round of the Government Table Tennis tournament, and Polly Wofsey defeated a seeded player for the second straight night to win the women's crown.

The final round of the tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post this year for the first time, drew an overflow crowd to the Ice Palace courts.

Pierce, playing a careful and canny game, worked in a baffling change of pace by suddenly resorting to terrific drives that threw his opponent, Jules Bernard, off balance. The defending champ won in three straight games, 21—18; 21—9, and 21—17.

Panitz Wins Novice Title

Mrs. Wofsey, a Federal Power Commission employe, was closely pressed by Kitty Kloeber in the women's championship round but came back to win in three straight after the score was deuced in the final game. The scores were 21—17, 21—15, 21—13, 21—18 and 23—21.

In the novice class, Sol Panitz, of the War Department, was hard put to fight off the drives of Irving Suntag. The rangy Suntag kept Kanitz on the jump but the latter's place shots wore Suntag down, 21—17, 21—18 and 23—21.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation Recreation Association team, headed by Jack Bledsoe, was awarded the trophy put up by The Post for the team entering the most players.

F. B. I. R. A.'s representatives totaled 31. War Department was second with 26 and Commerce Department third with 22, most of whom came from the Census Bureau.

The tournament was the largest table tennis event ever held in the District, and officials said it was one of the largest ever staged in the East. The entry list totaled 182, including 22 women, and the event was the first annual Government employes tournament to be sponsored by The Post.

Bobby Riggs Net Victor Over Kovacs

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Feb. 16.—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, today won the seventeenth mid-winter tennis tournament, defeating Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., 6—4, 6—4, 4—6, 4—6, 6—4.

It was Riggs' third victory on the Florida winter circuit and avenged a defeat he suffered at Kovacs' hands in the finals of the University of Miami Invitational tournament February 2. Riggs was national singles champion in 1939.

The women's single title went to Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of Brookline, Mass., who defeated 15-year-old Doris Hart, Miami school girl, 6—3, 6—0.

Kovacs, winner of four tournaments in Florida this winter, wasn't up to his usual game today. In the first two sets, Riggs continually rushed to the net to catch him flat-footed with placements.

Riggs and Jack Kramer, of Rollins College, Fla., won the men's doubles title, trimming William Talbert, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Gus Ganzenmueller, Port Washington, Long Island, 6—1, 6—0.

Picard Breaks Own Record by 8 Strokes In $5,000 Tourney; Heafner Is Third

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 16.—Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., lasted long enough to stave off a gallant bid by little Ben Hogan today to win the $1,200 first prize in the $5,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Picard wound up with 276, eight strokes under the tournament record he set in winning two years ago, and two strokes better than Hogan, of Purchase, N. Y., who pocketed $750 as runner-up, with 278.

The Hershey veteran, who broke the City Park course record by two strokes yesterday with a 65, started this morning's 18 as though he were going to do even better. Birdies on the first three holes and an eagle on the fourth, on which he sank a 20-foot uphill putt, helped him to break the course record on the first nine with 31. He took a par 35 on the back nine and led at the 54-hole mark with 203 strokes.

Leaders Stage Dogfight

Clayton Heafner, of Linville, N. C., who had been tied at the halfway mark with Picard at 137, was second at 207 after shooting 34-36—70 on the morning 18.

Hogan's 35-33—68, added to his previous 140, put him third at 208 when he started the final round playing in a threesome with Picard.

As Heafner's 38-34—72 sent him out of the running for top money, Hogan and Picard engaged in a dogfight. The silent little Texan picked up three strokes on the first nine, shooting a four-under-par 33 to Picard's 36, and on the thirteenth pulled within a stroke of the leader as Henry took five on the par-three thirteenth.

Ben lost his chance when he hooked into a bush on the sixteenth to lose a stroke, and both players got pars on the seventeenth and birdies on the eighteenth.

Nelson Winds Up With 285

Heafner's 279 was good for third place and $550. At 284 were Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, Tex., last year's winner; Tony Penna, of Dayton, Ohio; Craig Wood, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Ralph Gupdahl, of Chicago.

P. G. A. Champion Byron Nelson, of Toledo, with rounds of 68 and 72 today, finished with 285.

Some of the biggest names in golf were missing in the final scores. Among those failing to qualify for the last 36 holes were National Open Champion Lawson Little, and Jimmy Thomson, of Chicopee, Mass.

Sam Snead, of Hot Springs, Va., and Johnny Bulla, of Chicago, had

Chapman Heads Dixie Golf Entries

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (U.P.).—A field of almost 100 golfers, headed by National Amateur Champion Dick Chapman, of New York, was expected to tee off here tomorrow for the first 18-hole qualifying round of the seventeenth annual Dixie amateur championship.

The record field included Jim Ferrier, former Australian amateur titleholder; Frank Allan, Pittston, Pa., Pennsylvania amateur champion; Charley Whitehead, New Jersey amateur titleholder, and Bruno and Arnold Minkley, of Chicago.

A Modern (250 Lb.) Marco Polo at Home

Washington, D. C.

Dear Jake:

It's exactly like Paris in the spring around here. Really, it makes me feel sorry for you having to stay down there in Florida's vacation hell. I was thinking about you the other night when I came out of the the midnight show at the Gayety. I said to myself, "Here I am enjoying the better things of life and poor Jake is down there sleeping in a patio with nothing between him and that growling Tropical sky but a thin sheet." I don't want to get too sentimental, Jake, but I almost cried for you. But the opening of Bowie isn't far off and it won't be long before the boys come back from Florida, Hot Springs and Occoquan.

HAIGHT

Well, Jake, things are rather quiet around old D. C. They are using war talk instead of electricity to run the Press Club Building elevators and nightfall still brings more starlings than stars on Pennsylvania Avenue but, all in all, there is little going on.

About the most important things I can't think of are (1) my sudden rise to popularity in the literary field; (2) Jimmie's is still closed.

Jake, I'm beginning to believe it is too easy to become a great man. I go to Florida. I write a few letters. The boss puts them in the paper and what happens? Bingo, I have to change my whole way of living.

You wouldn't believe it, Jake, and keep quiet on Ninth Street when you get back, but I'm actually wearing a clean shirt every day now. And what's more I'm getting starch put in the cuffs and collars. But I'm not getting much sleep. I have to get down in the afternoon to tell my stories to the day city editor and his crew and the pressmen are mad if I leave before they get off in the morning.

Since I became a humorist I have had to be on my toes. Everytime a situation arises in the office everybody stops and waits for me to make a wisecrack. I don't know how long I can last. I'm still slaying copy boys, sandlot basketball managers and the fellows on the detail counter, but the bosses have stopped lying around in heaps. I guess I must be pressing.

However, the Postoffice is still making a special run of The Post with my fan mail. Ten sacks every hour on the hour is a fair showing. (Don't show this letter to anybody Jake and I suggest you burn it up after you read it. I don't want anybody to get the wrong impression of me.)

Everywhere I go I get the glad hand. Take the other day, for instance. I drove down Thirteenth Street on the way to the office. I was reviewing some of my Florida letters and I was chuckling to myself. At Park Road a fellow in a big car going the other way yelled to me. I never saw him before in my life, but I waved back. You know, Jake, that in one block six people hailed me.

Well, is was the same way all along the street. I really felt good about it, too. Think of it! People coming home from work, truck drivers, taxi drivers and even pedestrians, recognizing me. I got so I found myself bowing and saying, "Yes, I wrote those Florida letters. Thanks for reading them."

Down by U Street I got tired of tipping my hat to lady drivers, so I laid it on the seat beside me. The occupant of every car yelled something to me. I finally decided that I was overdoing my receiving slightly, so at R Street I began taking on a rather dignified expression. At Q Street the red light was against me and the cars across the way lined up.

Jake, you would have thought it was a celebration over there in these waiting cars. Everybody started yelling at once and pointing at me. I liked it, but I did feel self-conscious.

Well, I jumped the car forward at the first peek of the green, as I generally do. I was almost to Logan Circle when I saw a policeman standing on the curb. Well, Jake, I figured that I might as well use my popularity to good advantage with the law. A guy never knows when he will need a friend on the force.

The policeman took a step out in the street and yelled, "Stop!" I'm kind of quick on the draw, as you know, Jake, and in the

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 16.—A request for a $650,000 appropriation for construction of a new stadium at the Naval Academy has been turned down by the House Naval Committee in Washington, but a $150,000 sum to be used for "recreational purposes" has been approved, it was announced here today.

Chairman Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, stated that the House of Representatives would never vote such a sum in "times like these," while other members of the House Committee contended physical training of Midshipmen was important. The committee then approved the request for a recreation appropriation.

Red Wings Win, 2 to 1

Colby College Coach Named To Harvard Post

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 16 (AP).—The Harvard Athletic Association announced today that Alfred M. McCoy, head football coach at Colby College for the past four seasons, had been signed as varsity backfield coach.

McCoy succeeds J. Neil (Skip) Stanley, who resigned his Harvard post last week to accept an appointment as head football coach at Brown University.

McCoy, who guided his Colby elevens into ties for the Maine State championship in the past three seasons, compiled a record of 18 victories, 8 defeats and 3 ties during his four-year stay at Waterville, Me.

Rangers Beaten, 4 to 1

Conn McCreary Out to Cut Eads' Lead Today

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP).—Conn McCreary, recent riding sensation of the Hialeah Park meeting, will attempt to gain ground tomorrow on Wendell Eads in their nip-and-tuck contest for apprentice honors.

With 28 winners to his credit against 32 for Eads, McCreary is favored in tomorrow's program. He was listed to ride Fettacairn in the second and Mightily in the seventh, both the choices of most selectors.

Budge, Marble Victors Again

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 16 (U.P.).—After dropping one set, red-headed Donald Budge, former amateur tennis great, came back strong today to defeat aging Bill Tilden, 3—6, 6—0, 6—2, in a professional exhibition match at Flamingo Park.

Alice Marble, former top woman amateur, beat Mary Hardwick, 6—8, 6—1, and then teamed with Tilden to defeat Miss Hardwick and Budge, 8—6, 7—5.

Rangers Score

St. Louis, Feb. 16 (AP).—A burst of sharpshooting by Sid Payne in the second half led the St. Louis Rangers to a 37-to-32 victory over the Denver (Colo.) Legions in an exhibition basketball game here today.

Paul Wearly's Craft Dominates Regatta

By the Associated Press

New Smyrna Beach, Fla., Feb. 16. His tiny craft droning around the course like a bumblebee, Paul Wearly, of Muncie, Ind., dominated the annual New Smyrna Beach regatta ending today by annexing class B and C honors.

Still going strong, Wearly took two of the three heats in the class B race today and placed second in the final class C heat to take high point honors in both events.

Fred Jacoby, jr., of North Bergen, N. J., nosed out Wearly in the final class C heat, covering the five-mile course in 6 minutes 21 seconds for a speed of 47.24 miles per hour to Wearly's 46.27. Wearly's point total, however, was 1,100 for the three heats and he was easy winner.

Wearly won the first class B heat in 6:44.3, making 44.48 miles per hour, the second heat in 6:44.2 at 44.51 miles per hour, and finished second to Mabry Edwards, of Jacksonville in the third heat. Mabry slipped off the heat in 6:41 for 44.88 miles per hour. Wearly did the last heat in 6:35.2, or 44.40 miles per hour.

Marjorie Clark, of Sarasota, Fla., won today's first heat of the two-day class M event in 10:31, at 28.53 miles per hour, and Tommy Maygood, of Orlando, Fla., took the second in 10:12, making 29.41 miles per hour. However, Dick McFayden, of Montclair, N. J., who took both class M heats yesterday, was high with 1,325 points in final standings.

Jacoby won the final heat of class F in 6:17.3, making 47.67 miles per hour, but Ken McKenzie, of New Haven, Conn., had piled up enough points in winning the first two heats Saturday for first place with 969 points.

G. W. Engages Virginia; Hoyas Face Penn State, Scranton

Cavalier Five Plays Here Wednesday

Georgetown Travels Two Days; Top D. C. Teams Aim for Spot In Metro Tourney

Continuing their hot fight for the District college basketball title, Georgetown and George Washington are faced with light but arduous schedules this week as local fives play a 17-game program.

The Colonials' only start of the seven-day period will be here Wednesday against strong University of Virginia, which has won 13 of 15, while the Hoyas depart the city for games at Penn State Wednesday and Scranton Thursday.

George Washington, with 15 victories and three defeats, and Georgetown, with 14 triumphs and two losses, presently are waging the closest fight in memory for the mythical District crown, and at the same time are focusing much national attention on the caliber of basketball in this section.

Each still cherishes the hope of landing a berth in the annual Metropolitan Championship Tournament in New York next month, and with this as an added incentive they can be expected to show plenty of "kick" in the stretch drive.

Second Eastern Visit

Virginia, conqueror of Tennessee, V. M. I., William and Mary and other successful Southern rivals, will be making only its second Eastern invasion of the season in meeting Bill Reinhart's Colonials. The Cavaliers' other venture into this sector resulted in an upset defeat by Navy about two weeks ago.

The Charlottesville gang, while they didn't appear in George Washington's class in the Navy loss, figures to make it an evening for the Buff and could win if their hosts happen to be even slightly below form.

In Dick McCann and Bill Harman, Virginia has a pair of stars who would be worthy additions to any college team. Harman, a towering youngster who is deadly under the basket, is the team's leading scorer this season, just as he was last year. McCann, a smooth floor man, is Virginia's best defensive player, and the Cavaliers' sparkplug, setting up most of the scoring plays and also tallying often enough himself to rank close behind Harman.

Georgetown, looking better than ever in its last week's defeat of powerful Temple, will be favored to repeat an earlier season victory over Penn State and also add Scranton to its victims. There are few, if any, teams in the country which can beat the Hoyas on a hot night, the way Charley Schmidli, Bill Bornheimer, Jim Geibel and Jimmy Kiernan find the hoop from all angles.

Wilson Plays Towson

Otherwise the week's program lists three contests for American University, four for Wilson, a couple for Catholic University, and three for Maryland.

Wilson opens the program tonight, playing host to Towson Teachers, then plays at Shenandoah tomorrow night, at home with Bridgewater on Thursday, and at Shepherd State Teachers on Friday.

American University returns to action tonight with Juniata at home, entertains V. P. I. Thursday, and invades Randolph-Macon Friday.

Catholic University, still seeking its first victory, tackles Loyola (Baltimore) tomorrow night, and St. Vincent's Thursday, both on its home floor.

Maryland, carrying a load of 18 straight defeats, will be at home to Rutgers Wednesday, V. P. I. Friday and Washington College Saturday. . . . J. H. M.

Couture Takes Ski Jump Title

Berlin, N. H., Feb. 16 (INS).—Robert Couture, of the Nansen Ski and Outing Club, today captured the Class A title in the international ski jumping championships, soaring off precipitous Berlin tower distances of 197 and 205 feet to gain a total of 141.3 points.

Second place also went to the local Nansen club with Norman McRae gathering 130.7 points. Third place was taken by Heinz Krebs, of the German Ski Club of New York, credited with 98.1 points.

Castleman, Adams Sign N.Y. Contracts

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP).—Manager Bill Terry announced today that Pitchers Clydell Castleman and Ace Adams had signed their contracts with the New York Giants.

Terry said this left 11 Giants still unsigned, including Catcher Harry Danning. Castleman has been with the Giants several years, while Adams was a mound star for Nashville of the Southern Association last season.

C. U. Starts Work Today For Columbus Fights

Hot City Rivalry To Be Renewed Saturday Night

On the rebound after their first defeat in three years, Catholic University's boxing team starts work today for the final 1941 home appearance—the renewal Saturday night of the hot intracity fight rivalry with the Explorers of Columbus.

The Cardinals and the Explorers met for the first time last year, but their rivalry dates back over almost a decade, when both teams were compiling winning streaks and were unable to test their boasts of superiority over the other because of inability to get together on a date for a meeting.

In last year's inaugural at Turner's Arena, the Cards, who went undefeated, won out, 4½ to 3½, in the final match of the evening—a slam-bang battle between Heavyweights Jay Turner, of C. U., and Columbus' Abe Cohen. This week they'll meet in C. U.'s gymnasium.

The Cards, whose 13-match winning streak was stopped Saturday night by a ring-wise group of veterans from Southwestern Louisiana, will be the favorites over Coach Jim McNamara's Explorers.

Obregon to Get Call

While the Cardinals have won three out of four matches this year, the Explorers have won but one out of two. Columbus fought The Citadel to a 4-4 draw, and defeated Arkansas Tech, 4½ to 3½.

LaFond's squad had to forfeit in the 135-pound class last week to Louisiana and were depending on three other men who had fought but one college battle.

This week, however, LaFond will have a substitute ready for Leo Gaffney, the 135-pounder, who has a broken hand. The newcomer is John Obregon, of Venezuela. Obregon, whose father is in the diplomatic service, has yet to fight in college, but his gymnasium work has convinced LaFond that he is capable of standing up against Columbus' Bernie Jackson, a southpaw, who scored a 30-second knockout over his Arkansas Tech opponent.

Leo Houck, jr., is expected to be ready for action as a light heavyweight this week after a siege of influenza. LaFond said he was highly pleased by the work of Kenny Blackbird and Bernie Cody, both technical knockout victims last week, and that one of these boys would be called upon if Houck isn't ready.

LaFond Pleased

"I thought all of the boys did awfully well against a more experienced team," LaFond said. "After all, those boys down in Louisiana fight while they're in high school and often turn up at college with 30 or 40 fights behind them."

McNamara, whose Columbus squad works out at night at the Jewish Community Center, will stage an elimination series this week to determine his 155-pound and 145-pound starters. At present four men are in the running—Frank Cuddy, Buddy Lyons, Max Coe and Elmer Jacobs.

Red Doherty, the light heavyweight knockout artist, will be moved back to the 175-pound class this week for the all-important C. U. battle, and Ray Weir, a sophomore, will get the heavyweight call. Weir transferred to Columbus from the Naval Academy.

Injured Jockey Shows Slight Improvement

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP).—Joseph Giangaspro, jockey who was injured in a spill at Hialeah Park Friday, was reported slightly improved today.

Hospital attendants said the youth, who suffered sever head injuries, still was considered in critical condition.

Adam, winner of the first-half crown, stayed in the game until the last quarter yesterday but faltered toward the end. At the half Adam was out front, 21-19. Its hope of adding the second-half championship to its laurels, tying up the league title, evaporated when Stanton, Mitchell and Tipton, of the Typists, put on the pressure. The fast trio shared the scoring lead for the winners fairly evenly, though Adam's Berry tallied 16 markers to prove best of the game.

In winning yesterday's clash, Regal retained a chance of again capturing the league title it has won for several years, a three-game playoff being planned to decide the final victor.

A third game on the card saw Petworth A. C. trip Jewish Community Center, 30-21.

Celtics Beat Heurich Five, For Loop Lead

Bernie Fleigel, streamlined center of the Brooklyn Celtics, sent his teammates into undisputed possession of first place in the American Basketball League's second half race last night with a burst of stretch scoring that returned the invaders victorious, 33 to 24.

Before 1,000 spectators the teams started a point-by-point exchange that found the Brewers taking a 25-24 lead in the last five minutes when Rabin connected from long distance.

Fitzpatrick regained the lead for Brooklyn with a field goal, but Kramer sent Washington out in front for the last time on a twisting, left-handed sidecourt shot that circled the rim and dropped through, one of the prettiest baskets of the night.

Reiser tied it at 27-all on a foul conversion and Fliegel and Kupperberg sent Brooklyn ahead at 30-27 on a foul and field shot, respectively. Goldfadden contributed a foul goal in the fading seconds, but Fleigel dribbled in to sink a shot from scrimmage and, when he was fouled going into the basket, made good the conversion.

The Brewers started rolling in the final period and twice appeared ready to take command of the situation, but failed on several good scoring opportunities and also lost the ball several times in the pinch.

On Wednesday night the Brewers will visit Turner's Arena for a game with the Washington Bruins, District Negro professional champions.

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 16.—Helen Randlett, of Richmond, Va., today won the Oriole Tournament at the New Highland Bowling Alleys with a score of 790.

Catherine Vick, of Norfolk, Va., was second with 753, and Ethel Brewer, of Baltimore, was third with 713.

Finishing in order were:

Caroline Hiser, Hyattsville, 708; Jane Fershmann, Baltimore, and Mary Brooks, Richmond, 707; Mary Galloway, Baltimore, 704; Lola Shannahan, Baltimore, 701; Phyllis Wills, Richmond, 698; Lucille Young, Washington, 695; Loraine Gulli, Washington, and Marta Janowitz, Baltimore, 689; Mildred Cameron, Baltimore, 685; Evelyn Brose, Baltimore, 684; Mary Akers, Baltimore, and Winnie Sealover, Baltimore, 693.

Dodgers Drill, MacPhail Watches

Havana, Feb. 16 (INS).—The Brooklyn Dodgers put in another day of training today with General Manager Larry MacPhail predicting today that Harold (Pete) Reiser will carry the brunt of the Brooklyn attack.

"If Reiser comes through as I expect he will," MacPhail said, "our right field problem is solved. He easily can be the best hitter on the club."

Terry Praises Bob Bowman

Miami, Fla., Feb. 16 (INS).—The New York Giants had a rest today from their spring training chores at Miami Beach.

Manager Bill Terry said his charges put in a hard week and deserved a breathing spell. Meanwhile, the boss sung the praises of Bob Bowman, a right-hander, bought from the St. Louis Cardinals. "I like his hustle," Terry commented.

Students to Receive Reduced Price at Uline

All high school students in metropolitan Washington will be admitted to the American Indoor Speed Skating Championships Saturday and Sunday at Uline Arena for 25 cents upon presentation of their athletic association books, it was announced last night.

Christoforidis Offered $6,000 in Cleveland

Cleveland, Feb. 16 (AP).—Fistic Promoter Bob Brickman said today he had telegraphed an offer of $6,000 to Anton Christoforidis, for a bout with Jimmy Bivins, of Cleveland, in which the Greek fighter would place at stake the light heavyweight title of the National Boxing Association. Brickman proposed that the fight be held here late next month.

Glasses Smashed in His Face, G. U. Runner Starts Relay Team to Victory

Charley Newmeyer Hero of G. U.'s N. Y. A. C. Triumph

Coach Surprised At Team's Success In Garden Saturday

By Jack Munhall

How Georgetown's one-mile relay team smashed the N. Y. A. C. meet record Saturday after its lead-off runner had his glasses broken and fell blindly to the ground just as he passed the baton was related yesterday by Coach Hap Hardell who admitted his surprise at the Hoyas' great success over the weekend.

Discussing the circumstances of his team's performance in shattering three meet marks in its finest single effort of the season, Hardell praised Charley Newmeyer for his courage in continuing to run after a first-lap accident which might have cost him the rest of his none-too-good eyesight.

"Charley was jostled on the first turn around the track," Hardell explained," and his glasses knocked off. Somehow, though, he kept on running, caught broken fragments in his right hand en route and managed to reach Charley Williams, our No. 2 runner, before he lost his balance and fell. Newmeyer, you know, can scarcely see ten feet without his glasses."

The mile relay team's time of 3:21.8, its best of the season, was one of three new marks hung by Hardell's charges who in each case were wiping out records set previously by Georgetown. The relay effort bettered the mark of 3:22.4 made by the 1939 Georgetown quartet; Al Blozis' winning throw of 54 feet 11⅝ inches lowered his own record of 53 feet 8¼ inches last year, while Lou Collado's 1,000-yard clocking of 2:12.7, fastest ever run in the N. Y. A. C. games, smashed the standard of 2:14 posted last year by another Hoya freshman, Phil Graves.

Blozis' triumph was hardly a surprise to anyone, but the feats of Collado and the relay foursome of Newmeyer, Williams, Ken Lyden and Mort Alnwick elicited raised eyebrows from even Coach Hardell. It was not only Collado's first appearance in fast company, but one of the few occasions he has ever run the 1,000-yard distance. The former LaSalle High and Seton Hall Prep athlete specializes in the 440 and 880.

And, as for he mile relayers, they were clipping a full second off their previous best competitive effort of the season. Anchor Man Alnwick, who was given the baton in front of the field for the first time this year, turned in his customary sparkling race to win by about 12 yards over Holy Cross.

Saturday the Hoyas will seek fresh track honors in the National A. A. U. indoor championships at the Garden, with Blozis defending his 16-pound shotput title. Other Hilltop entries will be Earl Audet in the shot, the freshman mile relay team, Collado running anchor, and Dave Wiley in the high jump. Wiley, a freshman, made his high jumping debut for Georgetown in the N. Y. A. C. meet, but his best leap, 6 feet 1 inch, failed to win a place. Wiley, incidentally, was the only G. U. contestant who failed to place in the N. Y. A. C. games. Audet rounded out the Hoya scoring with a second place to Blozis in the shotput. Audet's heave of 49 feet 5⅜ inches was his best of the season.

Though Blozis disappointed some New York observers by failing by nearly a foot of breaking his own world's indoor shot record of 55 feet 8¾ inches, he did not fool Coach Hardell, who claims the 240-pound junior only now is beginning to attain his best physical condition.

"That was only Al's second meet, you must remember. I believe starting next Saturday he'll be throwing the ball 55 feet on every try. Al's arm push is excellent, but he needs to develop a little more leg drive. In that way he'll get more height, which is best for him. His record throws have been ones which went high into the air."

Former Grid Star at Colgate Wrestles Here

With the Green Hornet, mysterious masked wrestler, and Ernie Dusek, the Nebraska Wildcat, scheduled for another "hot" rematch, Promoter Joe Turner announced yesterday he had signed up Len Macaluso, former All-American fullback from Colgate, for a special 30-minute match on Thursday night's show at Turner's Arena.

Macaluso will be pitted against Eddie (Porky) Newman, the hard-hitting New Yorker.

Ten per cent of the gross receipts will be turned over to the Children's Hospital Blood Bank sponsored by The Washington Post and Station WJSV.

Resembles Nagurski

Macaluso, who tore holes in opposing lines as a football star for three years with the Red Raiders of Colgate, is said to feature a powerful flying tackle. Promoter Turner claims it is similar to the one used by another erstwhile All-American, Bronko Nagurski, of Minnesota, who held the world's wrestling title for several years.

Meanwhile protests came thick and fast from the Hornet and Dusek over the weekend, following their rematching. Dusek informs Turner he will be on hand, but that he'll pull out if anyone else but Casey Berger is the referee. The Hornet, however, wants Benny Bortnick, the watermelon king, to handle the bout, pointing to what he called a "poor decision" by Berger last week.

Berger Had Protection

Dusek was given the nod in 30 minutes last Thursday, with the Hornet's left foot dangling outside the ropes. The rules, however, state that a fall can be given only when the full body of the wrestler is inside the ring. Thus far Berger hasn't issued any statement. He left the ring in a hurry after last week's rumpus under special police protection.

Tickets for the Thursday show will go on sale tomorrow at Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W Streets Northwest. There will be no advance in prices for the show. Last week some 2,700 fans—a record crowd—saw the match.

Paul Derringer Upset in Sarasota

Sarasota, Fla., Feb. 16 (AP).—Paul Derringer, Cincinnati pitching ace, was dethroned as Sarasota's municipal golf champion today by the steady stroking of Al Neal, of Sarasota and Marion, N. C., 8 and 7.

The lanky Moundsman lost his putting touch and was four down at the halfway mark of the 36-hole final. Neal boosted his margin to 7 up at the twenty-seventh, won the twenty-eighth and halved the next to close out the match.

Jake Kline To Remain At Notre Dame

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 16.—The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, vice president of Notre Dame, announced today that Clarence (Jake) Kline would be retained on the athletic coaching staff as varsity baseball tutor.

Kline, also a mathematics instructor, served under former Head Coach Elmer Layden as freshman football coach. Whether he will assist the new football staff, headed by Frank Leahy, is problematical. It was reported on the campus that Bill Cerney, "B" team coach, also might be retained.

Other Aides Released

Other Notre Dame assistants are to be released to enable Leahy to bring his three aides from Boston College with him. Leahy signed his contract as athletic director and and left tonight for Boston.

Leahy and his staff will return early in March to begin spring football training. He spent today here visiting campus spots, including the Rockne Memorial Fieldhouse, which is directed by Tommy Mills, who gave Leahy his first coaching job in 1931 as his assistant at Georgetown.

Stevens Pilots Winning Sled At Lake Placid

By the Associated Press

Lake Placid, Feb. 16.—Curtis Stevens, veteran bobsled driver, took over the wheel of Francis Tyler's Sno' Bird sled today and captured the Lowell Thomas International Four-man Trophy race on the Mount Van Hoevenberg slide. His total time for the four one-mile heats was 4:33.65.

The race was marred by an accident to the Lyon Mountain team, piloted by Bill Linney. Holding a slim lead over Stevens at the conclusion of the first heat, Linney ran into trouble coming out of little "S" curve. The sled ran along the top of the run for several feet, then suddenly pitched back in and went end over end, throwing the crew all over the run. John Kerr, riding in the number three position, fractured his right leg.

Joe Meconi, Ausable Forks, driving the Keene Valley entry, placed third in 4:39.32, while Calvin Pardee, Hazelton, Pa., was fourth.

Orioles Upset By Olympics In Overtime

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 16.—Boston's fighting Olympics handed the first-place Baltimore Orioles a 3-to-2 overtime defeat tonight in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League Walker Cup series game.

It was the second defeat in as many nights for the Orioles and their first loss on their own ice in 26 games, but they remained in the league by one point.

Heroes of Boston's victory were Center Walsh, who scored the winning goal, and Goalie Polich, who had 41 saves and withstood the onslaught of five wingmen and one defenseman in the final minute when the Orioles removed their own net-tender in a desperate effort to score.

Skeeters Blanked By Rovers, 5 to 0

New York, Feb. 16.—The New York Rovers registered their second consecutive shutout on home ice today, turning back the River Vale Skeeters, 5 to 0, in an Eastern Amateur Hockey League game before 12,759 fans at Madison Square Garden.

It was the seventh win for the last-place Red Shirts in ten games with Rover Vale, the only squad in the circuit over which New York holds an edge in the season series.

Alvis to Confer With Moran In Philadelphia

Ray Alvis, who plans to co-promote the Billy Conn-Danny Hasset light heavyweight fight March 17 at Uline's Ice Arena, will hop up to Philadelphia tonight for a conference with Pete Moran, manager of Hassett.

In answer to criticism of his move in lining up the Philadelphia Irishman for a fight with Conn, Alvis yesterday insisted that Irish Danny is just the lad to make Billy jump.

"He's one of those perpetual motion fellows who always makes a good fight," Alvis said. "He spotted Bill Boyd a weight and height advantage and never stopped boring in until the fight was stopped in the late rounds."

Alvis, who says he'll round up a preliminary card tonight in Philadelphia, didn't comment on the reason for Hassett's long layoffs between fights. Danny, who hadn't fought in a year, came to Washington for his first appearance and made a big hit in beating Buddy Scott. It was after another long period of idleness that he was technically knocked out by Boyd.

Gene Buffalo to Make Home Here; Fights Furr

Gene Buffalo, who claims he has a tremendous thirst for more knowledge, will park his baggage in Washington this week for good, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez said yesterday, adding as an afterthought that Gene fights Phil Furr a week from tonight at Turner's arena.

The Philadelphia colored welterweight claims to have a dual purpose in establishing residence in the District. First, he wants to complete his college education at Howard, where he was a student a few years ago, and secondly, he wants to do some local fighting so he'll have the wherewithal to pay for aforesaid education.

Buffalo, who has won two matches here in recent weeks, will be meeting Furr for the first time. Gene is said to have won 10 straight, including his two local victories over Manuel Villa and Francisco Montenara.

A. A. U. Boxing Tourney Deadline Passes Tomorrow

Deadline for entries in the annual District Amateur Athletic Union boxing tournament passes tomorrow at 6 p. m. at the Boys Club of Washington, 230 C Street Northwest, and from all appearances the 1941 contests will draw a record number of contestants.

Two of the Capital's fiercest athletic rivals—Winkie Hart's No. 4 Police Boys Club and Al Farrell's Police Club No. 5—have entered the tournament, opening Friday night in Turner's arena, it was announced yesterday.

The No. 5 team will have such Golden Gloves stars back as Bill Scott, featherweight; Leo Marcopoulous, Charley Maimone, Bill Kemp, Ted Ward, George Cross and Jack Duchaene, George Marcopoulous and Mike Basile.

No. 4 will line up with Ray Brown, Bill Patriarcam, Fred McNeill, Bill Harnett, Tony DeToto, Reds Vernon and others.

The tournament will be held on successive Friday nights through March 2. Weighing-in for the tournament is scheduled for Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Burns Seeks Scoring Lead on Ice

Apparently ready to burst out of his injury-induced slump, Norm Burns will be shooting for an Eastern Amateur Hockey League scoring record tomorrow night when he leads the Washington Eagles against the Atlantic City Sea Gulls at Riverside Stadium at 8:30 p. m.

The 195-pounder, a former member of the Sea Gulls, who allegedly released him because he would not conform his play to their roughhouse tactics, needs only two more goals to crack the record of 54 for a season, held jointly by Herb Foster and Norman Calladine.

But breaking the league mark is only one reason why Burns should have a hot night tonight, for at present he is only one point behind in the scoring race, which is led by Atlantic City's Sammy Fasano, and only one point ahead of another Sea Gull, Heck Pozzo.

Likewise the match will be important for the Eagles, since they can again dislodge Baltimore from the league lead with a victory. Now Washington trails the Orioles by one point. The Sea Gulls beat the Orioles, 4-3, in an overtime game Saturday. And the Baltimoreans last night dropped another extra-period match, 3-2, to the Boston Olympics.

Whirlaway, Dispose to Clash in $20,000 Added Flamingo

Derby Hopes Will Battle On Saturday

Both Won in First Appearances of Year; Pair Due to Face Field of Speedsters

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 16.—Whirlaway versus Dispose. This is the equine struggle that is expected to lure the largest crowd of the season into Hialeah Park for the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes, mile and a furlong race for 3-year-olds exclusively, to be run Saturday.

Whirlaway, owned by Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, appeared to have the Flamingo at his mercy, for his ascendancy into the spotlight dated back to 1940 when, as a juvenile, he compiled a record of seven victories in 16 starts and earned $77,275 in purses to lead all juveniles in that respect.

However, horses show complete disregard for reputations of fellow thoroughbreds, and a week before Whirlaway made his 1941 debut, along came an invader from Columbia, S. C., namely, King Ranch's Dispose to set a new 7-furlong track record of 1:22 2/5 in winning The Bahamas Handicap on February 1.

Whirlaway was not the least bit chagrined at Dispose's performance, and on February 8 the stretch-running colt came out to a 6-furlong sprint in 1:11 3/5 over a track labeled as good. It being Whirlaway's first appearance of the season, Trainer Ben Jones was highly complimented on the smart performance.

Trainer Satisfied

However, the manner in which these two candidates at Hialeah have won their respective races has horsemen and race goers at odds over the relative merits of the pair.

Trainer Jones was satisfied with Whirlaway's debut but Trainer Max Hirsch was likewise pleased with Dispose, and word trickles back from the South Carolina training grounds that the son of Discovery-Swiftply is ready to invade Hialeah again and make things interesting for Whirlaway.

Dispose has a way of running that tends to keep a horse out of trouble from start to finish, and judging from his breeding the 1 mile and a furlong distance of the Flamingo should not be beyond his capabilities. He is away from the barrier in a flash, and in the Bahamas set his own pace to win by four lengths, under 118 pounds, in the following fractions, 0:22 4-5, 0:43 3-5, 1:10, 1:22 2-5. That afternoon Dispose gave the impression he could run all day just as his sire Discovery could a few seasons back.

Whirlaway is the opposite type of runner, and a big field such as the 14 that went postward in the Flamingo last year might hamper the son of Blenheim and Dustwhirl. Trainer Jones hoped that the big fellow would get over his drifting-out tendencies but even in his initial start here, Whirlaway was lugging out through the stretch and just up to snatch the verdict from Woolford Farm's Signator. The 6-furlong race was run in 0:22 2-5, 0:45 1-5, 1:11 2-5. That Whirlaway still retains his vaunted burst of speed was evident as he came from at least ten lengths off the pace to catch a leg-weary field in front of him.

Question Arises

While many horsemen are inclined to make the Flamingo a two-horse race, let us not forget that a $20,000 prize is worth running for and there are other thoroughbreds on the grounds who may come along and upset the apple cart.

Three-year-olds considered starters in Saturday's Flamingo are Coldstream Stable's Curious Coin, second to Dispose in the Bahamas; Woolford Farm's Silvestra and Signator; Shady Brook Farm's Argicole and Cadmium; J. R. Macomber's Red Vulcan, Greentree Stable's The Rhymer; Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Sailor King; Circle M. Ranch's Battle Colors; Wheatley Stable's Irish Day; Marshall Field's Boiled Shirt; Brandon Stable's Cavalier; E. K. Bryson's Magic Stream; John Greener's Clarksville; Banjamin F. Lister's Bull Brier, and John F. Byers' Robert Morris.

Rice's Mark 2d Fastest in History

Only Taisto Maki's 8:53.2 Outdoors Tops Hoosier's Time

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Feb. 16.—Blame it on the war and the resulting confusion in international sports, but Greg Rice's 2-mile run in 8 minutes 53.4 seconds at Madison Square Garden last night fell a fifth of a second short of being the fastest ever run.

Your correspondent (and virtually everyone else) thought it was the fastest, since Rice's former indoor mark was 8:56.2 and the record book lists the 8:56 by Miklos Szabo, of Hungary, as best outdoors. But in September 1939, Taisto Maki, of Finland, ran the distance in 8:53.2. Because the war broke out soon after and there has been no record-sanctioning meeting of the International Federation since then, Szabo's time remains the recognized mark.

However, there is no arguing Rice's supremacy in distance-running. Forced to make all of his own pace last night, he still was able to knock off the first mile in 4:27.8, and then slam through a 60.1-second last quarter that was faster than the mile finish.

The chesty Hoosier whipped Mel Trutt, of Des Moines, Iowa, by at least 40 yards, and at that Trutt was the only man within 4 yards of him when Rice started his sprint.

In a way it was a shame Rice had to pick the New York A. C. meet for his dazzling performance. He was bound to better his record sooner or later. As it turned out he did it just in time to steal the show from Leslie MacMitchell, the home-town boy finally making good before home folks.

There have been only three faster miles than MacMitchell's 4:07.4—Glenn Cunningham's indoor 4:04.4 at Dartmouth, a paced race, and Sydney Wooderson's 4:06.4 and Cunningham's 4:06.7 outdoors. There have been three equally fast ones at the Garden, one by Cunningham and two by Chuck Fenske, and, with MacMitchell's, they stand as the world record for a competitive race indoors.

But there never has been a finish like the one in which the 20-year-old New York U. junior beat Wisconsin's Walter Mehl by the fraction in which you can blink your eye. It was smashing proof of MacMitchell's durability. After following Luigi Beccali's early pace like a hound dog on the scent, he still had the stamina to make his successful bid for the lead a lap and a half from home, and then enough on top of that to make the winning lunge for the tape when Mehl had cut a 2-yard deficit to nothing in the final 80 yards.

MacMitchell won't run in the Indoor National Championship Mile next Saturday. He'll race the New York A. C.'s Beccali on the Anchor leg of the distance medley in an effort to bring N. Y. U. four championship medals instead of one. Mehl, Fenske, John Munski, Trutt and John Drebinger, of Penn will make up the mile field—thankful, probably, that MacMitchell will be otherwise engaged.

Bruins Five Drops First Game, 41 to 39

With big Sam Kauffman and speedy Sam Schneider showing the way, the artful Brooklyn Dodgers' quintet yesterday defeated the Washington Bruins, colored professional court tossers, at Turner's Arena, 41-39, before a crowd of 1,000.

It was the Bruins' first defeat in 11 starts. The fact that they lost, despite "Tarzan" Cooper's 18 points, tells the story. "Reds" Briscoe and "Ace" Clarke were his main supports, the latter proving spectacular in tossing them through the basket from sidecourt.

The Dodgers led, 16-15, at the half, but by the sensational play of Cooper, Briscoe and Clarke, the Bruins drew away to a 31-26 lead. Manny Jarmon and Vince Cappy rushed into the breach at this point.

With Kauffman's long, daring loopers from midcourt, as well as a shifty passing attack and heady work under the basket, they tied the count at 37-all, with five minutes to go.

The final minutes proved a thrilling test of speed and stamina, neither team counting until Sam Schneider caged one with 50 seconds left, from a distance far down court. Cooper matched it immediately with his famous pivot shot.

Then Schneider broke away from the pack to push the winning basket through, unguarded, as the clock showed 30 seconds to play. Seeley's toss, from scrimmage, at a difficult angle, was not good enough, as the final whistle blew.

Bruins Win, 37 to 32

Baltimore, Feb. 16.—The Washington Bruins evened the score with the Brooklyn Dodgers here tonight, aided by the sensational shooting of long John Williams. The score was 37-32. Williams accounted for 12 points.

Selections at Hialeah

Dear Al:

I met one of the ardent Maryland racing fans yesterday. I said, "Well, it won't be long now." He came back with, "Bowie opens six weeks from tomorrow at 2:15 p. m." It hardly seems possible that another season is slipping up on us like that, but it is a fact. Watt Elliott has picked up his horses from Alan Clarke's farm and now has them at Bowie. George Cook also has shipped his horses from the farm to the Prince Georges County track to get them reday. Hialeah made a big hit last Saturday by splitting the McLennan Handicap into two divisions and by putting up $10,000 added money for both ends. The track deserved the $800,000 handle. Al Boyle, president of the Charles Town Jockey Club, plans to visit Hot Springs, Ark., where Mrs. Boyle's horses will be in action. Hot Springs opens February 26. Jockeys N. L. Pierson and W. L. Johnson left Hialeah for that track. In 31 days of racing at Hialeah there have been 67 claims with $139,300 changing hands. The top money was the $5,000 deposited by Mrs. L. H. Nimkoff to obtain Watch Over from Mrs. G. C. Winfrey. I understand that there's no chance of Marlboro having a clubhouse for next summer's racing. I would like to see one built. In fact, I would like to put it up myself if the track would let me get the extra admission money. Too bad that I didn't stick to Big Pebble after rooting him into a stake horse last winter. Remember? If the open winter around Washington continues, the horses which have spent the off season in the section are going to make it mighty tough for the ones coming from the winter tracks. The Tower Stable will miss Bowie, but will be in actio at Havre de Grace. This apretnice jockey, Conn McCreary, is just about the biggest, little man I've ever seen. He is stocky and strong, despite the fact that he is a lightweight. Appears to have most of his growth and may go a long way as a journeyman jockey. BILL.

First race—TAUNT could be the right one in the opening event, as usual a hop, skip and jump for juveniles. Is reported fit and ready for the best. STARWEISTAR is a fair sort and should be prominent. RAISIN BREAD could be the third one.

Second race—PETTACAIRN appears well placed in this sprint. McCreary probably will be the rider and I'm going to string along. FANTASAMA was taken out of action yesterday to await this. LANIE for the minor award.

Third race—HUNTING HOME gets a good figure in this field. Needs only the right ride. BOLD TURK is a doubtful starter but will have to be dealt with if in action. TRAVEL AGENT to take care of the others.

Fourth race—SPEED TO SPARE breaks off the rail and has the speed to get to the top. May be the right one in a rather open race. DRUDGERY has plenty of foot and is dangerous. JELWELL could be the third one.

Fifth race—The Bryson Entry of CIS MARION and MAGIC STREAM deserves attention in this event. Either can take down the chief part of the purse. VERSION has speed and promises to be a keen factor. ROSE ANITA should make a money appearance.

Sixth race—I'm going to take one more shot at REX FLAG. This one has been kidding and could awaken with a bang in this test. RANGER II and MUCHO GUSTO are good now and will battle it out if I have been mistaken about the top fellow.

Seventh race—ELOOTO may prove a surprise in this race. Berg will do the riding and this one may take the top and stay there. WOODWAAC and PATSEY BEGONE for the place and show positions.

Eighth race—ODDESA'S PRIDE has plenty of closing ability and will be a keen factor in the final stages. I believe he can get up in time to take the major part of the purse. SNOW and PAUL FRY for the other cash places.

Best bet—SPEED TO SPARE.

'Home-Run' Baker New Athletic Head

Easton, Md., Feb. 16 (AP).—J. Franklin (Home Run) Baker, former major league swat king, has been elected president of the Easton Athletic Association, which will operate the Easton Club of the Eastern Shore League this season under a working agreement with the New York Yankees.

Stockholders also elected Joseph Barnes, vice president; Henry Sluaghrer, treasurer, and Lee Vinyard, secretary. Directors named were Baker, Barnes, Morris Jones, Trader Horn Harry Wilson, Philip Hopkins and Frank Shook:

Conklin Picks:

HIALEAH

2—Royal Ruby II, Shim Sham, Boom On.
3—Bold Turk, Indian Lodge, Gallant Stroke.
4—Speed to Spare, John's Heir, Drudgery.
5—Cis Marion, Choppy Sea, Homeward Bound.
6—Panorascope, Ranger II, Silent Witness.
8—Short Distance, Rahanee, Paul Fry.

Best bet—Royal Ruby II.

Jamaica Race Course Adds $10,000 Event

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 16.—The Metropolitan Jockey Club, operators of Jamaica race track, today announced the addition of the $10,000 Grey Lag Handicap to the roster of State events for its 25-day spring meeting, April 12 to May 10.

The Gray Lag, which offers opportunity for horsemen to point for another rich spring handicap in New York, was named after one of the most illustrious performers of the twenties. Under the green and white silks of the Rancocas Stable, Grey Lag won the Belmont, Brooklyn, Suburban, Empire City, Queens County, Excelsior and Metropolitan handicaps.

The addition of the Grey Lag, a 9-furlong event for 3-year-olds and upwards to be run closing day, brought the Jamaica stakes to eight with a gross value of $67,500, a $17,500 increase in added money over last year.

The Excelsior Handicap was increased from $7,500 to $10,000, and the Rosedale and Youthful were doubled in value and will be worth $5,000 each.

April 12, Paumonok handicap, 3-year-olds up, over 6 furlongs, $7,500; April 19, Experimental handicap, 3-year-olds, over 6 furlongs, $5,000; April 19, Excelsior handicap, 3-year-olds, and up, over 1 1-16 miles, $10,000; April 26, the Wood Memorial, 3-year-olds, over 1 1-16 miles, $20,000; May 3, Rosedale Stakes, 2-year-old fillies, over 5 furlongs, $5,000; May 3, Jamaica handicap, 3-year-olds and up, over 6 furlongs, $5,000; May 10, Grey Lag handicap, 3-year-olds and up, over 9 furlongs, $10,000; May 10, Youthful Stakes, 2-year-olds, over 5 furlongs, $5,000.

Bill Ackerman Outdoors . . .

Hell's paved with good intentions—so they say. If true, there is little doubt, in our mind, that fishermen do more than their fair share of spreading the steaming asphalt, or whatever it is they use down below.

ACKERMAN

For, out of every ten that tell you of their fishing trips beforehand, there is just about one that will take the trouble to drop a penny postcard so that we stay-at-homes might know what they are doing. After all, we are interested.

L. H. Burch, from out University Park way, is just as proficient at that paving job as we probably would be under the same circumstances. Last winter, Burch if you remember the note in this column, hung on to a big blue marlin down off Key Largo; fought it for hours, only to lose it far after dark.

He's talked about it ever since, and right now is fishing from George Smith's Inn by the Sea at Tavernier, and trolling nothing but the large baits we advised if he hoped to get hung to another big blue.

He hasn't quite made the grade so far, according to George, although he has raised one, which, after all is something, for we have known anglers to troll for several weeks without doing as much.

Burch did hook a black tip shark, however, and it gave him 4 hours and 15 minutes of swell practice. It weighed in at 280 pounds.

Black Tips (Carcharias lamia) are rates by many, with one exception, as the sportiest sharks in Southern waters, probably because they will take a trolled artificial lure just as quick as a live bait, and they'll put up a real fight, even to breaking water.

In our book, we place the mako, the thresher, and even the mackerel shark ahead of the black-tip, but they're still plenty tough on a rod and reel.

Burch is probably still trolling those large baits off Tavernier, for he wants a blue marlin. As far as the area is concerned, we believe it to be the best on this side of the Gulf Stream.

True, that most of the blues caught on this side, have been taken off the Roney Plaza at Miami Beach, but only because there are so many boats continuously fishing for them there. There is hardly any skipper, fishing that area late in the afternoon, who will not put a large bait on and give them a circle or two. If even the few boats fishing off Key Largo would do the same we have the idea that more than a few blue marlin would be caught.

One condition that makes big game-fishing better in the Keys are the many cuts between the ocean and the Bay of Florida. Cuts that see heavy congregations of, not only bottom fish, but top-strikers as well, and that's what it takes to bring the big fellows in.

There would be no hazard in predicting that this section will see heavy fishing in the next year or two, for already, swell camps are located every few miles. Yet we can remember, and it is only a few years back, when you could spend a week in the keys without meeting another boat, and a trip to Key West was a through affair, for the reason, there was no place to stop along the way.

3 Court Titles Still Undecided

East Crown Fight Among Three Teams

Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth in Race; Missouri, Big Six Diadems in Doubt

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 16.—Except in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, the Big Six and the Missouri Valley Conference, you can point to one team in every major college basketball conference today as the one that almost certainly will finish at the top of this season's standings.

In the Big Ten it's Wisconsin (7-1), hot on an eight-game winning streak which has brought all seven conference victories. Kentucky (6-1) looks a good bet to repeat as Southeastern Conference leader; North Carolina's Southern Conference defending champions (12-0) are a cinch for the title tournament as they go into the last week of league play; Arkansas (8-0) already has clinched the Southwest crown; on the Pacific Coast it's Stanford (7-1) in the Southern and Washington State (9-2) in the Northern division, and in the Rocky Mountain Big Seven it's Wyoming (6-1).

In the three excepted instances, it still is strictly a toss-up; among Dartmouth (5-1), Columbia (4-1) and Cornell (6-2) in the E. I. L. Between Kansas (4-1) and Oklahoma (4-2) in the Big Six, and between Drake and Creighton (each 5-2) in the Missouri Valley.

Riding high among the "independents" are the East's Seton Hall and Baltimore, each with 14 victories and no defeats. The Jerseyites, idle last week, may knock off another against St. Joseph next Friday. But Baltimore has a tartar coming up next Saturday in Long Island U. (17-2). One factor which may work in the Marylanders' favor, however, is that L. I. U. will have played Michigan State at East Lansing Wednesday and DePaul at Chicago on Friday before coming to Baltimore.

EAST—Columbia is coming up fast on the outside as a challenger to Dartmouth's 1940 E. I. L. winners, surprisingly beaten by Cornell for their first loss. The Lions knocked off Penn and Princeton during last week, and could go into first place by beating Dartmouth Saturday. The Indians also have a date with Yale on Wednesday. If Dartmouth should lose to Yale and beat Columbia, Cornell could go on top by downing Harvard Friday.

Besides L. I. U., busiest Eastern independent will be Rhode Island State (16-1), which takes on Worcester, Tufts, Springfield and Connecticut. Westminster (14-1) has two games on tap, while highly-touted Georgetown (14-2) must play Penn State and Scranton and George Washington (13-3) has Virginia in the way. Among last week's major results was the 59-47 victory scored over Washington and Jefferson by Ohio U. (13-3), which also lists Toledo among its victims.

MIDWEST — Wisconsin's likely winners and Purdue's Big Ten defending titleholders meet tomorrow in what shapes up as No. 8 for the Badgers, who are a safe bet against Chicago's tail-enders next Saturday. Indiana (6-1) is a different threat, but appears to face tougher competition to continue that way in engagements with Ohio State and Iowa, both winners last night.

BIG SIX and Missouri Valley fans will pool their interests tomorrow night in the interleague game sending Henry Iba's Oklahoma Aggies, 1940 Valley winners and now in fourth place, against Phog Allen's Kansas team. This game overshadows league warfare, and shapes up as a battle between an Aggie defense that throttled Oklahoma and Kansas' high-scoring Howard Engleman.

Kansas has a league date later with Missouri (0-6), while second-place Oklahoma plays Iowa State and Nebraska. The Aggies, still hoping to retain their Valley laurels, are booked against both Drake and Creighton and may break that first-place tie.

Among the nonleague teams Notre Dame (14-3), which beat New York U. for its tenth straight last week, will try to make it 11 against Georgia Tech next Saturday.

SOUTH—Winner over Mississippi (1-13) and third-place Tennessee (63) last week, Kentucky winds up its regular season against Georgia Tech (37) tomorrow and surprising Vanderbilt (6-3) on Wednesday. Florida's split with Georgia dropped the 'Gators to second at 6-2. Tennessee, beaten 37-28 by Kentucky last night, plays Vanderbilt twice. The Commodores finally found the range and whipped Georgia Tech in two games.

Together with North Carolina and South Carolina (7-0), Washington and Lee, William and Mary, Virginia Military, Richmond, Duke and Wake Forest appear sure of bids to the Southern Conference tournament opening February 27. South Carolina plays four games in the final loop week, while North Carolina has only a game with Duke Thursday.

SOUTHWEST — Two victories over Rice last week nailed down the conference title for the tallest team in Arkansas history. Only Southern Methodist has a mathematical chance of catching the Razorbacks, and S. M. U. has three tough ones booked—Rice, Texas Aggies and Texas—while Arkansas has two with Texas Christian, in the cellar for the seventh straight year.

PACIFIC COAST—Stanford, two games up on thrice-beaten California in the Southern division, switches partners with the Golden Bears this week. The front-running Indians meet U. C. L. A., whipped twice by California, and the Bears play Southern Cal., defeated 48-36 and 43-36 by Stanford.

It's down to mathematical possibilities in the Northern half, where Washington State won its ninth straight, 39-31, over Washington last night. Heading for their first title in a decade, State's sharpshooters have five games left, all at home, with Oregon State (4-4) and Oregon (6-6) closest to them.

Sacred Heart Five Beats HolyComforter

In one of the most thrilling games in the entire Gonzaga Parochial School tournament, Sacred Heart basketeers retained their league lead by scoring a 19-15 victory over Holy Comforter, yesterday at Gonzaga. In the last minute of play Holy Comforter scored three baskets to draw within two points of the leaders when McGrath, a second stringer, scored to clinch the game for Sacred Heart.

St. Matthew held grimly to second place by defeating St. Aloysius, 19-12.

The only other team in the running for the championship is Holy Name, who routed St. Thomas, 37-11. Blessed Sacrament handed St. Stephen's its tenth defeat, 21-8, as St. James' was losing to St. Michael's in the lowest scoring game of the tournament, 10-5.

St. Joseph's nosed out St. Martin's, 23-20. Immaculate Conception was idle. Sacred Heart draws a bye for the final round which starts at the Gonzaga gym next Sunday at 1 p. m.

Walter Haight Goes Local

He walked up to the car. I smiled.

"Thanks for recognizing me, officer. I hope you enjoyed the letters," I said. "Everybody I met on the way downtown has yelled to me."

"I don't know anything about those letters, Buddy," said the policeman, "but no wonder everybody holloed at you. You've been going the wrong way on a one-way street."

Darn it, I couldn't think of a wisecrack, either.

WASHINGTON HAIGHT.

Norris Stars For Jacobsen

Johnny Norris, former Blair High School center, last night set a season individual scoring record for the Heurich Amateur Basketball League when he dumped in 25 points to help Jacobsen Florist beat Arlington Maccabees, 61-45.

Norris' 12 field goals and 1 free throw topped the mark of 21 points hung up by Merrill Headings, the erstwhile Tech High ace.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. In re condemnation for acquisition of land in Square 732 for alley purposes, in the District of Columbia. District Court, No. 2699. Notice and order of publication. Notice is hereby given that the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, pursuant to the provisions of sections 1608 to 1610, inclusive, of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, have filed a petition in this court praying for the condemnation of the land necessary for the opening of an alley in Square 732, in the District of Columbia, as shown on a map or plat filed with the said petition as part thereof, and praying also that this court empanel a jury in accordance with the law provided for in such cases to assess the damages each owner of land to be taken may sustain by reason of the opening of the alley and the condemnation of the land necessary for the purposes hereof, and to assess benefits resulting therefrom, including the expenses of these proceedings, upon each lot or part of lot or parcel of land, which will be benefited by said condemnation, in the proportion that the said jury may find said lots, parts of lots, or parcels of land will be benefited as provided for, in and by the aforesaid Code of Law, and by the Act of Congress approved June 20, 1936. It is, by the court, this 7th day of February, 1941, ordered, that all persons having any interest in these proceedings be, and they hereby are warned and commanded to appear in this court on or before the 10th day of March, 1941, at 10 o'clock a. m., and continue in attendance until the court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award of damages and the assessment of benefits of the jury to be empaneled and sworn herein, and it is further ordered that a copy of this notice and order be published twice a week for two successive weeks in the Washington Evening Star, the Washington Times-Herald and The Washington Post, newspapers published in the said District, commencing at least ten days before the said 10th day of March, 1941. It is further ordered that a copy of this notice and order be served by the United States Marshal, or his deputies, upon each of the owners of the fee of the land to be condemned herein as may be found by the said Marshal, or his deputies, within the District of Columbia, before the said 10th day of March, 1941. By the court: ALEXANDER A. WHEAT, Chief Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By H. B. DERTZBAUGH, Asst. Clerk. 10,11,1/7,18

NO! I WILL NOT GIVE YOU AN ORDER!
BUT IT MEANS SO MUCH TO US- TO JUNE AND ME-I MEAN!
SURELY IT WOULDN'T HURT YOU TO GIVE EUSTACE JUST A SMALL ORDER- A TEENY-WEENY ONE!
I'D LIKE TO HELP YOU TWO YOUNGSTERS- BELIEVE ME, I WOULD- BUT I'VE MADE MY PILE-AND I'M RETIRING FROM BUSINESS!

MEANWHILE- THE REAL EUSTACE WATSON PONDERS.....
IMAGINE ME SITTING IN A STRANGE APARTMENT- WAITING FOR A SUPERMAN TO STRAIGHTEN OUT MY PRIVATE LIFE. GEE, IT'S JUST LIKE A DREAM. GOSH-MAYBE IT IS ONE, AT THAT!
AT THAT MOMENT A KEY RATTLES IN THE KEYHOLE. THE DOOR TO THE APARTMENT BEGINS TO OPEN....
G-GOSH!-THE OWNERS OF THIS APARTMENT- RE- TURNING! IF THEY FIND ME HERE, THEY'LL THINK I'M A BURGLAR!!

A battle of the sexes—In fact, of husband and wife—has developed in WJSV's annual dramatic competition.

Sunday before last WJSV presented the FBI Theater Group in the play, "The Winnah," by Imelda Wall Coleman. Yesterday's entry in the series, enacted by members of the Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University and titled "'Last Knight of Europe," was penned by Bill Coleman, a graduate student.

Yes, you've guessed it. Bill and Imelda are husband and wife.. And the Coleman family, as you can plainly see, now stands a 50 per cent better chance of getting the award than it did a week ago.

Bill Coleman, incidentally, last year directed the FBI Theater Group through the District One-Act Play Tournament to a clean sweep of both prizes—for play and acting—the first time such a thing had happened in the history of the tournament.

"Last Knight of Europe" was based on the life of the late author and epigrammatist, G. K. Chesterton. The cast included Grace Mary Colliflower, Marie Walcott, Leo Brady, Frank Spitzig, Rigo Martini, James Graham, Bill Byrne, James McDonald, Lionel Booth, Tom McKenna, Stan Nagoski and—what is all this?—Mr. and Mrs. Bill Coleman.

World Queries Indian Doctors On New Trachoma Treatment

The discovery of two Indian Service doctors that sulfanilamide may be used successfully in the treatment of trachoma, sight-destroying disease, has become a potential factor in the health programs of many nations, the Interior Department reported last night.

"As a result of phenomenally successful treatment of the dreaded eye disease, trachoma, among American Indians, physicians of the United States Indian Service are being deluged with medical inquiries from a large part of the world," the report said.

The number of inquiries, the department pointed out, indicates that the disease occurs far more frequently and over a far larger area of the earth than was supposed. In the United States there are only about 70,000 known cases, approximately half of which are among Indians.

Since first using sulfanilamide successfully a few years ago, Dr. Richards and Dr. Loe have supervised the treatment in 1,325 carefully selected cases.

"A few of the cases are found to be not cured, but improved and made noninfectious," the department reported. "These patients are carefully examined every six months and are given further treatment. The entire list . . . is examined every six months to determine the extent of improvement of their vision.

Sulfanilamide kills the trachoma virus, said the report, but does not restore lost or impaired vision. Only nature can do that, and according to recent date, is doing so in a vast percentage of the treated cases, it was added.

After completion of their study of the selected cases, Dr. Richards and Dr. Loe will make a final report for medical science.

Counsel to Argue Documents Today In Doctors' Trial

After the weekend "truce," opposing counsel in the doctors' trial will resume hostilities in District Court today over admissibility of numerous letters, telegrams and other documents by means of which the Government seeks to prove the American Medical Association stifled development of cooperative medicine.

The papers were subpenaed by the Government from the files of A. M. A. Nearly 100 of these papers are scheduled to be offered in evidence today by Grant W. Kelleher and John Henry Lewin, who are prosecuting A. M. A., the District Medical Society, two other professional groups and 20 distinguished physicians for alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Introduction of the exhibits, over protests of defense counsel, who succeeded in several instances in having documents barred, began Thursday. When all the documents have been admitted into evidence, they will be read to the jury.

Eve in Paradise (Nev.) Is Facing Prying Eyes of Law

Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 16 (AP).—A scantily clad blonde running about Paradise Valley provided this town with a mystery today.

Constable Jack Larry heard about the desert nymph from two sources. A party of tourists reported her last week. Then yesterday James F. Dodd came back from a rabbit hunting trip with this account:

The scantily clad one dashed away, paused to call back: "Let me live my own life," and fled into the mesquite.

Constable Larry, who didn't take much stock in the first report, said today he was going to have a look down Paradise Valley way.

Parishioners Like Chance to Talk Back to Pastor

Charlotte, Vt., Feb. 16 (AP).—Parishioners "talked back" to a minister after his sermon in the Congregational Church here today—and became so interested that the service lasted 25 minutes longer than usual.

The Rev. Philetus H. McDowell, 67, planned the "Town Meeting Goes to Church" session, he said, in an effort to "break through the crust of indifference" concerning religion.

More than 100 persons—a heavy increase in attendance—participated in the forum and took advange of the pastor's slogan that "no question is too hot to handle."

The forum, the first of three planned by Mr. McDowell, considered "Why Did Lincoln Elect to Live His Life Outside the Church?"

Strip-Teaser Seeks To Shed Marriage

Los Angeles, Feb. 16 (AP).—Striptease Dancer Marian Glazier complains in a marriage annulment suit that Sidney Glazier, Dayton, Ohio, theater manager, refused to live with her after they eloped to Covington, Ky., last December 27.

Legion and Auxiliary Groups Announce Two More Parties for Blood Bank Fund

Variety of Benefit Activities Scheduled For Current Week

Children's Hospital Blood Bank officials announced two new parties yesterday as enthusiasm continued to spread for the work and play of good will.

The announcement was made at the beginning of a week which will see a variety of activities for the benefit of the aid fund sponsored by The Post, the American Legion and Station WJSV.

The Forty and Eight and the Eight and Forty, honor and fun societies of the Legion and the Auxiliary, are combining to hold a benefit party for the bank at the Veteran's Club, 3135 K Street Northwest, at 8 p. m. March 4. The announcement was made by Francis McCarthy, grand chef du gare of the Forty and Eight, and Mrs. Katherine Crompton, chapeau of the Eight and Forty.

In charge of arrangements will be W. L. Collins and Mrs. Mildred Bell, child welfare chairman of the two organizations.

James Reese Europe Auxiliary Unit No. 5 will hold a party for the benefit of the bank at the Crystal Caverns at 10:30 p. m. March 7, Mrs. Anita Ellis, president of the organization, announced. Mrs. Marie Gardiner is chairman of the committee on arrangements and will be assisted by Mrs. Alma Lucas, Mrs. Eula May Hammond and Mrs. Charlotte Lancaster.

Card parties will be held at 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. today at the Colonial Village Community House in Arlington, Va.

At 8 p. m. today Potomac Post and Auxiliary Unit No. 40 of the Legion will hold a card party at the Palisades Field House, Sherrier Place and Edmunds Street Northwest. Refreshments will be served.

The Washington Bridge League will sponsor a party at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Shoreham Hotel.

George Washington Post, No. 1, of the legion, will hold its benefit party at 8 p. m., Thursday, at Holy Comforter Parish Hall, Fifteenth and East Capitol Streets.

Ernie Dusek, the Nebraska Wildcat, and the Green Hornet, masked grappled, will be headlined in a wrestling match at Turner's Arena at 8 p. m. Thursday, with 10 per cent of the gross receipts going to the blood bank.

On Friday, at 8 p. m., a card party will be held at the Madison School in Falls Church, Va.

Climaxing the week will be the American Legion's annual department ball at 10 p. m., Saturday, at the Mayflower Hotel, when Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of The Post, will be presented with a check for the legion's receipts to that date and a list of future events.

Meeting to Study Defense Health

Conserving the health of workers in defense industries is the theme of the meeting of the National Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists to be held here today and tomorrow.

Speakers will include Dr. L. R. Thompson, director of the National Institute of Health; Dr. C. D. Selby, medical director of General Motors Corporation, and Dr. Philip Drinker, of the Harvard School of Public Health.

New P.-T.A. Planned

Organization of a Parent-Teacher Association for the Parkside Elementary School, Silver Spring, Md., will be discussed at a special meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the school on Sligo Parkway.

Ringside Table With Mary Harris

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY will be observed all week by some of our patriotic night spot managements. The "Washington's Birthday Revue," starting at Lotus today, is signalized by a varied array of top vaudeville acts and glowing parade numbers. Heading the show are comedians Billy and Idylle, who played in London's Piccadilly a few months ago. The smart skating act of Victor and Reith and tap stepper Dixie Roberts are also featured . . . The Hi Hat has been decorated colorfully in honor of the Father of His Country by ingenious Oscar, whose special pride is that American flag waving in an indoor breeze. Those supercherries of Hit Hat fit right into the Washington's Birthday theme.

Roger Wolfe Kahn, famed former bandleader, was recently delighted by hearing his own "Crazy Rhythm" played by Carmen Cavallaro in the Cosmos Room. Kahn's band of a few years ago included such big figures of today as the Dorsey brothers, Artie Shaw and Benny Goodman.

LOUNGE RIVIERA PICTURE. The bachelor party for Louis Urciolo, who's soon to marry pretty Mary Patricia Stanish. Later in the evening the lads moved their festivities to the Palm Room . . . The floor crowded with so many of the town's most alluring debs, glamour gals and their beaux that they could hardly rumba to Pete Macia's rhythms . . . Jack Norman's interlude caroling in great demand with nine out of ten people calling for their pet tunes . . . Jimmy Nichols explaining why his dulcetone is more interesting than a celeste. It appears the bell tones are deeper and more flexible.

"WHEN I FOUND YOU," delightful tune now being played by Dick Koons' band in the Mayflower Lounge, is the brain child of young Paul Smith, of the Interior Department, an enterprising lad who's written other songs, is now getting his first fine break.

HEARTS WERE TRUMPS at Tommy Marvin's opening in the Metrenome Room. Valentine hearts were all over the room, singer Marion Stanfield looked like a valentine in a frock of lipstick red, and the Tommy Marvin music made a complete capture of the dancers' hearts. The scene was hectic with latecomers trying to get tables, blonde Boris trying to find room where room there was none, keen-eyed maitre d'hotel William Hino watching out for everybody's comfort. Melodic thrills of the evening included boogie-woogie pianistics and the subtly brilliant trumpet solos of "King" Cole.

A lass who can take it is charming Virginia Waters, best and only girl friend of Jim Fitzpatrick, Rainbow Room saxophonist. Virginia is in a jacket cast for a double fracture of the spine, but she's in the Rainbow Room every afternoon.

CASINO ROYAL will present a dashing new revue today with the Roth dancers dividing their energies between military and collegiate numbers. Topping the show are Lamb and Sherman, clever Washington girls who lately danced at the Capitol Theater. The Leski Brothers, magicians, will bepuzzle patrons. Accordion solos by Felix Zimmer, songs by handsome Bob Preble, music and high-class insanity by Jack "Jive" Schafer.

VERSATILE TASTES. When the patrons at Restaurant "823" aren't devoting their talents to singing such tunes as "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" along with Tommy Suter and Lee Everett, they go musically highbrow with the Heintze Brothers and Jane Marlow. Right now they're asking for "Intermezzo" about ten times a night.

CHI CHI COSTUMES. Pauline Barry, now dancing with Bob Castine at the Shoreham, is completely vogueish in a pale gray and black printed chiffon with dramatic sleeves and pink petticoats what show when she whirls. Her sleek blonde hair is done in an extreme pompadour like that affected by Margaret Sullavan in "Back Street" . . . Eileen George, of the Anchor Room, is positively aureate in champagne chiffon with a gold top and gold jacket with sassy puffed sleeves . . . Mayfair's Adele Van is even more exquisite than usual in black crepe with an elaborate yoke of heavy white eyelet embroidery. This represents the newest spring style trend . . . Evie Knight, of the King Cole Room, is a bit discouraged about her new black and scarlet frock with generous midriff decolletage. She caught cold the first time she wore it.

Who plays a clarinet without tootling? Who plays an oboe and doesn't own an oboe?. Who picks the mandolin by pushing?. Why Milt Herth(quake), of the Neptune Room. Milt imitates 26 instruments on his electrifying organ . . . Latest flash from the Neptune Room is that magnetic Lina d'Acosta will be singing there on March 1.

RAMBLING REPORTER. You'd better hurry to catch that brilliant Pan American diversion at the Silver Fox. Previous bookings will necessitate a change on March 1 . . . You'd never dream it, but singer Margaret Costello, of Ciro's Famous Village, has a 23-year-old daughter . . . Jeanne and Jack Ross, of El Patio, nearly didn't get to Washington. They were caught in a sleet storm right in the middle of the Alleghenies, slid up and down mountains for all of one terrible night . . . Despite her name, Louise La Tour, crystal reader of the Pall Mall Room, is an English girl, went through the London bombings of the early part of the war . . . Alberto Gomez, of Don Carper's Four in Cafe Caprice, is a Puerto Rican Bostonian, speaks five languages, the English with an Oxford accent.

PAUL YOUNG'S is headquarters for musicians and show people late at night. The other a. m. we spotted Lou Franco and June Sothern, of the Madrillon; Johnny Hartsfield, of the Neptune Room. Much interest centers in the singing of "Tiny" Lee, whom Maestro Al Spieldock says is a better warbler than his wife, Helen Forrest (now with Benny Goodman), was when she started at Madrillon.

EPICURE'S CORNER. Nowhere in the country will you find more appetizing or interesting food than in Olmsted's Grill, a spot that has added enjoyment to Washington living for these many years. Whether it's a cup of clam chowder, a prime filet mignon or Chincoteague oysters casino that you order—you'll find cooking perfection and perfect service. And don't miss the rum buns . . . New Orleans, Italian and Mexican specials all figure on the menu at Dick's Grill. They're highly fancied by some of our town's most finicky gourmets.
